PREFACE

This section of the Standard Catalog contains about 2,350 of the best novels for the average public library. Some 750 titles have been starred for first purchase by the smaller libraries, but the compiler realizes that it is not possible to standardize all small library collections and that there is room for difference of opinion as to the novels that should be added in special localities.

Collections of short stories have been included. Many novels and short stories translated from foreign languages have been listed. A number of out of print novels have been included and marked "o.p. 1923." Many, if not all of these, still stand on the shelves of our libraries, some will be reprinted and still others may be picked up secondhand. Some novels appearing as late as May, 1923, have been listed.

Criticisms and suggestions from librarians and other users of the Catalog will be welcomed.

Arrangement. Novels are listed in one alphabet under both author and title, with a partial subject index, to be developed more fully in future editions if users of the Catalog so desire. The arrangement of titles under the name of the author is usually alphabetical, but exception is made in the case of novels belonging to a series with a distinctive name, as Trollope's Chronicles of Barsetshire or Cooper's Leatherstocking tales, where the titles are listed in the order in which they should be read. Almost every title is annotated. Contents are freely given for collections of stories. The attempt has been made to enter under the more familiar form of the author's name, whether it be real name or pseudonym. Prices have been omitted except in notes on different editions.

Editions. The compiler has tried to list in each case a good edition for library use, but has refrained from adding to the bulk and cost of the Catalog by listing all editions. In the case of many great writers, such as Balzac, Dickens, Tolstoi, Turgenev, etc., a note on editions follows the author's name. Librarians who want cheaper editions should look up the title they wish in such collections as Boni & Liveright's Modern library, Scribner's Modern student's library, Dutton's Everyman's library, Doubleday's Lambskin library, and Houghton's Riverside literature series.

Notes. With but few exceptions, the notes have been taken from library bulletins and catalogs, the Book review digest, the Booklist, the A. L. A. catalog of 1904 and its first Supplement, Baker's Guide to fiction and his Guide to historical fiction. The Cleveland Open Shelf, the Pratt Institute Alcove list and the Catalogs and bulletins of the Carnegie library of Pittsburgh have been constantly used. General notes describing or evaluating an author are appended to his name in a few instances. (See Bunner, H. C., Chekhov, Dostoyevskii, Dreiser, Ebers, Machen, Wassermann, etc.) The number of such notes will be increased in future editions if librarians so desire. Dots of omission have not been used in the notes quoted, and double credit has not been given. When a note is quoted by a library from a periodical, the original source only is listed as authority.

In the case of novels to which some librarians would take exception, but which others wish to include in their collections, the notes have been so phrased as to indicate clearly, to a careful reader, the nature of the book. (See Asch, Blanco-Fombona, Dreiser, Flaubert, Lawrence, D. H., Maugham, Maurois, Moore, G., Nexö, Smollett, &c.)

Subject-Index. The subject-index is confessedly incomplete. A number of novels have been listed under headings which, it is hoped, will be useful to librarians.

A longer index might increase unduly the cost of the Fiction Catalog without adding greatly to its usefulness. Criticism and suggestions will be welcomed.

Such general headings as Love, Marriage, Sin, have not been used. Translations have not been listed under the languages from which the novels have been translated. Most of them will be found under the heading: Locality, Novels by. Special attention has been paid to Historical novels and to novels classifying under such popular headings as: Cheerful stories, Mystery and detective stories, School and college life, Sea stories, etc. A few titles have been listed under the heading: Literary distinction, Novels and stories of. If found useful, this group will be enlarged.

Method of Compilation. The initial selection was based on the last edition of the Wilson Company's Fiction Catalog, the Newark Free public library's One thousand of the best novels, the A. L. A. Catalog of 1904 and its first Supplement, the Book review digest, the Standard Catalog bimonthly, the Booklist, New York Best books, the Wisconsin library bulletin and a number of other library and commission bulletins. From these sources, a tentative list of about 2,800 titles, followed later by two much shorter supplementary lists, was prepared and sent out to eight libraries in different parts of the country, two library commissions and one high school teacher, for criticism and suggestion. The editor went over the tabulated results cutting out a number of titles and adding a few suggested by the collaborators. The revised list was then sent for further criticism to two library editors: Mrs. Julia Schofield Harron of the Cleveland Open Shelf, and Miss Mary Katharine Reely of the Wisconsin library bulletin. The editor then went over the list again, taking into consideration these further suggestions. Mrs. Harron and Miss Reely indicated their choice of titles to be starred for the smaller libraries. Webster's Buying list of books for small libraries and the Standard Catalog bimonthly were also of use in selecting these titles.

Acknowledgments. Among the librarians who checked the Fiction lists or gave other helpful advice, special thanks are due to Miss Greta E. Brown of the New Britain (Conn.) Institute library; Miss Zaidee Brown, recently of the Long Beach (Cal.) Public library; Miss Mary E. Eastwood of the New York state library; Miss Caroline H. Garland of the Dover (N.H.) Public library; Mrs. Julia Schofield Harron of the Cleveland Public library; Miss Louise G. Hinsdale of the East Orange (N.J.) Public library; Mr. Judson T. Jennings of the Seattle (Wash.) Public library; Miss Harriet C. Long of the Traveling libraries department of the Wisconsin free library commission; Miss Julia Wright Merrill of the Ohio state library; Miss Marie L. Prevost of the Newark (N.J.) Free Public library; Miss Mary W. Rothrock of the Lawson-McGee library, Knoxville, Tenn.; Miss Mary Katharine Reely of the Wisconsin free library commission; Miss Helen Turvill, recently of the Wisconsin free library commission; Miss Carolyn F. Ulrich, recently in charge of Central circulation, New York Public library; Mr. Earl F. Walbridge, librarian of the Harvard club, New York city. Thanks are also due to Mr. B. A. Heydrick, instructor in English in the New York High school of commerce, for checking the list, and to the staff of the New Britain (Conn.) Institute library, where much of the work was done, for their unfailing courtesy and help in supplying needed books.

The final decision as to the inclusion or exclusion of any title has necessarily been made by the editor in accordance with the weight of evidence. Inasmuch as the selection has been made in this manner, the cooperators should not be held individually responsible for the result.

The selection of books and annotations has been made by Corinne Bacon; the editorial work has been largely done by Kathleen Hayes, under the supervision of Mertice James.

Selection. This is not a list of the best 2,350 novels, judged as literature, but a list of 2,350 of the best novels for public library use. This means that it includes novels for highly educated and for comparatively uneducated readers, for those who like the older novels and for those who want to keep in touch with present day fiction. It necessarily excludes some novels both old and recent, interesting to students of literature, and includes, for the sake of the average reader, some recent novels the permanent worth of which is open to question. Such a list will not completely satisfy anyone and must be modified by each library in accordance with its needs. The fact that a novel is not to be found on this list must not be taken to imply that it should necessarily be excluded from the library. Many titles of ephemeral interest that have no place in a selected list are rightly added to our libraries. Then, too, it is almost impossible to choose the few best titles from the output of authors of small literary merit who have written many novels. One cannot list all of Bindloss, Zane Grey, Oppenheim, &c. Which titles shall we choose? Judging from the titles checked by the collaborators, it doesn't seem to matter much. The choice is sometimes equally difficult in the case of authors of undoubted literary merit, such as E. F. Benson or Chekhov.

Mr. John Cotton Dana says in his Introduction to the first edition of A thousand of the best novels:

"Are there not principles of literary criticism which one may learn, and then may apply and then may see fiction humbly classify itself into best, good, poor and bad before one's eyes? Because novels pass from the best to the worst by an infinite series of minute gradations are we estopped from saying of any one, this is in the upper ranks, of another, this is in the lower ranks? Within certain limits, yes. Is there no way of telling a good novel when you see one? No, there is not. A good general guide in art, in belles-lettres, in fiction, poetry and drama is this: Those things which have pleased the most people for the longest time are the better. . . The old books, then, which have long been read and enjoyed are probably worth reading again. And of the newer books those are more likely to be worth reading which people with experience, sensitive temperament and brains say are good."

*Light in the clearing. Bobbs
"A story of the 1840's and '50's in northern New York, woven about the career of Silas Wright, a governor of the state. It is permeated with an atmosphere of old-fashioned honesty and morality, and deals with the fortunes of an orphan boy who came under Wright's protection and who was inspired by the older man's ideal of clean politics and service to the people." Pittsburgh

A man for the ages. Bobbs
Story of the youth and early manhood of Lincoln, opening in 1831, and ending in 1847. A concluding chapter in the form of a memoir sketches the later years of Lincoln's life.

Bagnold, Enid

Happy foreigner. Century
"The adventure in love of a young English girl serving in a unit of women drivers for the French Automobile Service, immediately after the Armistice. The book has great charm. It is a love story told with delicacy and intuition, but its ending is in the realistic rather than the romantic spirit." Cleveland

Bailey, Henry Christopher

The highwayman. Dutton
"His wit is more after the manner of Fielding or of Wycherley than of the later and modern historical sentimentalists. 'The highwayman' is a good brisk story for those not too squeamish." Dial 62:403
Scene laid in England in time of Queen Anne.

Bailey, Temple

Contrary Mary. Penn
"How a courageous independent girl helps a man who has lost his faith and his grip to regain his hold on life and love. An old fashioned romance with a background of Washington life." Cleveland

The edition listed is the Centenary edition, translated by Katharine Prescott Wormeley and published by Little at $2 per volume. Another excellent edition is that edited by George Saintsbury and published by Dutton at $2.25 per volume.

Chouans. Little
"Deals with the royalist struggle in Brittany in 1799, and is full of historical and local color." Baker

Country doctor. Little
"In this practical philanthropist, the reformed sinner who becomes a public benefactor, an ideal figure is created, a great soul, unselfish, full of love for man, unconquerably patient." Baker

Cousin Pons. Little
"Exposes the selfishness, vanity, and corruption of Parisian life with relentless realism, in the lower social world of the minor theatres, lodging-house keepers, curiosity shops, poor artists and bohemians. Over against this sordid section of society is set the friendship of two old musicians, the sentimental Schmucke and Cousin Pons. Pons is a virtuoso who, in spite of poverty, has collected a treasury of beautiful things." Baker

*Eugénie Grandet. Little
"The author's best known work. It is the pathetic story of a gentle and long-suffering girl sacrificed first to her father's inhuman avarice, and then to the brutal indifference of love and husband." Pratt alcove

Magic skin [Wild ass's skin].
"An allegory of a miraculous piece of shagreen that gives the owner certain powers of self-gratification, but is also the measure of his life. One of Balzac's highest flights of pure imagination, and one of his gravest commentaries on human life." Baker

*Père Goriot; and Marriage contract. Little
"A wealthy and doting father secures brilliant marriages for his ambitious daughters, and thereafter is impoverished and hastened to his end by their ingratitude and extravagance. The scene at the old man's deathbed is one of the most impressive in fiction." Pratt alcove

Rise and fall of César-Birotteau. Little.
"Career of a perfumer who speculated heavily, was robbed by his associates, and became a bankrupt. Characters are nearly all wholesome." Baker

Bandbox. Vance, L: J.

Bandelier, Adolf F.

Delight makers. Dodd
"Gives a graphic description of life among the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico before the coming of the white man. The [second] edition [published in 1916 with introd. by Charles F. Lummis] is illustrated with photographs of ruins and of types of Indians." Booklist

Banner of the bull. Sabatini, R.

Banning, Margaret Culkin

Half loaves. Doran
"Story of a battle between codes of conduct and methods of education, as represented by two very human women." Pittsburgh

Spellbinders. Doran
"A sympathetic presentation of the problem of the modern woman with absorbing interests outside her home. The story is concerned with four women of different type, the 'spellbinders,' who have undertaken to organize their sisters of a Middle Western town to play an efficient part in politics. It deals chiefly, however, with the readjustments in the life of one of them, Helen Flandron, whose husband, a successful lawyer, is opposed to his wife's independent activities." Cleveland

Bar sinister, and other stories. Davis, R: H.

Barbusse, Henri

Under fire; tr. by F. Wray. Dutton
"An epic of the war ranked as the greatest piece of imaginative war literature produced in France and awarded the Goncourt Prize of 1916. A grimly realistic picture of the dull misery and nastiness of trench warfare." Cleveland

Baroja y Nessi, Pio

Caesar or nothing; tr. from the Spanish. Knopf
"Story of the psychological and political struggle of a young Spanish reformer who dreams of being a sort of superman, but who is defeated by his own spiritual weakness. Interesting as an example of modern Spanish fiction. General tone is pessimistic and sharply critical of existing institutions, especially the Church and State in Spain." Cleveland

City of the discreet. Knopf
"Excellent translation [by J. S. Fassett] of a Spanish 'regional' novel conveying with vividness the native color and flavor of life in the city of Cordova. The story combines the sharp fidelity to detail of realism and the rambling humorous garrulity of the picaresque novel. The hero, son of a Marquis and an innkeeper's daughter, is sent to England to be educated and the plot is concerned with his return to Cordova and life as a reckless young man about town." Cleveland

Barr, Mrs. Amelia E. (H.)

*Bow of orange ribbon. Dodd
"Story of New York in 1756, with a romance between a Dutch maiden and one of King George's officers." Leypoldt & Iles
Followed by The maid of Maiden lane.

Friend Olivia. Dodd
"Historical study of Quaker life in the early days of Cromwell, full of sympathy with puritans and severity toward cavaliers. Cromwell among the dramatis personæ." Baker

*Jan Vedder's wife. Dodd
"Story of the Shetland isles and the primitive inhabitants, descendants of the Norsemen, with sketches of their homely yet picturesque life." Baker

Maid of Maiden lane. Dodd
"Death of Franklin, large influx of French refugees, and division of opinion regarding English rights in the lost colonies, enter into the story. New York city 1791." Baker Sequel to The bow of orange ribbon.

Remember the Alamo. Dodd
"Tale of the revolt of the Americans in Texas against Mexican rule. Davy Crockett Sam Houston and Santa Anna figure prominently." Leypoldt & Iles

Colette Baudoche; tr. by F. W. Huard. Doran
O.P. 1923
"Gives a close, merciless, but not unsympathetic, portraiture of the Pomeranian professor who comes to Teutonize Lorraine and finds himself in the end thrall to the refinement of the civilization which France implanted there." Nation 1909

Barrie, Sir James Matthew

Auld licht idylls. (Uniform ed) Scribner
"Slightly connected character sketches and anecdotes of life in a Presbyterian community in the small market-town of 'Thrums' or Kirriemuir. Ranges from scenes of deep pathos to broad comedy." Baker

*Little minister. (Uniform ed) Scribner
"Love affairs of a Presbyterian minister and a beautiful and sprightly 'Egyptian.' The sketches of character and of Scottish manners and religious sentiments are very humorous." Baker

Little white bird. (Uniform ed) Scribner
"A wayward and eccentric fantasia in which Kensington Gardens is turned into a land of enchantments. The first half tells how an old fogey interests himself in a young couple and becomes a second father to their little boy. Then Peter Pan comes into the story—the little boy that never grew up—and we are launched upon a fairy epic." Baker

Peter and Wendy. (Uniform ed) Scribner
"The play 'Peter Pan' made into a fascinating story, with additions. Only adults can fully appreciate it, but many children will enjoy it." Booklist

*Sentimental Tommy. (Uniform ed)
"A study of a sensitive mobile boy, who passes his life in cloud-castles where he always dramatizes himself as the hero, who has no continuity of purpose and no capacity of self-sacrifice except in spasms of impulse, and in emotional feeling." Pratt alcove
Followed by Tommy and Grizel.

*Tommy and Grizel. (Uniform ed) Scribner
"Later life of 'Sentimental Tommy.' A relentless analysis of the artistic temperament." N. Y. best books

*Taming of Zenas Henry. New ed. Little
"Cheery tale of a Cape Cod fishing hamlet, with its quaint, homely people." Wis. bul.

Bates, Arlo

Philistines. Houghton
"The scene of this novel and its predecessor, The Pagans, is Boston, but the stories are as fanciful as they are realistic. The 'Pagans' are an imaginary coterie of artistic people who are thorough bohemians, united chiefly by the obligation not to descend from the ideals of true art for the sake of gain. In the sequel the deterioration of a renegade is worked out." Baker

The puritans. Houghton
Temporarily out of stock 1923
"The central figures are two young members of a ritualistic Episcopalian order. They are brought into close contact with a society which plays with Persian philosophy, spiritualism and philanthropy." Pittsburgh

Anna of the five towns. Doran
"The 'Five Towns' are a centre of the pottery industry in Staffordshire, England. The interest of the story consists in the clever characterization of some decidedly commonplace people. There is a strong flavor of Methodist revivalism." Pittsburgh

*Buried alive. Doran
"Delicious comedy of manners, relating with unexpected turns of plot how a great English painter, abnormally shy, made use of the death of his valet to escape society's lion-hunting." N. Y. best books

*Clayhanger. Doran
"A story of the Five towns, describing with amplitude of realistic detail and almost uncanny psychological insight, the life of Edwin Clayhanger from his school days to his marriage." N. Y. best books
Followed by Hilda Lessways.

Denry, the audacious. Doran
O.P. 1923
"Also published under the titles 'The deeds of Denry the audacious' and 'The card.' Diverting tale of a young man of the Five Towns whose resourcefulness and instinct for action at critical moments amount to genius." Pittsburgh
Followed by Old Adam, published in the American magazine under the title: The regent.

A great man. Doran
"A satire on the literary tastes of the great majority. The great man is a solicitor's clerk who takes to writing novels, and even becomes a playwright." Baker

*Helen with the high hand. Grosset
"Story in light comedy vein describing the shrewd and obstinate conflict between an extravagant niece and a miserly old uncle." A. L. A. sup.

*Hilda Lessways. Doran Sequel to Clayhanger.
"Relates the history of Hilda Lessways from girlhood to her unfortunate marriage. Excellent as a psychological study but less satisfactory as a novel than its predecessor." Booklist
Followed by These twain.

*Mr. Prohack. Doran
"A delicious exercise in burlesque psychology, being the progress as an idler of a hard-working English treasury official, after he is left £100,000 by a man to whom in a moment of weakness he had lent £100." Cleveland

*Old wives' tale. Doran
"A faithful piece of realism describing the commonplace, sordid life of a small English industrial town with keen observation, convincing psychology, and a somewhat grim humor." Pratt alcove

Roll-call. Doran
O.P. 1923
"George Cannon, son of Hilda Lessways of the Clayhanger series, is the hero. Story relates the young man's progress as an architect in London, his love affairs and enlistment at the outbreak of the war." N. Y. best books

*These twain. Doran

"A study of the period of adjustment in the marriage of Edwin Clayhanger and Hilda Lessways, recording the frictions and antagonisms which are inevitable in the relations of two such widely differing personalities, but which, in their case are neutralized by real love and Edwin's finally attained philosophy which recognizes without bitterness that life is a continual compromise with injustice. The story is more exhaustive in its psychology than Hilda Lessways but has not Clayhanger's rich variety of interest." Cleveland

Sequel to Hilda Lessways.

Bennett, John

Madame Margot. Century

Invisible event. Doran

O.P. 1923

"Carries the hero to a point which might be looked upon as a successful culmination of his career, but which is in reality only a starting point. He has found in Betty Gale, who defies convention for his sake, the right mate. He has succeeded as an author, yet he still feels himself at the beginning of life, still looks upon himself as 'a candidate for truth.'" Book rev. digest

Sequel to A candidate for truth.

Jervaise comedy. Macmillan

"A young English playwright pays a week-end visit to a country family and changes from spectator to active participant in an intended elopement. A light story, very different from Mr. Beresford's other work, and unremarkable except for its style, charming alike in conversation and description." Cleveland

*Prisoners of Hartling. Macmillan

"A tense study of malign influence in which a cunning old tyrant of ninety holds an assorted group of relatives in thrall to his every whim by supplying material comforts and holding out expectations of a legacy on his death." Cleveland

These Lynnekers. Doran

"Delightful and interesting study of family character. 'These Lynnekers' are conservative, provincial people lacking originality of thought and action. The youngest son is an exception to the family type; he thinks for himself, acts frankly, and usually, as his family would say, tactlessly, but is the only really successful one of them all." Carries the story of Keith Wellander from his fifteenth to his twenty-fifth year, when he sails for America. As a small child Keith "formed a picture of life as a passage through an endless succession of walls." Loneliness, parental restraint, religious questionings, irksome work, stirrings of sex, these were the walls Keith faced. Sequel to Soul of a child.

Soul of a child. Knopf

"Analytical study of the thoughts and emotions of a small boy who lived in Stockholm, in the latter part of the 19th century, from his fifth to his fifteenth year." N. Y. times

"As a narrative of adolescence, it is honest and inclusive, without being morbid." Dial 73: 233

Björnson, Björnstjerne

Each volume of this edition contains a bibliographical note of editions in Norwegian and in various translations, including English; volume 1 contains a valuable critical study of Björnson's novels by the general editor, Edmund Gosse. Translators are Edmund Gosse, Mrs. William Archer, Julie Sutter, Elizabeth Carmichael, Mary Morison, and Cecil Fairfax.

*Arne. Macmillan

"Primitive, unsophisticated people, and simple ways of life and thought, portrayed in a transparent style, with much of the poetic atmosphere and glamour of the North." Baker

Fisher-maiden. Macmillan
O.P. 1923
"Typically Norse in characters, manners, and ideas. Life of a wayward girl of humble origin, who is seized with an ambition to go on the stage." Baker

*Happy boy. Macmillan
"Simple record of the growth, love, ambition, and final success of a peasant, with faithful delineations of country life." Baker

Synnovè Solbakken; with an essay on Björnson by Edmund Gosse. Macmillan
"Begins a series of short, simple stories of peasant life in Norway, in which Björnson won his first fame. This pastoral describes the refining of a rough and passionate youth by the influence of a pure love." Baker

Black, Alexander

Great desire. Harper
"Self-told tale of a hunchback philosopher's sojourn in New York in quest of the primal desire of humanity. His quest is interrupted by a love affair." Cleveland
"A strange book with the charm of very uncommon power." W: D. Howells

Black, William

Daughter of Heth. Harper
"Hero, a dare-devil but manly boy, son of a Presbyterian minister; heroine, his cousin, a half French girl, whose sunny and refined character contrasts and clashes with the rigid puritanism of the northern village." Baker

Judith Shakespeare. Harper
"Faithful study of manners and customs in England 300 years ago; a daughter of Shakespeare, the heroine." Sargent

Kilmeny. Harper

Princess of Thule. Harper
"Scenes, Isle of Skye and London. The wonderful colors and changes of sea and sky and mountain inspire many descriptive pages." Baker

Strange adventures of a phaeton. Harper
"Coaching tour from London to Edinburgh through the loveliest scenery of England. Plenty of bright and sentimental dialogue." Baker

Black arrow. Stevenson, R. L:

Black bag. Vance, L: J.

Black Bartlemy's treasure. Farnol, J.

Black Caesar's clan. Terhune, A. P.

Black tulip. Dumas, A.

Blackmore, Richard Doddridge

*Lorna Doone (Dooneland ed.) Harper
"A romantic love-story of Exmoor and the North Devon coast, picturing rude life in the secluded valleys and wild moorlands of the west of England." Pratt alcove
Time circa 1673-87.

Perlycross. Harper
"Scenes of rural life in eastern Devon just before the 1832 reform bill." Baker

Springhaven. Harper
"A tale of the contemplated invasion of England by Napoleon in 1805. Both Napoleon and Nelson appear on the scene." Pittsburgh

Blackwood, Algernon

Bright messenger. Dutton
"Story of the occult in which one of the characters attempts to explain a strange case of dual personality by psychoanalysis." Booklist

Day and night stories. Dutton
Contents: The tryst; The touch of Pan; The wings of Horus; A bit of wood; Initiation; A desert episode; Transition; The other wing; The occupant of the room; Cain's atonement; An Egyptian hornet; By water; H. S. H.; The tradition; A victim of higher space.
"A collection of short psychological studies." Pratt

Garden of survival. Dutton
"Written on the thesis that though the dead do not return, that which was beautiful and sincere in their lives continues to manifest itself in new understanding on the part of those who are left." Pittsburgh

John Silence, physician extraordinary. Dutton
Contents: A psychical invasion; Ancient sorceries; The nemesis of fire; Secret worship; The camp of the dog.
"The 'psychic doctor,' possessed of a magnetic force which draws men to him and gives him an intuition which is almost second sight, dominates these five distinct stories." Pittsburgh

Prisoner in fairyland. Macmillan
"A delightfully fantastic and elusive little tale which carries the message of the unity of humanity in the common impulse of sympathy and helpful kindness." Cleveland

The wave. Dutton
"By implication rather than by any plain statement, the young Englishman who is the hero of the story is represented as the reincarnation of a Syrian slave who lived in 3000 B.C. His experiences parallel those of his Syrian prototype who loved an Egyptian queen, except that the modern youth's do not end in tragedy." Cleveland
"A strange and unusual book, full of insight and imagination." Sat. rev.

Blaker, Richard

Voice in the wilderness. Doran
"How an English musical genius, hampered on the creative side by unfortunate domestic conditions, finds vicarious self-expression by setting his daughter free for a musical career and eventually, a creative outlet for himself in playwriting. The turn of fate which again thwarts him, turns the slow-moving, ironic chronicle into a tragedy." Cleveland

Blanco-Fombona, Rufino

Man of gold; authorized translation. Brentano's
"A powerful realistic novel depicting private weakness and vice and public corruption in modern Venezuela. The characters are reminiscent of Balzac; the presentation is clear-cut and without exaggeration." Cleveland
"The author is one of the foremost Spanish-American modernists." Translator's preface

Blasco Ibañez, Vicente

Blood and sand; tr. from the Spanish. Dutton
"Depicts in the most vividly imaginable style the sport of the bull fight in Spain with all its appeal to the populace and all of its sickening horrors." Wis. bul.

The cabin. Knopf
"An indictment in the form of a strong realistic novel, of the medieval cruelty and fanaticism of the peasants of Valencia. The introduction by Dr. F. H. Snow is a valuable essay on the Spanish 'regional' novel and its mission of social regeneration." Cleveland

*Four horsemen of the Apocalypse. Dutton
"An interpretation of German and French psychology through the reactions of the two branches of a wealthy Argentinian family, who settle respectively in France and Germany before the war. A powerful and well-written novel, giving detailed pictures of French mobilization, the German occupation of Northern France, trench fighting, etc., and enlarging on contrasting views of humanity, liberty, culture and international relations. The author is one of the best-known of modern Spanish realistic writers. His 'four horsemen' are War, Pestilence, Famine and Death." Cleveland

Mare nostrum; authorized translation. Dutton
"The mythology and history of the Mediterranean form the rich background for a war novel whose main character, a sea captain, supplies petrol to the German submarines at the instigation of an alluring woman." Booklist

Shadow of the cathedral; with a critical introd. by W. D. Howells. Dutton
"It is in fact a sort of biography of the mighty fane at Toledo, as if the edifice were of human quality and could have its life expressed in human terms. There is nothing forced in the poetic conception, or mechanical in the execution. The Cathedral is not only a single life; it is a neighborhood, a city, a world in itself; and its complex character appears in the nature of the different souls which collectively animate it. The book is intensely anti-ecclesiastical, but not in anywise Protestant. One of the fullest and richest books in modern fiction, worthy to rank with the greatest Russian work and beyond anything yet done in English." W: D. Howells in the Introduction

Bojer, Johann

Face of the world; tr. from the Norwegian by Jessie Muir. Century
"The story of a young physician obsessed with the idea of bearing the burden of the world's troubles, who eventually sees the necessity of limiting his sympathies." Pittsburgh

*God and woman; tr. from the Norwegian. Century
Temporarily out of stock 1923
"Story of the rise to property and dignity and the pitiful decline of a humble Norwegian couple. The theme is the futility of toil and acquisition where there are no children. Clean cut and rather austere, but not cold; it touches universal human nature at many points. There are many beautiful bits of description in the subdued tones of the Northern landscape." Cleveland

*The great hunger; tr. by W. J. A. Worster and C. Archer. Century
"Story of Peer Holm, whose soul's hunger for the divine on earth attains its goal, not through his fight for education, his success as a master engineer, his happiness in love, but through disaster, suffering and sacrifice." Pittsburgh

Last of the vikings. Century
"Epic of the sea, depicting the fisherman's endless struggle for life in the icy, northern waters and the tireless waiting and toiling of the women at home. Appeared in Century." Booklist

Life; tr. by Jessie Muir. Century
"The atmosphere of the book is full of the joy of living—outdoor sport, skiing, etc., but always overshadowed by the gloom of Astrid's home life. Naturally all sunshine and laughter, she is depressed by her degenerate father's sinister influence upon her family, and though she seems to escape fate in her marriage, she broods more and more upon her mother's suicide until she finally follows in her footsteps." Cleveland

Power of a lie; tr. by Jessie Muir. Century
"This novel gives us the thesis, forcibly presented, that a lie betraying a friend and a life of deception need not harden and degrade but even soften and expand the liar's heart." Times [London] lit. sup.

Treacherous ground; tr. by Jessie Muir. Century
"The story of a wealthy landowner who tries to save his soul and expiate past sins by settling the peasants of his estate on farms. The attempt ends in tragedy." Pittsburgh

Boldrewood, Rolf, pseud.

Robbery under arms. Macmillan
"Life and adventure in the bush and in the goldfields of Australia." Subtitle

Bonaventure. Cable, G: W.

Bone, David William

Brassbounder. Dutton
"A Scottish sailor apprentice on board an old-time square-rigged sailing vessel describes in the sailor man's slangy vernacular a voyage from Scotland round the Horn to 'Frisco Bay and back." Cleveland
"More study than narrative but has moments of fine pathos and scenes that shiver the timbers." Bookman

"Broken stowage." Dutton
"Miscellaneous collection of sea tales and sketches. Title taken from seaman's term for odds and ends of freight used to fill up corners and hold the cargo tight." Book rev. digest

Boniface, Joseph Xavier. See Saintine, X. B., pseud.

Book of short stories. Sherman, S. P., ed.

Book of Susan. Dodd, L. W.

Book of wonder. Dunsany, E: J:

Booth, Edward Charles

Fondie. Appleton
"Interest lies in character rather than plot. The theme is the devotion to the vicar's hoydenish headstrong daughter of Fondie, son of the village wheelwright, a youth so simple and unworldly that he is the village protype of the 'Guileless Fool.'" Cleveland

Bordeaux, Henry

The awakening. Dutton
"Records the awakening of a young wife whose coldness and failure to react to any of her husband's interests have sent him elsewhere for inspiration and comfort. A story of French provincial life centering as is usual in Bordeaux' stories around the sacred and binding nature of the relations which constitute the home." Cleveland

*Fear of living. Dutton
"A middle-aged French woman whose joy of living is all behind her and to whom there remains little but memory, thankfulness and submission, is made the heroine of a remarkable story, in which the author exposes the cowardice and selfishness of the men and women of the present generation in France in avoiding the responsibilities and duties of life." Booklist
Crowned by the French Academy.

The house; tr. by Louise Seymour Houghton. Duffield
O.P. 1923
"Story of a French family in the mountains bordering on Switzerland. One member of the family is guilty of murder and as the others learn of his guilt they one by one desert the home that has been theirs for generations, until the old saying is fulfilled, 'dead fire, dead family.' A tragic but beautiful story." Wis. bul.

*House that died. Duffield
"A tender and beautiful picture of life in a French country household wherein the conflicting ideals of individualism and the good of family and race strive for mastery." Cleveland

Borough treasurer. Fletcher, J. S.

Borrow, George Henry

*Lavengro. Putnam
"Borrow's early autobiography, with a veil of mystery purposely thrown over it. Describes his wanderings over the three kingdoms, checkered with strange adventures, his literary struggles in London, vagrancy with the gypsies, etc." Baker

Romany rye. Putnam
"Bibliography of editor's sources, p. 393-403. Goes on with the story (Lavengro) exactly as if there had been no breaking off." Baker

Bosher, Mrs. Kate (Langley)

*Mary Cary, "frequently Martha." Harper
"The story in diary form of a precocious but lovable child in a female orphan asylum. Her later history is given in 'Miss Gibbie Gault.'" A. L. A. sup.

Miss Gibbie Gault. Harper
"Further history of Mary Cary, who on her return as a young woman to the town of her childhood becomes a leader in its betterment. Miss Gibbie Gault, a right-minded but very original and pronounced spinster, is her fast friend." Booklist

Boss of Little Arcady. Wilson, H. L.

Boss of the Lazy Y. Seltzer, C. A.

Bostonians. James, H:

Bottome, Phyllis

Dark tower. Century
"Story of an English officer who marries the wrong woman and then meets the right one. The outbreak of the war calls him from Switzerland, where he is seeking relief for lung trouble; and extrication comes on the battlefield in the release of death." Pittsburgh
Appeared in a condensed form in the Century magazine, v. 92.

*Second fiddle. Century
"Well-written love story of a war cripple. Good characterization and clever conversation more than redeem a familiar plot." N. Y. best books

A servant of reality. Century
"A once self assured and competent surgeon returns from a German prison shaken and nerveless from suffering. His agony is completed, but also cured by his love for a heartless flirt. Characterization and plot are unusual and compelling. Appeared in the Century. For sophisticated readers." Booklist

Victim; and The worm. Doran
"In the first story the father of two daughters chooses to become the victim of his own sagacity rather than witness the wrecking of his younger daughter's happiness at the hands of the elder. The second story describes with much humor the involuntary triumph of the least of her pupils over Miss Onoria Strickland, the music teacher, who ruled her small world by tolerating no nonsense in herself or others and always did what was 'the most sensible thing to do.'" Book rev. digest

Bourget, Paul

Night cometh. Putnam
"In a military hospital in Paris two men are called on to face death—a young officer who is a type of the old chivalric Catholicism, and a distinguished surgeon, who is quite without religious belief. The story contrasts the moral fulness of the one death with the stoical but barren distress of the other." Pittsburgh

Bow of orange ribbon. Barr, Mrs. A. E.

Bowen, Marjorie, pseud.

God and the king. Dutton
"Follows the career of William of Orange from the time of his marriage to Mary Stuart till his death." Pittsburgh
Sequel to I will maintain.

I will maintain. Dutton
"Historical novel, with William of Orange and John de Witt as the chief characters. The story deals with the political rivalry of the two men and culminates in the downfall and death of De Witt." Pittsburgh
Followed by God and the King.

"Story of the battle between loyal cowpunchers and a party of Eastern homesteaders who come to Montana to file claim on Flying U grazing lands." Cleveland
Sequel to Chip of the Flying U.

*Skyrider. Little
"Exciting 'moving picture' novel, combining the cowboy and aviator motives." Booklist
Followed by Thunder bird.

Boy grew older. Broun, H.

Boy Woodburn. Ollivant, A.

Boyce, Neith (Mrs. Hutchins Hapgood)

Proud lady. Knopf
"Story of opposing temperaments with a background of small-town life in the Middle West in the years immediately following the Civil war. At the end Mary Carlin, faced with the prospect of her husband's death, comes to realize how far her self-righteousness and lack of sympathetic understanding has been responsible for the failure of their marriage." Book rev. digest

Boyd, Thomas

Through the wheat. Scribner
"It has remained for Thomas Boyd to write the least partisan and the most brilliant of doughboy reminiscences. Mr. Boyd has recorded as nearly as he can recall it, and without grinding an axe or proving a thesis, the physical and spiritual progress (or it is retrogression?) of a normal youth, an enlisted man in the marines, neither holier nor viler than the run of his comrades." Brontë, Charlotte

*Jane Eyre. (Haworth ed) Harper
"Life history of a woman of strong and original character, whose plain face was an innovation among heroines. Largely autobiographic, not so much in incident as in the strong and passionate expression of personal feeling, of revolt from social conventions and of questioning of narrow religious dogmas. One of the greatest novels inspired by the theme of self-realization." Baker

The professor. (Haworth ed) Harper
"A first study for Villette. Scene, the same pensionnat at Brussels, where a pair of unworldly characters, the innocent heroine and the Professor advance from sympathy to love." Baker
Also contains poems.

Shirley. (Haworth ed) Harper
"Autobiographical to a large extent, the external incidents revolving round the home life of a Yorkshire millowner who suffers in the riots occasioned by the Orders in Council restricting trade during the great French war. The proud and passionate Shirley was drawn from [Charlotte's] sister Emily." Baker

Villette. (Haworth ed) Harper
"Founded on Miss Brontë's experience as a teacher in a school in Brussels. The original ending of Villette was so painful to the public that a paragraph was added in subsequent editions which suggests a mitigation of tragedy." Leypoldt & Iles

Brontë, Emily

*Wuthering heights. (Haworth ed) Harper
"A wild tale of terror and hatred among the rough people of the Yorkshire moors. The solitary novel of the sister of Charlotte Brontë. It is a work of true genius, and is considered by many critics the most brilliant contribution of the gifted Brontë sisters." Pratt alcove

Brooks, Charles S.

Luca Sarto. Century
"A swash-buckling romance set in fifteenth century Paris in the reign of Louis XI, and related in a quaint phraseology full of color and metaphor." Cleveland

Brothers Karamazov. Dostoevskii, F. M.

Broun, Heywood

Boy grew older. Putnam
"The editor of [a] glorified sport column marries Maria Algarez, a Spanish dancer, who deserts him after the birth of their son, leaving the upbringing of the boy to the young father. The story is told with startling candor, and at times rather bald simplicity, with rich humour and seemingly involuntary pathos." Cleveland

Brown, Alice

Bromley neighborhood. Macmillan
"A New England story, dealing with a mother and two sons in their relations to a hard tyrannical husband and father. Excellent in character drawing." Cleveland

Country neighbors. Houghton
Temporarily out of stock 1923
Contents: The play house; His first wife; A flower of April; The auction; Saturday night; A grief deferred; The challenge; Partners; Flowers of Paradise; Gardener Jim; The silver tea-set; The other Mrs. Dill; The advocate; The masquerade; A poetess in spring; The master minds of history.

"Simple love stories distinguished by keen delineation of character." Cleveland

The Mannerings. Houghton
"Story of a small group of cultivated people in a New England town, including an ill-matched husband and wife and two interesting pairs of lovers. More character study than incident." Pittsburgh

Margaret Warrener. Houghton
"A story of Bohemian life among Boston artists." Pittsburgh

*Meadow-grass. Houghton
Contents: Number five; Farmer Eli's vacation; After all; Told in the poorhouse; Heman's ma; Heartsease; Mis' Wadleigh's guest; A righteous bargain; Joint owners in Spain; At Sudleigh fair; Bankrupt; Nancy Boyd's last sermon; Strollers in Tiverton.
"Short tales of New England village life, characterized by a joyous, outdoor spirit and a keen delight in the open air." Baker

*Old Crow. Macmillan
"A penetrating study of New England character, concerned especially with the soul progress of Richard Powell, and how it was helped, or hindered by three women: Anna, his first wife whose masterfulness handicaps him even from her grave; the youthful Nan, lovely of soul and body; and Tira who looked like an old master's vision of the Virgin, yet exercised that 'ancient lure that makes men mad.'" Cleveland

The prisoner. Macmillan
"Story of the life of a young man in a conservative New England town after he has served several years in a Federal prison." Pittsburgh

Story of Thyrza. Houghton
"Pathetic story of an imaginative girl who is betrayed, and has to earn her son's bread as a sempstress." Baker

*Tiverton tales. Houghton
Contents: Dooryards; A March wind; The mortuary chest; Horn-o'-the moon, A stolen festival; A last assembling; The way of peace; The experience of Hannah Prime; Honey and myrrh; A second marriage; The flat-iron lot; The end of all living.

Christopher Hibbault, roadmaker. Duffield
"A story of a peculiar charm and originality. It follows the fortunes of a poor English boy who is adopted by a wealthy nobleman's son. The plot is secondary to the growth and development of character in the hero and his adopted father." Vermont lib. com.

Buchan, John

*Greenmantle. Doran
"A good adventure story of the European war dealing with the work of English secret service agents in Constantinople. The object of their mission is to foil an attempt of the Germans to stir up a holy war in the East." Pittsburgh
"The fact that the author wrote it while in active service accounts for the vividness of some of its details." Cleveland

*Huntingtower. Doran
"Thrilling and romantic adventures of a retired grocer, a young poet and a band of urchins from the Glasgow slums." Book rev. digest

*Mr. Standfast. Doran
O.P. 1923
"The hero of Greenmantle is again at work for the British Intelligence Service, trailing from Skye to Switzerland, the German arch plotter of Thirty-nine steps. A skilfully handled, rapid-fire adventure story." Cleveland

*Thirty-nine steps. Doran
O.P. 1923
"An ante-bellum mystery story in which the English hero, in order to foil an international conspiracy, incurs the suspicion of murder and exposes himself to the double risk of capture by the police and assassination by the members of a powerful and relentless secret society." Cleveland
"Modeled on the 'shilling shocker' but distinguished by just that quality of literary amenity which the shocker conspicuously lacks." Spectator

Buckrose, J. E., pseud.

*Down our street: a provincial comedy. Putnam
"Charming sketches of the quiet lives of the dwellers in an English seaport town." Pratt

Girl in fancy dress. Doran
O.P. 1923
"A wealthy girl is mistaken for a country cousin by a family of middle class snobs. She allows the mistake to go on, involving herself thereby in many complications." Pittsburgh

*Gossip shop. Doran
O.P. 1923
"An English story on the theme of the harm gossip can cause in a small town. Ends well, and is full of delightfully characteristic dialogue and quaint humor." Cleveland

Knight among ladies. Doran
"Sir Francis Holt is ordered by his physician to seek some quiet country spot where he can recuperate from his war labors. How, acting on this advice, he finds himself in the midst of many ladies of rural English society makes a sprightly comedy." Cleveland

Builders, The. Glasgow, E. A.

Bullard, Arthur

The stranger. Macmillan
"A scholar of American parentage but born in Morocco and educated a Mohammedan, comes to New York and makes friends with a group of sociologists and artists containing two contrasting types of womanhood, Helen, the vigorous and practical financial secretary of welfare associations, and Eunice, an invalid artist. A beautiful love idyll and a stimulating picture of contrasting ideals and manners of Orient and Occident." Cleveland

Bulwer-Lytton, E. G. E. L., baron Lytton

The Caxtons. 2v Little
"A novel of manners in form of family memoirs by the hero. Philanthropic and philosophic didacticism pervades it. The scenes of high society and of political life are the most important." Baker

Harold, the last of the Saxons. Little
"The tragic history of Harold's fall; elaborate descriptions of battles of Stamford Bridge and Hastings and of English life in the eleventh century; accurate historically." Baker

*Last days of Pompeii. Little
"Reconstruction of the luxurious Roman society of first century of Christian era, founded on careful study of Latin literature and of Pompeian antiquities, and on observation of modern manners and character." Baker

Last of the barons. Page
"Tragic narrative, aiming at characteristic effects of Greek drama, the subject being Warwick the King-maker and his strife with Edward IV. The battle of Barnet (1471) represented at length." Baker

Rienzi. Page
"Study of an important period of Italian history and a striking picture of the Roman populace of the 14th century." Pittsburgh

Gentleman from San Francisco and other stories. Seltzer
Contents: The gentleman from San Francisco; Gentle breathing; Kasimir Stanislavovitch; Son.
"One of the greatest short stories of our age, and perhaps the only great story which is truly modern in the sense that it gives a synthesis of existence under aspects which never existed before the end of the nineteenth century." J. M. Murry in London Nation and Athenæum
Translated by D. H. Lawrence, S. S. Koteliansky, Leonard Woolf.

Bunner, H. C.
"He is one of the few writers who helps us to remember the old landmarks of New York that were long since swept away. For pathos, for charm, insight, natural grace and sentiment, Bunner is still unequaled by the writers of the younger generation." Rev. of revs. 54:123 Jl '16

*More "Short sixes," and The runaway Browns. Scribner
Contents: More "short sixes:" The cumbersome horse; Mr. Vincent Egg and the wage of sin; The ghoolah; Cutwater of Seneca; Mr. Wick's aunt; What Mrs. Fortescue did; "The man with the pink pants;" The third figure in the cotillion; "Samantha Boom-de-ay;" My dear Mrs. Billington. The runaway Browns.

*"Short sixes": stories to be read while the candle burns; and The suburban sage. Scribner
Contents: "Short sixes:" The tenor; Col. Brereton's aunty; A round-up; The two churches of 'Quawket; The love-letters of Smith; Zenobia's infidelity; The nine-cent-girls; The nice people; Mr. Copernicus and the proletariat; Hector; A sisterly scheme; Zozo; An old, old story. The Suburban Sage.

Stories: first series. Scribner
Contents: The story of a New York house; The midge; Jersey and Mulberry; Tiemann's to Tubby Hook; The bowery and Bohemia; The story of a path; The lost child; A letter to town.

Stories: second series. Scribner
Contents: Love in old cloathes; A letter and a paragraph; "As one having authority;" Crazy wife's ship; French for a fortnight; The red silk handkerchief; Our aromatic uncle; The Zadoc Pine labor union; Natural selection; Casperl; A second-hand story; Mrs. Tom's spree; Squire Five-Fathom.
"The place that Bunner holds in the history of the American short story is secure, and is much the same place as that held by Aldrich, Cable and Stockton. In these two volumes, we have the inimitable 'Love in old cloathes,' probably the best short story ever written in epistolary form." Nation 103:159 Ag 17 '16

Contents: The Chink and the child; The father of Yoto; Gracie Goodnight; The paw; The cue; Beryl, the Croucher and the rest of England; The sign of the lamp; Tai Fu and Pansy Greers; The bird; Gina of the Chinatown; The knight-errant; The gorilla and the girl; Ding-Dong-Dell; Old Joe.
"Heartrending tales of human frailties and vengeance in London's Chinese quarter." Pittsburgh

Burnett, Mrs. Frances (Hodgson)

*Head of the house of Coombe. Stokes
"The love-romance of two children, related with delicacy and charm, and interwoven with a rather melodramatic tale of the doings of their elders. The head of the House of Coombe is a Rochesterian gentleman who has, mysteriously made himself responsible for little Robin's care and upbringing and the support of her heartless and gossamer-minded young mother." Cleveland

In connection with the De Willoughby claim. Scribner
"Country life in Tennessee about time of Civil war (1861)." Baker

Secret garden. Stokes
"Story of a lonely, unhappy little girl who finds a secret garden and through contact with growing things and under the guidance of a peasant boy who is a friend of all creatures of the woods and fields, grows into a strong happy child." Herbert

The shuttle. Grosset
"Story of an American girl who sells herself for a title and finds her experience dearly bought." Keller

Burnett, Frances H.—Continued

*T. Tembarom. Century
"A melodramatic story of a struggling young New York reporter who inherits a great English estate. Charmingly written though overstocked with American slang." N. Y. best books
Appeared in the Century magazine, v. 85-87.

*That lass o' Lowrie's. Scribner
"Story of the author's native Lancashire. Loving and thoroughly realistic portraiture of the humble life of the working classes." Baker

Burning daylight. London, J.

Burt, Maxwell Struthers

John O'May, and other stories. Scribner
"Seven short stories of unusual personalities, analytical studies of 'gentlemen unafraid' in widely contrasting places. Told with emotional tension and a masterly use of words. All are imbued with the spirit of romance, but in a rather subtle and intangible form. Appeared in the Century." Cleveland

But yet a woman. Hardy, A. S.

Butler, Samuel

Erewhon; introd. by Francis Hackett. Dutton
"Written before Bulwer's 'The coming race' but published after it in 1872. A fabled account of the author's visit to Erewhon, a land shut off from the rest of the world and inhabited by a curious race. Essentially a satire on human foibles. Excellently written." St. Louis

Erewhon revisited twenty years later; introd. by Moreby Acklom. Dutton
"In this sequel, the son of the discoverer of Erewhon tells the story of his father's return in 1898 to that mysterious country behind the mountains, to find that the Erewhonians have deified him as a child of the sun. Not so sustained a satire on modern life and thought as Erewhon, but entertaining, regarded as an adventure story of the Rider Haggard type." Cleveland

Way of all flesh; introd. by W. Lyon Phelps. Dutton
"Humorously cynical story of several generations of an English family. Its satire is chiefly levelled at certain methods of bringing up children and false ideas of respectability." Pittsburgh

Butler's story. Train, A. C.

Buttered side down. Ferber, E.

Byng, Lucy, tr.

Roumanian stories. Lane
"Picturesque glimpses of widely varied phases of modern Roumanian life, somewhat sad and touched with Eastern fatalism, but distinguished by poetic feeling. The preface is by the Queen of Roumania." Cleveland

Agnes Surriage. Houghton
"Love romance of colonial times, based on story of Sir Charles Henry Frankland." Baker

Begum's daughter. Houghton
O.P. 1923
"First published in the Atlantic monthly, v. 63-65. A tale of New Amsterdam in 1689. The episode of the Leisler rebellion in New York is included." Pittsburgh

Byrne, Donn

Messer Marco Polo. Century
"Story of Marco Polo of Venice as it should have been and his love for Golden Bells, the beautiful daughter of Kubla Khan. He is appointed by the pope to go to China at the request of Kubla Khan to explain the mysteries of Christianity, but his only convert is Golden Bells." Booklist
"A very magically beautiful book." J. B. Cabell

Cabbages and kings. Henry, O.

Cabell, James Branch

Cream of the jest, a comedy of evasions. McBride
"The pendulum of the story swings between the two existences of Felix Kennaston. In one, as Kennaston, he lives a life that 'his body is shuffling through aimlessly.' But as Horvendile, the hero of his own book, the dreamer, 'he lives among such gallant circumstances as he had always hoped his real life might provide to-morrow.' The delicacy of touch and the classic atmosphere of the dream episodes give charm and distinction to the tale." Book rev. digest

Rivet in grandfather's neck, a comedy of limitations. McBride
"Mr. Cabell has attempted to dissect your old-fashioned Southern gentleman—and then put him together again, turn him inside out, and yet keep him a hero." Nation 101:600 N 18 '15

Cable, George W.

Bonaventure. Scribner
"Idyllic love-story, with humour in the character-sketches of the Acadians exiled in Louisiana; central theme, ethical, the development of a saintly character from a nature originally selfish." Baker

The cavalier. Scribner
"A complicated romance by a sympathizer with the Confederates. Several stirring chapters of fighting in Mississippi; but the principal interest is in the character-drawing." Baker

*Dr. Sevier. Scribner
Story of the struggle of a young married pair in New Orleans before the Civil war. Interest lies in the development of character rather than in plot. Full of local color.

*The Grandissimes. Scribner
"Romance of New Orleans and its creole inhabitants a century ago." Baker

John March, southerner. Scribner
"Story of reconstruction in the South. The rapid career of various financial companies, intrigues, quarrels, fights, and final collapse make a vigorous story." Baker

*Old creole days. Scribner
Contents: Madame Delphine; Café des exilés; Belles demoiselles plantation; Posson Jone; Jean-ah Pouquelin; Tite Poulette; 'Sieur George; Madame Délicieuse.

Cahan, Abraham

Rise of David Levinsky. Harper

A Russian Jew who came to America in 1885, at the age of 20, tells his own story. About 80 pages deal with ghetto life in Russia, the rest with America.

"The tale of Levinsky is, incidentally, the tale of the cloak industry in this country; of the methods by which a dominating personality achieves his financial success. It is written with a clarity that is French, a chaste realism that is Russo-Yiddish, and a deep human insight that renders it universal." I: Goldberg in N. Y. call p15 S 23 '17

Caine, Hall

The deemster. Burt

"An essay in the prose epic as conceived by Victor Hugo, rather than a novel. Scene, the Isle of Man, 1775." Baker

The Manxman. Appleton

A romantic tale of love, treachery and remorse. Scene, the Isle of Man.

Caine, William

Strangeness of Noel Carton. Putnam

"Two stories so interwoven as to be indistinguishable apart, both written in the first person by Noel Carton. One is his journal and the other, the novel, he writes because his wife has said he couldn't do it." Book rev. digest

"Not every reader is likely to enjoy this grim mixture of realism and fantasy, but it is impossible to deny the power with which it is written." Times [London] lit. sup.

Cannan, Gilbert

Annette and Bennett. Seltzer

Tale of the marriage of the young couple of Round the corner. James Lawrie of The stucco house figures prominently in the story.

Mendel, a story of youth. Doran

"Mendel is a young Austrian Jew, transplanted to London as a child. His development from the sensuality and egoism of an exuberantly vitalized youth to the poise of matured powers, is shaped and held in line by his everpresent vision of himself as a great painter. The book is unreserved, but the naturalism is subordinated to the fine characterization of a Jew and an artist, and therein Cannan does for his Genius what Theodore Dreiser fails to do for his; that is, he gets above the merely material plane and shows how lower values are transmuted into higher." Cleveland

*Round the corner. Seltzer

"A book for those who demand of a novel that it be in some measure a 'criticism of life.' It is at once a study in heredity and in the clash of conflicting temperaments of the members of one family—that of the Reverend Francis Folyat. There are eight Folyat children all of whom in various ways make failures of their lives. It is only Serge, the eldest son, who runs away as a boy to return a man and a philosopher who ever learns anything of the real meaning of life, and it is thru Serge that the father learns something of it too." Book rev. digest

The stucco house. Doran

O.P. 1923

"A link between the earlier stories, 'Three sons and a mother' and 'Round the corner.' Describes the gloomy downward course of an idealistic Scotchman in a Lancashire town. He is at odds with the sordid industrialism of the place and finds all his ambitions thwarted by the narrow prejudices of his wife." Pittsburgh

*Three sons and a mother. Doran

English title: Three pretty men.

"A Scotch widow bringing up her five children on ninety pounds a year moves her family to an English manufacturing town in order that her three sons may make their way in the world. The story is the record of how Tom and John, born business men, 'get on' and how James, a temperament in revolt, does not. The author's insight into human nature is keen, but he feels an artistic antipathy for the environment in which he places his people (Manchester in the '60's)." Cleveland

"Appeared in 'McClure's magazine,' v. 38, under the title 'Alexander's masquerade.'" Pittsburgh

*My Antonia. Houghton
"Story is told by a New York lawyer who reviews his Nebraska boyhood days and his friendship with a young Bohemian girl, the strong and simple Antonia Shimerda, who is the central figure of the novel. A convincing picture of pioneering conditions and of America's assimilation of the immigrant, and a fine portrayal of character." N. Y. best books
"Among the best of our recent interpretations of American life." Nation

*O pioneers! Houghton
"Walt Whitman's 'Pioneers, O pioneers!' furnished the title, and something of Whitman's vision inspired the book. It is a story of Swedes, Bohemians and French winning the almost untamable Nebraska prairie land in the face of difficulties and inexperience. The land itself, 'the Divide,' is made almost a character in the narrative and supplies that sense of conflict with the elemental forces of life which is essential to real tragedy. It is written with sympathy and power, compactly and with perfect restraint." Pittsburgh

*One of ours. Knopf
"A spiritual biography of a young American brought up on a Nebraska farm, with a mediocre education, married to a prim and passionless wife, living a life which he could not make seem real until the war saved him and gave him something big to do that seemed worth doing." Pittsburgh
Pulitzer prize novel for 1923.

*Song of the lark. Houghton
"Follows the development of a crude Swedish girl from her childhood in a Colorado desert town to her success as a great opera singer. A story reproducing faithfully and with great naturalness, character as developed in places and situations which are distinctively American." Cleveland

Youth and the bright Medusa. Knopf
Contents: Coming, Aphrodite! The diamond mine; A gold slipper; Scandal; Paul's case; A Wagner matinée; The sculptor's funeral; "A death in the desert."

The darling, and other stories; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan Contents: The darling; Tolstoy's criticism on The darling; Ariadne; Polinka; Anyuta; The two Volodyas; The trousseau; The helpmate; Talent; An artist's story; Three years.
"Two of these stories, 'The trousseau' and 'The two Volodyas,' have appeared in other collections. 'An artist's story' seems to be, spiritually at least, autobiographical; 'The darling' is a delightful character sketch of a woman whose individuality is entirely merged in that of the person she loves most at the time." Cleveland

The duel, and other stories; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan Contents: The duel; Excellent people; Mire; Neighbors; At home; Expensive lessons; The princess; The chemist's wife.
"'The duel' is a long short-story. Of the others, 'At home' appeared in The black monk collection; 'Expensive lessons' in The bet and other stories; 'The Princess' in The kiss and other stories." Cleveland

The spinster. Holt
O.P. 1923
"A quiet story of the 'human document' type, in which a girl brought up carefully in a New England village and educated at Radcliffe becomes interested in the idea of social brotherhood and, after a thwarted romance, gradually turns to socialism for self-expression." Wis. bul.

Clemens, Samuel Langhorne

*Adventures of Huckleberry Finn. Harper
"Autobiographical in form and therefore more artistic than Tom Sawyer—a boy's epic of the Mississippi." Baker
"Will probably stand as the best of Mark Twain's purely fictional writings. E. C. Stedman, Brander Matthews, and Andrew Lang have all so ranked it, and Robert Louis Stevenson once wrote 'It is a book I have read four times, and am quite ready to begin again tomorrow.'" Pratt

*Adventures of Tom Sawyer. Harper
"A classic of American humor indulgent of the escapades of boyhood." Pratt alcove
"Tom is the perfect example of the bad boy who is essentially a good boy." Baker

*A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's court. Harper
"Burlesque of the historical romance. A Yankee of the most arrant modern type is plumped down in the middle of King Arthur's England. The serious purpose, which is not obtruded, is to strip off the glamour and tinsel of chivalry and show the evils that actually underlay it." Baker

Horse's tale. Harper
Western story in which an 'educated horse' and a plucky little girl are the principal characters.

Mysterious stranger. Harper
"In a small Austrian town in the middle ages, a mysterious stranger appears who announces himself as Satan, nephew of the great prince of evil, and who makes himself the entirely delightful companion of three of the village boys, and teaches them a philosophy of doubt and disillusionment. A beautifully written allegory which appears to be satire on the weakness, limitations, and stupidity of the human race and the futility of human existence." Cleveland
Appeared in Harper's magazine, v. 132-133.

*Personal recollections of Joan of Arc. Harper
"A prose epic which seizes the undying charm of Joan's character. Story put into the mouth of an actual fifteenth century knight." Nation 63:52

*Pudd'nhead Wilson, and Those extraordin'y twins. Harper
"Pictures life in a little town of Missouri, half a century ago. The principal incidents relate to a slave of mixed blood and her almost pure white son, whom she substitutes for her master's baby." Baker

Clifford, Mrs. W. K.

Aunt Anne. Harper
O.P. 1923
"A domestic novel, centered in one character, the pathetic Aunt Anne, an old and wrinkled woman, sentimental and foolish as a young girl; poor, yet extravagant, and lavish with her gifts." Baker

Miss Fingal. Scribner
"Story of an amiable, undeveloped young woman who finds herself so influenced by the persistent personality of a dead friend, that she works out the thwarted woman's desires and acquires many of her strong characteristics. The character drawing is excellent and the theme of the possible continuity of one personality through another is handled delicately but not always convincingly." Cleveland

"Excellent sea tales ranging in scene from Maine to the South Sea Islands and in character tender, humorous or gruesome, but all showing knowledge and appreciation of the ocean, ships and sailors." N. Y. best books

Instrument of the gods. Macmillan

"Uniformly well written tales of the romance and tragedy of the days of the old merchant sailing vessels. Not so much stories of the sea as stories from the view point of a sailor. The chief interest is in the fine character drawing, especially of two of the Chinese characters. 'The instrument of the gods' appeared in Best short stories of 1921. Includes a few salt water ballads and chanteys." Cleveland

Comfort, Will Levington

*Last ditch. Doran

"Story of a young American's adventurous connection with the revolutionary cause in China, and of the influence exercised over him by a Russian woman in the Gobi desert." Pittsburgh

"There is much atmosphere in the story and it is well characterized, especially in the case of the conspirators and natives that play minor rôles." Cleveland

Lot and company. Doran

"Suddenly realizing that life with a lying publishing firm is 'slowly but surely getting him down,' Bellair embarks for nowhere on an old sailing vessel he has seen at the wharves. Having struck a reef, he finds himself adrift one night with five other people in an open boat. Ten days of facing certain death discloses to him the real values of life and he returns to adjust his world to his vision and to find his work. 'An unusual and satisfying story, beautifully told.'" Cleveland

Red fleece. Doran

"Story of two American war correspondents who accompany a division of the Russian army on its invasion of Austria. A vivid exposition of the horrors and uselessness of the European war, relentless in its delineation of physical suffering but inspiring in its incidents of heroism and self-sacrifice." Wis. bul.

*Routledge rides alone. Lippincott

"Story of a war correspondent's love for a beautiful Irish girl and his adventures in the Far East during the Russo-Japanese war. Presents graphic and sympathetic pictures of India under British rule." N. Y. best books

*This man's world. Doubleday

*Deep sea's toll. Scribner

Contents: The sail-carriers; The wicked "Celestine;" The truth of the Oliver Cromwell; Strategy and seamanship; Dory-mates; The salving of the bark Fuller; On Georges shoals; Patsie Oddie's black night.

Appeared in Scribner's magazine.

Head winds. Scribner
Contents: The adoption; Chavero; Quilten; The trawler; Mother Machree; Down river; Colors; The camera man.
"Short stories, strong and varied in their human interest, sure and unwasting of effort or words in their technique and of great imaginative suggestiveness. 'The trawler' won the $2500 Collier prize." Cleveland

*Out of Gloucester. Scribner
Contents: A chase overnight; On the echo o' the morn; From Reykjavik to Gloucester; A fisherman of Costla; Tommie Ohlsen's western passage; Clancy.
"All but one of these stories appeared in Scribner's magazine, v. 29-32." Pittsburgh

Running free. Scribner
Contents: The strategists; The weeping Annie; The bull-fight; A bale of blankets; Breath o'dawn; Peter stops ashore; The sea-birds; The medicine ship; One wireless night; Dan Magee.
"Sensationalism is absent, but there is humor, human appeal and the real salty flavor." Cleveland

The seiners. Scribner
"Stirring stories of the Gloucester fishing fleet, strung on a thread of love story." Pittsburgh

Tide rips. Scribner
" 'What price for fish?' ought to have a prize as the best tale of Gloucester fishermen since Kipling's Captains courageous." Outlook 131:40

*Black Rock. Revell
"A tale of the Selkirks." Subtitle

The doctor: a tale of the Rockies. Revell
"Story of the Canadian Northwest, with a strong religious bias." A. L. A. sup.

*Man from Glengarry. Revell
"Appeared in the Outlook, v. 68-69. Frontier life in forests of northwestern Canada." N. Y. best books

Patrol of the Sun Dance trail. Doran
"The Northwest Mounted Police furnish hero and plot, and their post in upper Saskatchewan the setting. The story is the purest stuff of adventure and sentiment, with its Indian encounters, its reflection of the hardships of Scottish newcomers, its depiction of the free and wholesome emotions of pioneers and fighters." Nation 1914

The prospector: a tale of the Crow's Nest pass. Grosset
"Trials and triumphs of a muscular young missionary among cow-boys and fortune hunters of Canadian far west." N. Y. state lib.

*Sky pilot. Revell
"Scene: frontier village in foothills of the Rockies. Sketches of cowboy life and character, and of the mountains and the prairies." N. Y. best books

Conquistador. Gerould, Mrs. K. F.

Conrad, Joseph

Almayer's folly. Doubleday
"Story of the loves and hates and intrigues of Dutch, Malay and Arab traders in Borneo." Pittsburgh

Arrow of gold; a story between two notes. Doubleday
"A curious, absorbing tale, set in the seventies and concerned with the love of an English sea captain carrying Carlist munitions along the Spanish coast, and the beautiful sphinx-like Doña Rita who is financing the project. Romantic possibilities of intrigues, gun-running adventures and the sinister picturesqueness of nature are all slighted in favor of the beautiful but transitory love idyll." Cleveland
"A love story that is one of the big love stories of the world of books." F. T. Cooper

Chance. Doubleday
"Romance of simple plot and excellent workmanship, but involved in effect, because told in the first person by several characters. Shows the dealings of chance in the life of the daughter of a convicted swindler, who, taught to believe that no one can love her, is saved from suicide by a chivalrous sea captain." N. Y. best books

*Lord Jim, a romance. Doubleday
"A merciless analysis of a man who, branded as a coward among his fellows, found himself ultimately a demi-god among the Malay savages. Much of the incident of the Orient is drawn from scenes in the life of Rajah Brooke of Sarawak." Pratt alcove

*Nigger of the Narcissus. Doubleday
"An account of the voyage home from India in an old-fashioned sailing ship. A wonderfully realistic description of rough seafaring life, by one who has been a seaman and has a poetic imagination. The unfortunate negro and the rest of the ship's crew are striking characters portrayed with a deep sense of humanity and not without strokes of comedy." Baker

Nostromo: a tale of the seaboard. Doubleday
"A romantic tale of politics, adventure, and intrigue in a maritime republic of South America." Athenæum 1904

Rescue: a romance of the shallows. Doubleday
"A colorful tale of the Malay archipelago and its surrounding waters, in which an English adventurer finds himself torn between two duties." Pittsburgh

A set of six. Doubleday
Contents: Gaspar Ruiz; The informer; The brute; An anarchist; The duel; Il conde.
" 'The duel' has been published before under the title 'The point of honor.' " Booklist

Shadow line. Doubleday
"A Conradian version of 'The ancient mariner.' It is the captain's own story of his first command, his ship becalmed near Siam, her crew stricken with fever, and her chief mate half crazed by the haunting memory of her former captain who had been buried at sea right in the path of the outgoing ship. Gives somewhat the same sense of the power of the sea and the wonder of human nature as 'Youth' and 'The typhoon.' " Booklist

Twixt land and sea. Doubleday
Contents: A smile of fortune; The secret sharer; Freya of the Seven Isles.
"The first story is concerned with Mauritius, the second with the Siamese coast, and the third with the East Indies. They are typical of Mr. Conrad's later period in the finish and precision of the language, but they have something, too, of the opulent glow of his earlier, tropical tales." English rev.

*Typhoon. Doubleday
"Describes a great storm and its effects on a handful of white men abroad a British-built, Siamese-owned steamer in the China seas." Athenæum 1:558

Under western eyes. Harper
"Powerful, well sustained but somber psychological study of a young Russian student, who, involved against his will in a revolutionist murder, becomes informer and police agent. Remarkable for its fidelity to Russian character." Pittsburgh
Appeared in the North American review, v. 192-194.

Victory. Doubleday
" 'Enchanted Heyst,' a detached, introspective Swedish nobleman, lives alone on an island in the South seas. Pity obliges him to rescue a girl from a travelling 'ladies orchestra' and to take her to his retreat upon which exciting and tragic happenings follow. There is more of action than in most of his books." N. Y. best books

Within the tides. Doubleday

"'The planter of Malata,' a long-short story, occupies half the book. Besides this, it includes 'The partner,' a story of crime and shipwreck on the English coast; 'The inn of the two witches,' the gruesome adventure of two English seamen in a Spanish inn early in the last century. Conrad's hall-mark of atmosphere and soul-baring psychology, distinguishes these tales from the usual story of mystery and adventure." Cleveland

*Youth; and two other stories. Doubleday

Contents: Youth; Heart of darkness; The end of the tether.

"'Youth' is a story of the sea; 'Heart of darkness,' a study of the white man in Africa; 'The end of the tether,' a narrative of an heroic old sea-captain who, for the sake of a dependent daughter, retains command of his vessel even after blindness renders him incapable." Pittsburgh

Cook's wedding, and other stories. Chekhov, A. P.

Cooper, Elizabeth

Drusilla with a million. Stokes

"A meek drudge, the 'charity inmate' of an old ladies' home, suddenly inherits a fortune, and blossoms into a Lady Bountiful, dispensing homely philosophy and kindly criticism with her judicious, if eccentric, charities." Cleveland

*My lady of the Chinese courtyard. Stokes

The first series of letters that make up this book are said to have been written by the wife of a high Chinese official to her husband when he accompanied Prince Chung around the world; the second series, 25 years later, when the "new education" had crept in.

"A most unusually sympathetic and penetrating interpretation of an alien race." F. T. Cooper in Bookman

Cooper, James Fenimore

The Mohawk edition of Cooper, published by Putnam at $2 per volume is the one listed in the A. L. A. catalog. Among other editions should be mentioned one published by Houghton at $2 per volume and the Scribner $3.50 edition of the Last of the Mohicans, with the Wyeth illustrations.

"Cooper was a great story-teller. His novels are essentially American, and through them Europe first gained a comprehension of life and scenes in America." Pratt alcove

Afloat and ashore. Putnam

"Sequel, Miles Wallingford. Sketches of the earliest years of the country as an independent nation." A. L. A. cat.

Leatherstocking tales:

"A famous quintet of romances which gave the red man a place in literature as Scott had recently given to the Highlander. They are linked together by the career of Hawkeye, Cooper's inimitable backwoodsman, a romantic embodiment of the virtues of both races, and of Chingachgook, his Indian counterpart, equally idealized. There is little historical background; but the vivid descriptions of wood, lake, and prairie, and of the daily life of Indian and huntsman, give the finest picture extant of natural scenes and human conditions that have long passed away." Baker

*Deerslayer. Putnam

Describes Natty Bumppo's first experience of Indian warfare.

*Last of the Mohicans. Putnam

"Adventures among northern New York Indians during French and Indian war." N. Y. best books

*Pathfinder. Putnam

*Pioneers. Putnam

"Pioneer life on the banks of Lake Otsego." Pittsburgh

*The prairie. Putnam

Covers the death of Deerslayer.

*The pilot. Putnam

"The daring exploits of Paul Jones in English waters, about 1778, furnish the theme. Chief character Long Tom Coffin." Baker

"'The first salt-water novel ever written, and one of the very best.' Defective in plot and character drawing, but remarkable for its vivid scenes of the sea." Pratt alcove

*The spy. Putnam

"The hero, the spy, is employed by Gen. Washington in service involving great personal hazard and little glory." Buffalo

Coppard, A. E.

Adam and Eve and Pinch Me. Knopf

Contents: Adam and Eve and Pinch Me; Marching to Zion; Dusky Ruth; Weep not, my wanton; Piffingcap; The king of the world; The princess of kingdom gone; Communion; The quiet woman; The trumpeters; The angel and the sweep; Arabesque; The mouse.

"At least three have the cameo-like perfection of detail, which betrays the great in the small, and the imaginative truth and classical restraint which are the hall-mark of literary achievement." Spectator

Dr. Adriaan; tr. by A. T. de Mattos. Dodd
"Adriaan van der Welcke, outwardly the strong prop of all the small souls of the family group, is inwardly the neurotic mystic, haunted by indecision and self-insufficiency." Booklist
Sequel to Twilight of the souls.

Inevitable; tr. by A. T. de Mattos. Dodd
Story of a woman who divorces her brutal husband and forms a free union but finds herself unable to resist the husband's command to return to him.
"Attractive in its pictures of Rome and of Italian society." Outlook 127:31
"As in 'The tour,' the author's interest in antiquity and in art finds full expression in these pages." H. W. Boynton in Review 3:650

Later life; tr. by A. T. de Mattos. Dodd
"Has even less action than 'Small souls', developing painstakingly the characters of husband and wife, especially the latter." Wis. bul.
Sequel to Small souls. Followed by Twilight of the souls.

Old people and the things that pass; tr. by A. T. de Mattos. Dodd
"Somber but unusually interesting story of Dutch life. Three very old people are bound together by a secret which they believe is known only to themselves. It comes to the knowledge of others, however, and darkens their lives in turn." Pittsburgh

Small souls; tr. by A. T. Mattos. Dodd
"First of a series of four novels describing the fortunes of the Van Lowes, [a middle-class Dutch family], and known in Holland by the generic title of The Books of the Small Souls." Translator's note
"These small souls are such stuff as life is made of. Their creator neither veils nor mocks them, but sets them forth for what they may be worth, with a smile of kindly irony." Nation
Followed by The later life.

Twilight of the souls; tr. by A. T. de Mattos. Dodd
"In this volume all the small souls of the group are going down into the twilight of later life uncheered by any vision. Only Constance, who has seen the light through a great love, continually broadens in the development of her fine young son. The general tone of the book is pessimistic but it is remarkable in its human sympathy and has touches of fine idealism." Cleveland
Sequel to The later life. Followed by Dr. Adriaan.

Cournos, John

Babel. Boni & Liveright
"The third of the biographical novels concerning John Gombarov, following 'The mask' and 'The wall.' In this he breaks away from home ties and seeks development of his powers among the intellectuals of Paris, London, and New York." Pittsburgh

The mask. Boni & Liveright
"The story of a Jewish family in Russia and in America, from the point of view of the young son of the family." Pittsburgh
"Curiously Elizabethan in spirit." Sat. rev. 129:192
Followed by The wall.

The wall. Boni & Liveright
"Continues the story of John Gombarov, begun in 'The mask,' here depicting his struggles in America to gain recognition as a writer and at the same time to do his duty by helping to support his step-father's family." Pittsburgh
"This story of a sensitive beauty-loving youth, to whose aspirations life continually presents a blank wall of obstacle, is evidently partially autobiographical. The book is a spontaneous, unpruned growth rather than a deliberate structure, but is as vivid as it is formless." Cleveland
Followed by Babel.

Cousin Pons. Balzac, H. de.

Covered wagon. Hough, E.

Coward of Thermopylae. See The Spartan. Owen, Mrs. C. D.

Crabb, Arthur, pseud.

Samuel Lyle, criminologist. Century
"Entertaining detective stories, in which the adventures of a genial old criminal lawyer and his country-club friends bring out the unreliability of honest witnesses and the uncertainty of circumstantial evidence. Technical details of evidence and court procedure will be found correct." Cleveland

Craddock, Charles Egbert, pseud.

In the "Stranger people's" country. Harper
"Story of an American Don Quixote; a rugged, courageous, and lofty figure." Baker

In the Tennessee mountains. Houghton
"Eight stories, strong in the dramatization of fierce, primitive natures, of the rugged and uncouth dwellers in the Great Smoky Mountains; reproducing the rude dialect and describing the magnificent scenery of the forest ranges and gloomy valleys." Baker

*Prophet of the Great Smoky mountains. Houghton
"Classic portrayal of the Tennessee mountaineer." Baker

Where the battle was fought. Houghton
"Characters are an old Southern general and his daughter, victims of the Civil war, a young officer (her lover), lawyers, financiers, and the society of a country town in Tennessee. What gives the book a peculiar imaginative colouring is the proximity of the old battlefield, haunting the lives of men and unconsciously swaying their souls." Baker

Craik, Dinah Maria

*John Halifax, gentleman. Harper
"A novel of English provincial life in the nineteenth century. It follows the career of a youth of humble origin whose genuine and lovable qualities win for him merited recognition as a gentleman." Pratt alcove

Crane, Stephen

*Red badge of courage. Appleton
"An extraordinary example of psychological portraiture—subject, the state of mind of the soldier in action; the brilliant work of an inexperienced youth who studied the phenomena at second-hand. Consists virtually of one episode, the protracted battle of Chancellorsville, 1863." Baker

Whilomville stories. Harper
"Tales and studies of American child-life; the misadventures, practical jokes, amusing foibles and antics of precocious youths of eight and nine, humorously related." Baker

Cranford. Gaskell, Mrs. E. C.

Crawford, Francis Marion

*Cigarette-maker's romance, and Khaled. Macmillan
"The first story is a romantic and touching little drama of two days in Munich. Khaled is a tale of Arabia in which an Oriental genie tries to win a woman's love." Vermont lib. com.

Corleone. 2v Macmillan
"Fourth of Saracinesca stories. Sicilian episode in the story of the Saracinesca, where they are brought into contact with the Corleone, 'The worst blood in Italy,' and with the Mafia." Baker

Dr. Claudius. Macmillan
"Love story, with an Admirable Crichton as hero. Time that of Lytton's viceroyalty and the second Afghan war." Baker

Don Orsino. Macmillan
Third in Saracinesca series.

*Mr. Isaacs. Macmillan
"A story of Indian life; the central character being an esoteric Buddhist." Baker

Paul Patoff. Macmillan
"Life of modern Constantinople painted in vivacious scenes at beginning of story. Chief characters, two brothers, one of whom disappears mysteriously." Baker

Pietro Ghisleri. Macmillan
"Like the majority of the author's novels, an adaptation of romance to the manners and usages of modern society in Rome. Ghisleri is something like the traditional Byronic hero. How he and an English girl, two apparently antipathetic characters, come in the end to love each other is one thread of the plot, another is the history of a criminal conspiracy directed against these two by a jealous, neurotic woman." Baker

*A Roman singer. Macmillan
"Career of a fortunate Italian peasant boy who became a great tenor. Highly romantic tale." Baker

*Sant' Ilario. Macmillan
Second in Saracinesca series.

*Saracinesca. Macmillan
"First of Saracinesca series, followed by Sant' Ilario, Don Orsino, Corleone, Taquisara. They afford a panorama of Roman society from 1865 to the beginning of the present century, in the form of annals of a princely house. National types and modes of thought are reproduced with extreme fidelity, and the political, social and financial history of Rome related with ample knowledge by one who has familiarized himself with all classes of Italians." Baker

*Via crucis. Macmillan
"Romance of the days of Stephen and the second crusade. Eleanor of Aquitaine is prominent." Baker

White sister. Macmillan
"A story of modern Rome and of a girl who, convinced that her lover is dead, becomes a nun only to find him escaped from a living death and demanding the fulfilment of her engagement to him." N. Y. best books

West of the water tower. Harper
"A novel of small town life. Two of the interesting characters are the impressive figure of a fanatical preacher and his enemy, an infidel lawyer, although the plot of the story concerns their children, a boy and a girl who go wrong. Written with a realistic attention to detail, but with none of the satire of other recent small-town novels." Wis. bul.

Son of his father. Jacobs
"A Railway King pays a bill of $100,000 for the latest fling of his prodigal son, on condition that the boy shall clear out and make good 'on his own.' Young Cahrboy accepts a dare from his father to pay back the $100,000 in six months, and the story is concerned with the financial war between father and son when Gordon attempts to put through a land-booming proposition which seriously affects his father's railroad interests in Montana." Daudet, Alphonse
Jack. 2v Little
"Series of emotional pictures rather than a regularly constructed novel, connected by the figure of a hapless boy, whose career is a course of misery relieved only by death." Baker

Kings in exile. Little
"Alleged portrayal of actual persons, the chief figure an exiled King of Illyria holding his Court in Paris. He is a weak and dissolute man, caring for nothing but his pleasures; but the queen is a real queen, living for her ambition, ready to sacrifice everything to see her husband on the throne again. The most appealing character is the little prince." Baker

Monday tales; Letters from my mill; Letters to an absent one. Little
"Tales and descriptive sketches written in a ruined mill on the Rhone; delicate renderings of Provençal things, interpreting the gaiety of the native temperament and satirizing its foibles. Extremely varied, ranging from old legends to pictures of modern life." Baker

Tartarin of Tarascon. Little
Contents: Tartarin of Tarascon; Tartarin on the Alps; Artists' wives: Prologue,—Madame Heurtebise,—The credo of love,—La Trasteverina,—A family of singers,—A misunderstanding: the husband's version,—Acts of violence,—Bohemia en famille,—Fragment of a woman's letter, found on Rue Notre-Dame-des-champs,—A great man's widow,—The liar,—Comtesse Irma,—The confidences of a coat embroidered with green palm-leaves.

Dawn O'Hara, the girl who laughed. Ferber, E.

Day, Holman Francis

All-wool Morrison. Harper
"A rapid-moving novel of love and politics in which a canny, Scottish mill-owner puts up a big fight to make water power, the 'white coal' of his state, the property of the people and not a concession to be exploited by politicians." Cleveland

*Blow the man down. Harper
"Young Captain Mayo, a Yankee skipper, is pitted against a financier of Wall street, bent on getting possession of a New England steamship line. A readable story by reason of the nautical adventures of the hero, the snatches of old chanteys, and the picturesque down-east types of old ships and tars." Pittsburgh

*King Spruce. Harper
"Story of the Maine timber regions, in which a young college man is pitted against a timber-baron." Book rev. digest

Ramrodders. Grosset
"Lively tale of the outwitting in politics of an old-time Maine politician by his 'ramrodder' grandson." A. L. A. sup.

House of adventure. Macmillan
"Paul, an English soldier, technically a deserter, sets out to rebuild his own life as well as to help in the reconstruction work of France, beginning with the rebuilding of a shell-wrecked inn. How he succeeds, together with his love affair with the young widow who owns the inn, makes a pleasing story." Cleveland

Deerslayer, The. Cooper, J. F.

Defoe, Daniel

*Robinson Crusoe. Dutton
"Founded on the actual experiences of Alexander Selkirk. A minutely circumstantial account of the shipwreck, the escape to the isle, and the methodical industry wherewith the solitary makes himself a comfortable home." Baker
For other more juvenile editions see the Children's Catalog, published by the H. W. Wilson Co.

Dehan, Richard, pseud.

Between two thieves. Stokes
"Striking picture of the horrors of the Crimean war. The two thieves between whom England is crucified are her army contractors and Louis Napoleon." Pittsburgh

Just steward. Doran
"The prologue is concerned with the friendship of a Roman official and a Jewish steward in Alexandria of the fourth century A. D. The main action deals with the love of two of their descendents in the year General Allenby entered Jerusalem. Long drawn out but interesting on account of its romance, picturesque detail and mystic atmosphere." Cleveland

Delafield, E. M., pseud.

Consequences. Knopf
Depicts the tragedy of a wasted life. Scene, Belgium and England in Victorian days.
"Psychologically well done, but painful." Booklist

Heel of Achilles. Macmillan
"A biographical novel written around Lydia Raymond, an imaginative egoist, who, like Zella of the author's first book, sees herself as the heroine of every situation and, engaged with her inner drama, neither loves nor suffers until a spiritual tragedy pierces her armor of self-absorption. A clever and discerning piece of work." Cleveland

Humbug; a study in education. Macmillan
"A satire on the theme of stupidity in the treatment of the younger generation. Parents, educators, and finally, the husband of a sensitive, quick-minded girl combine to stultify her character by their lack of intellectual honesty and refusal to help her come to grips with the problems of life. Clever in character-developing dialog, but over-weighted with polemic." Cleveland

Pelicans. Knopf
"Story of two girls and the various influences which developed them. The pelicans are two egotistical women whom the author satirizes." Pittsburgh

Tension. Macmillan
"A story of life in an English university town, involving a character study of a 'selfish and stupid woman itching for power.'" Pittsburgh

Zella sees herself. Knopf
"Study of a young girl who, having no standards or tastes of her own, restlessly shifts color to match the surface tints of whatever persons she may be thrown with. Commendable for its precision of characterization and its unerring satirical touch." Pittsburgh

De La Mare, Walter John

Memoirs of a midget. Knopf
"The recollections and impressions of Miss M., a perfectly formed little creature so small that the domestic cat knocks her down in brushing past her, but possessed of an incisive wit, and the most delicate and sensitive appreciation of beauty." Cleveland
"She will live in criticism as a masterpiece of characterization." Sat. rev. 132:116

Return. Knopf
"A book of rare imaginative beauty, full of the inner truths of life seldom expressed. Arthur Lawford falls asleep beside the old tomb of a suicide and awakes to find his personality curiously invaded by another. His poignant struggle to retain his identity makes an unusual and haunting story." Booklist

Deland, Mrs. Margaret W. (C.)

Around old Chester. Harper
Contents: "Turn about"; The harvest of fear; The voice; An encore; The third volume; The thief; Miss Clara's Perseus.
"More stories of Dr. Lavendar and his parish. Dr. Lavendar has been described as 'one of the few living American figures in American fiction'" Cleveland

*Awakening of Helena Ritchie. Harper
"Masterly story of the awakening of a woman's moral nature through her love for a child and the gentle leading of Dr Lavendar." A. L. A. sup.

*Dr. Lavendar's people. Harper
Contents: The apotheosis of the Reverend Mr. Spangler; The note; The grasshopper and the ant; Amelia; "An exceeding high mountain"; At the stuffed-animal house.

*Iron woman. Harper
"Realistic study of a hard-headed and masterful woman mill-owner contrasted with 'Helena Ritchie,' who through her great love and experience of life saves her 'David,' now in early manhood, in a great moral crisis." A. L. A. sup.

John Ward, preacher. Houghton
"John Ward is a rigid Calvinist whose austere conscience brings him into tragic conflict with his Agnostic wife. The happy, untroubled life of a sequestered village, inhabited by old-fashioned gentlefolk, gives a pleasant background to the tragedy, which is relieved further by a happy love affair." Baker

Old Chester secret. Harper
"What happened to Johnny, the unwanted baby, his foster mother, and his parents, is told with truth and delicate artistry." Pittsburgh
Appeared in Harper's magazine, v. 141.

*Old Chester tales. Harper
Contents: The promises of Dorothea; Good for the soul; Miss Maria; The child's mother; Justice and the judge; Where the laborers are few; Sally; The unexpectedness of Mr Horace Shields.
"Slightly related stories of great tenderness and charm, the scenes being laid in the quaint and simple environment of a Pennsylvania village. 'Dr. Lavendar' is the lovable central figure of the book." Pratt alcove

Rising tide. Harper
"Frederica Peyton, ardent and undisciplined, is carried away on the rising tide of revolt against the restrictions which have bound women in the past. Having a boundless enthusiasm for humanity in general, she utterly lacks sympathy for the individual and needs the lesson of an overwhelming disappointment to clarify her vision. A story in which the characters are finely individualized and the questions involved are treated with a spirit of friendly, if somewhat satiric, neutrality." Cleveland

Vehement flame. Harper
"An ardent, sensitive youth of nineteen loves and marries a woman twenty years his senior whose jealousy drives him to infidelity." Book rev. digest

De La Pasture, Edmee Elizabeth Monica. See Delafield, E. M., pseud.

De La Pasture, Mrs. Elizabeth (Bonham)

Deborah of Tod's. Dutton
"Story of the disillusionment of an English country girl who marries an old nobleman and enters frivolous London society." A. L. A. sup.

*Lonely lady of Grosvenor square. Dutton
"An ingenuous Welsh girl is called from her simple country home to a great house and restored fortunes in fashionable London." A. L. A. sup.

*Peter's mother. Dutton
"Sentiment and humor are charmingly combined in this very natural story of a young widow's devotion to a tyrannical son and his selfish opposition to her re-marriage." A. L. A. sup.

De la Ramée, Louise

Two little wooden shoes. Lippincott
O.P. 1923
"An innocent little Brabant girl is petted by a rich painter, who leaves her to her peasant lover; but, hearing he is sick, she walks to Paris to offer succour and love, and finding him sunk in debauchery, flies home and dies." Baker

Dog of Flanders.
"Tells the story of a dog, whose fortitude and affection are scathingly contrasted with the cruelty and meanness of the human beings who maltreat him." Baker

Under two flags. Burt
"Author's best novel, good in spite of the florid extravagance of her descriptions and the unreality of the world depicted. The numerous episodes of exciting action, fox-hunts in the shires, battles of French and Kabyles in Algeria, are well described. The hero is a handsome, aristocratic guardsman of superhuman virtues and vices." Baker

De la Roche, Mazo

*Explorers of the dawn. Knopf
"Charmingly related adventures of three little English boys aged five, eight and nine, left in charge of the redoubtable Mrs. Handsomebody, while their father goes to South America. They adopt a dog and a grandfather, fall in love with the Bishop's small niece and find buried treasure. There is a Golden Age glamour about this youthful trio that should endear them to young and old." Cleveland

Possession. Macmillan
"Scene is on a fruit farm in Nova Scotia. The young farmer, Derek, forms an illicit connection with an only half-civilized young Indian girl who comes with her tribe to pick the fruit. She returns next year with a baby, and Derek, whose impulses are kind and his nature rather weak, marries the girl." Outlook

Delight makers. Bandelier, A. F.

Dell, Floyd

Briary-bush. Knopf
"Two young rebels, Felix Fay of The moon calf, now a dramatic critic and budding playwright, and Rose-Ann Prentiss, settlement worker, marry with the understanding that they shall not be subject to traditional matrimonial restraints. The process which convinces them that this new freedom has perils and disappointments of its own, makes a 'talky' but absorbing story." Cleveland

Moon-calf. Knopf
"A study of the development of the mind and character of a boy from childhood to manhood, showing the effects of various radical theories in which he becomes successively interested." Pittsburgh
Followed by The briary bush.

It never can happen again. Grosset
"Story of modern English life, developing with psychological care and wealth of detail, two almost distinct plots: the pathetic career of a blind beggar and his little daughter and a middle-aged author's complicated entanglements, hinging on the deceased wife's sister bill." N. Y. best books

*Joseph Vance, an autobiography. Holt
"The author's first and most successful novel, recounting in the quaint leisurely style which is Mr. De Morgan's unique contribution to literature, the life-story of a middle-class English scholar and inventor." A. L. A. sup.

A likely story. Holt
"An old Italian portrait, which possesses a voice, offers a pretty problem to inimitably described psychical researchers, patches up a quarrel between an artist and his wife, and tells the story of its unhappy sixteenth-century original." Booklist

*Somehow good. Holt
"Story of strong human interest with a modern plot, which will appeal only to mature minds. Same quaint style as Joseph Vance." A. L. A. sup.

Denry the audacious. Bennett, A.

De Selincourt, Hugh

A soldier of life. Macmillan
O.P. 1923
"James Wood has come back from the war wounded, and in a state of nervous exhaustion from the misery and the horror of the scenes he has passed through. The story of his fight against insanity, successful at last because of the love of a wholesome, clever woman, will interest those who care for studies of temperament rather than for action." The Centenary edition, with the original illustrations, is published by Scribner at $2.25 per volume. Scribner also carries the new Universal edition at $2.50 per volume. The Macmillan company publish the works of Dickens, reprints of the first edition with illustrations, and with introduction by Charles Dickens the younger, at $2.50 per volume.

*Barnaby Rudge. Scribner
"Historical, giving lurid account of the mad orgies and incendiarism of the 'No popery' riots of 1870, and introducing Lord George Gordon." Baker

*Bleak house. Scribner
"A plot novel having two principal threads, one the story of a proud lady's expiation of a sin committed in youth, the other a satirical history of a huge and interminable lawsuit." Baker

*Christmas stories. Scribner
"In addition to the universal and undying favorites A Christmas Carol and The Cricket on the Hearth, the book contains a burning plea for the poor and oppressed entitled The Chimes which merits greater familiarity than it enjoys, and two less distinguished contributions, The Battle of Life and The Haunted Man." Pratt alcove

*David Copperfield. Scribner
"Acknowledged to be Dickens's masterpiece and regarded by himself as his best work. The hero's experiences relate to the author's own early life. The novel abounds in unique characters exemplifying Dickens's peculiar genius of character creation." Pratt alcove

*Dombey and son. Scribner
"The moral purpose is to anatomize pride, and exhibit its strength and its weakness. Almost apart from the main story, the pathetic episode of little Paul Dombey's invalid life and death monopolizes interest to a certain point. Tragic chapters lightened by a throng of humorous characters." Baker

*Great expectations. Scribner
"An excellent tale for children; the story of poor Pip has touching chapters, and there are several characters akin to those of Dickens's best period, e.g. Joe Gargery and Miss Havisham. The Thames marshes furnish a sombre background." Baker

*Hard times. Scribner
"A tract-novel inspired by Carlyle's philosophical radicalism—a protest against tyrannous utilitarianism. The stage is a hideous manufacturing town created by the two apostles of fact, Gradgrind and Bounderby, and the drama is chiefly enacted by Gradgrind's children, brought up on facts, and ruined spiritually by the complete neglect of sympathy and sentiment." Baker

*Little Dorrit. Scribner
"Satire on the civil service, represented by the Circumlocution office. Also a picture of prison life, the father of Little Dorrit being also the Father of the Marshalsea." Baker

*Martin Chuzzlewit. Scribner
"Mingled comedy, caricature, farce, melodrama and tragedy; shifting from England to America and back again. Pecksniff, Mark Tapley, Betsy Prig, and Sarah Gamp have become household names." Baker

Mystery of Edwin Drood. Scribner
"An unfinished novel, based on a murder and enacted amid the picturesque closes and ecclesiastical buildings of old Rochester—Cloisterham, with scenes in an opium den in Shadwell." Baker Bibliography, p. 255-264.

*Nicholas Nickleby. Scribner
"Has a melodramatic plot, of which the mainspring is the antagonism of the good Nicholas and his bad uncle, the usurious Ralph Nickleby. The strength of the book is in the numerous comic characters—the Mantalinis, the Squeers family and their detestable school, Dotheboys Hall, the Cheerybles, Mr. Vincent Crummles and Mrs. Nickleby." Baker

*Old curiosity shop. Scribner
"Combines diverse elements—the sentimental idyll in which the etherealized and pathetic Little Nell and her grandfather are protagonists; the light comedy in which figure those sportive creations Dick Swiveller and the Marchioness, and Kit Nubbles; and the gloomy grotesque of Quilp and his doings." Baker

*Oliver Twist. Scribner
"The author's first regular novel. It is a tale of the criminal classes in London, revealing great tragic power, though inferior in literary merit to the author's best writing." Pratt alcove

*Our mutual friend. Scribner
"A complicated story, with a few minor figures, like Boffin and Wegg, having the characteristic stamp." Baker

*Pickwick papers. Scribner
"Dickens's earliest complete book, and perhaps his most typical and popular work. Characterized by exuberant humor connected with the doings of a company of remarkably original and eccentric individuals." Pratt alcove
"Mr Pickwick and his valet, Sam Weller, number among the immortals." Leypoldt & Iles

Sketches by Boz. Scribner
"Random sketches and episodes drawn from life in London among the poor and the lower middle classes; many are caricatures, nearly all are humorous or farcical." Baker

*Tale of two cities. Scribner
"An historical novel inspired by Carlyle's French Revolution. A powerful, melodramatic story of the Reign of Terror (1789-94), leading up to the famous scene of Sydney Carton's self-immolation at the guillotine." Baker

Dillon, Mrs. Mary C.

In old Bellaire. Century

Disenchanted. Loti, P., pseud.

Disraeli, Benjamin, 1st earl of Beaconsfield

Coningsby; or, The new generation. Longmans
"Coningsby is the grandson of a profligate marquis—an actual portrait. His friendships, his social experiences and entry into political life entail a review of the political condition of England (1832-4), and criticism of the misgovernment and undefined principles of the Tories under Peel and their anti-reform manœuvres." Baker
"Representative of the group of political novels written by Disraeli, afterwards Lord Beaconsfield, who was twice Prime Minister of England under Queen Victoria." Pratt alcove

Lothair. Longmans
"A dazzling picture of the highest society of England. Lothair, heir to immense possessions, is the object of a conspiracy to make him a Roman convert, and of protestant intrigues. Mazzini and Garibaldi appear in the Italian episodes." Baker

Three soldiers. Doran

"A novel in which the author presents a bitter invective against what he conceives as the tyranny, misery, and degradation of life in the American army during the great war." (Pittsburgh) "[More especially] a study of the effect of army discipline on a self-centered, sensitive, highly individualistic artist." Booklist

Dostoevskii, Feodor Mikhailovich

"None of [Dostoevskii's] books mince matters in plain speaking on all themes in all walks of life, including the most sordid. Dostoevskii wrote for mature minds." Booklist

Brothers Karamazov; tr. from the Russian by Constance Garnett. Macmillan

"A story which was to have been Dostoevskii's masterpiece but only the first part of which was completed at his death. The brothers Karamazov are the three sons of an old drunkard and sensualist: Ivan, the materialist, Alyosha, the very human and lovable young mystic, and dissolute, impecunious Mitya, tried and convicted for murdering his father. A remarkable work, showing at their worst the author's faults of style and construction, and at their best his profound understanding of human nature and power to depict Russian character." Cleveland

*Crime and punishment; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan

"Dostoevski's most representative book, an appalling chronicle of mental torture. Raskolnikov typifies the intellectual pride and individualism most abhorrent to the author's sense of Christian brotherhood. Maddened by poverty and ambition, this young student commits a murder, justifying himself by his theories. In this extraordinary study of the human mind in a morbid condition, Dostoevski traces the genesis of the criminal idea, the halting steps that precede the act, and the subsequent repentance and atonement." Baker

The gambler and other stories; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan

Contents: The gambler; Poor people; The landlady.

House of the dead; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan

"His own experiences barely disguised as fiction. In the life-stories of a group of criminals, he traces the different effects of captivity on the moral nature. A terrible picture of the anguish of the prisoner's lot; hunger, cold, torture, and the squalor of debased society—a burning appeal for justice to the oppressed." Baker

"The book has appeared in other translations, under the present title and as 'Prison life in Siberia,' and 'Memorials of a dead house.'" Book rev. digest

The idiot; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan

"Study of a mental phenomenon in the person of a prince, who is subject to epileptic attacks. In this exceptional being, from whose nature disease has eliminated the ignobler parts and left the loftier to develop abnormally, Dostoyevski has embodied his own idiosyncrasies and feelings, and drawn an ideal, Christ-like character. The idiot, with his incapacity both for good and evil action, is a peculiarly Russian ideal of spiritual excellence." Baker

Insulted and injured; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan

"Concerned with the love of two women of admirable character for a man who is both devoid of will power and incapable of constancy." Book rev. digest

"Lacks the psychological interest, as well as the dramatic force, of 'Crime and punishment.' At the same time, it is a piece of work quite characteristic of the writer, and a good deal of it is autobiographical." Sat. rev. 120:306

Poor people. (Modern lib) Boni & Liveright

"'Poor folk,' Dostoevskii's earliest work, is a sketch showing very plainly the influence of Gogol, the great Russian realist. It is a story told in letters of the pathetic love of an absurd old minor official for a little invalid seamstress." Cleveland

The possessed; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan

"Traces with infinite and almost wearisome detail yet with undeniable power the development of a Nihilist conspiracy in a Russian provincial town." Pittsburgh

White nights and other stories; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan
"Minor works written between his first success in 1846 and his exile to Siberia three years later. Remarkable for his usual rich tide of feeling and beautiful candor of experience. The gem of the collection is 'A little hero,' an appealing picture of boyish courage." Wis. bul.

"A novel of present day Greece (about 1910 to 1912) in which the descendant of a long line of Byzantine Emperors falls in love with and marries a young professor, a man of the people, and is thereupon disowned by her father. The charm of this slow-moving story with its very slight plot is in its picture of Greek life in aristocratic circles and in the simplicity and genuineness of the characters introduced." Cleveland

Duhamel, Georges

Civilization. Century
"Poignant, masterly sketches written by an army surgeon who, in his grief for the enormity of war suffering, wishes to bring us deliberately to weigh our pitiful so-called civilization in which man vents himself on his neighbor. Their irony is wholly sympathetic and often touched with humor for the whimsical side of trench and hospital life. Written by the author of The new book of martyrs. This collection won the Goncourt prize of 1918." Booklist

Black tulip. Little
"Love-romance associated with the Haarlem tulip craze and intertwined with scenes from Dutch history (1672-5), when William of Orange lent himself to the agitation against the brothers De Witt, the patriotic defenders of Dutch liberty." Baker

*Count of Monte Cristo. 3v Little
"Most famous of the author's romances. Edmond Dantès, the sailor of Marseilles, who acquires a colossal treasure, and becomes Count of Monte Cristo, is a world-renowned hero of fiction. Rapid and audacious narrative of action and adventure." Baker

D'Artagnan romances:

*Three musketeers. 2v Little
"Published also under title, The Three guardsmen. First of the 'D'Artagnan romances,' followed by Twenty years after and Vicomte de Bragelonne. Cycle of three romances, of which the exploits of four heroes from youth to age are the principal subjects, while a magnificent panorama is presented of contemporary history (1626-71). Political intrigue, court life, duelling and fighting form the substance of the chronicle." Baker

*Twenty years after. 2v Little
"Second of the 'D'Artagnan romances.' Period that of Anne of Austria's regency, the insurrection of the Fronde, and the execution of Charles I of England (1649). Both France and England are the scenes." Baker

*Vicomte de Bragelonne. 4v Little
"Formerly three separate stories: Bragelonne, son of Athos; Iron mask; Louise de la Vallière. Period, 1660-71; that of Mazarin's ministry and the early days of the Grand Monarque. Madame de Montespan, Fouquet, Colbert, and the Man in the Iron Mask appear among the characters." Baker

Marie Antoinette romances:

*Memoirs of a physician. 3v Little
"First of the 'Marie Antoinette romances,' followed by Queen's necklace, Ange Pitou, Comtesse de Charny, Chevalier de Maison-Rouge. They comprise a full account of the court life and main events of French history 1770-93; the period of the reigns of Pompadour and Du Barry. The physician is the famous quack Balsamo, otherwise Count Cagliostro." Baker

*Queen's necklace. 2v Little
"Time, 1784-85, the beginning of the ill-fated reign of Louis XVI. Account of affair of the diamond necklace accords with facts, though Balsamo's connection with it is taken for granted." Baker

Le chevalier de Maison-Rouge. Little
"Deals with murder of the dauphin and execution of the queen." A. L. A. cat.

Valois romances:

Marguerite de Valois. Little
[First of a] triology that forms a history of period 1572-85, when Charles IX and Henri III were kings and Catherine de Médicis was reigning. Her antagonism to Henri of Navarre is the motive that recurs throughout. The chief event is the massacre of St Bartholomew." Baker

La dame de Monsoreau; or, Chicot the jester. Little
"Has also title Chicot the jester. Date is 1578, in reign of Henri III, the contending factions being represented by a host of historical personages, including the king, the Guises, and the Huguenots, with Henri of Navarre at their head." N. Y. best books

Forty-five. Little
"A medley, containing many scenes of romance and tragedy; the 'Forty-Five,' Henry III's famous bodyguard, play hardly so important a part as that of Chicot. Period, 1585." Baker

Eliot, George, pseud.
The edition listed is the Handy library edition, sold by Little at $1.75 per volume. Scribner carries the Standard edition, published by Blackwood, at $2 per volume; also an edition of Adam Bede, edited with an introduction by Laura J. Wylie, in their Modern student's library, at $1.00. Houghton issues a Riverside edition at $2 per volume.

*Adam Bede. Little
"A story of English village life a hundred years ago. Two of George Eliot's best known portraits, Mrs. Poyser and Dinah Morris, are among the characters. The latter portrait is drawn from an aunt of the author and many of the other characters are studied from people she knew and loved." Pratt alcove

Daniel Deronda. 2v Little
"Sets forth a spiritual conflict. The chief actors are a gay and accomplished girl, and her husband, a selfish tyrant who exemplifies the blighting influences of purely material civilization in the modern world. Closely connected is the story of the unselfish Deronda and Mordecai, Jewish leaders in a Zionist scheme. A sombre book, with little humour." Baker

Felix Holt, the radical; and Theophrastus Such. Little
"Holt is a champion of the working-men at the period just after the Reform Act, and is in love with a girl of the better classes. Gerald Massey, the poet, is believed to be the original of Felix Holt." Baker

*Middlemarch, a story of provincial life. 2v Little
"The complex life of an English provincial town, delineated with intense realism, without plot, yet unified by the conception of moral causation, into a tragic drama of deserted ideals." Baker

*Mill on the Floss. Little
"The scene is laid in the author's own environment, and the incidents, experiences, and the character analysis are developed from her own life and surroundings." Pratt alcove

*Romola. Little
"A highly finished, studied, and somewhat stilted historical romance introducing the reader to Savonarola, the Medici, and the city of Florence in the era of the Italian Renaissance (1492-1509)." Pratt alcove

*Scenes of clerical life; and Silas Marner. Little
"'Scenes of clerical life' contains Amos Barton, a story full of humanism, portraying the home life of a poor curate, commonplace in character and appearance, and his wife, a being of adorable kindness and devoted love; Mr. Gilfil's love story, the bygone romance of an elderly gin-drinking man, a tragic little drama of passion and jealousy; and Janet's repentance, the awakening and moral rebirth of a beautiful woman, driven by harsh treatment to drink. Ordinary life is interpreted in the light of spiritual ideals." Baker
"'Silas Marner' is a country idyll of a century ago. The wronged and despised weaver shuts himself up with his gold in misanthropic solitude; but his gold is stolen, and a ministering angel comes in the shape of a little child to win him back to hope and love." Baker

Bald face; and other animal stories. Knopf
Contents: The bald-face (grizzly bear); The tawny menace (mountain lion); The palmated pioneer (moose); The vanished squadrons (white cranes); Traveling otter; The black ram of sunlight (mountain sheep); Dog town (prairie dog); The black and cinnamon twins (bear); Savagery; The last move (antelope).
"Ten unusually good animal stories." Booklist

Passing of the old West. Little
"Description of how the government agent is saving the old West from passing, by his guardianship of the national preserves. The book has a background of plains thundering with bison, beavers paddling in the streams, and Indians watching with distrust the signs of the white man's 'development.'" Booklist

*Tumbleweeds. Little
"A stirring novel of the dash for the Cherokee strip, an epic of the transformation of the range with all its picturesque lawlessness into a land of homesteads. Appeared in the Saturday Evening Post." Wis. bul.

Yellow horde. Little
"Bullet, trap and poison failed to get Breed, half wolf, half coyote, who taught the coyotes to hunt in pack, wolf-fashion. The author keeps close to facts." Cleveland

*Martin Pippin in the apple orchard. Stokes
"A fanciful, colorful story relating how Martin Pippin, weaver of tales and singer of songs, freed the lovely daughter of a farmer from her imprisonment in the well-house in the apple orchard." Pittsburgh
"To those who know and love Sussex, it is an ideal book to read aloud." A. C. Moore in Bookman

Farnol, Jeffery

*Amateur gentleman. Little
"A fascinating romance of England in the early nineteenth century whose hero, young Barnabas Barty, stalwart, high-souled son of an ex-prize-fighting innkeeper, having inherited a fortune, goes up to London to become a gentleman." N. Y. best books
Appeared in McClure's magazine, 1912-13.

*Black Bartlemy's treasure. Little
"A tale of pirates and adventure in the 17th century." Pittsburgh
Followed by Martin Conisby's vengeance.

*Broad highway. Little
"Pure romance, as impossible as a fairy tale, but refreshingly spontaneous and original, in which a disinherited young Englishman of the early nineteenth century takes to the road with ten shillings in his pocket and after many adventures wins fortune and a lady." N. Y. best books

*Martin Conisby's vengeance. Little
"A continuation of the adventures of Martin after three years of life on an island where he was left at the end of Black Bartlemy's treasure. A 'bully' pirate story filled with startling adventure, sea fights, romance, and gore." Booklist

Money moon. Burt
"A modern idyll in which a young American millionaire, supposing himself heartbroken, sets out on a walking tour through England and is soon engaged by a delightful small boy to help find a buried treasure and save the ancestral acres for his charming aunt." N. Y. best books

Peregrine's progress. Little
"The adventures of the nephew of a too-fond aunt, when he ventures out into the world to make a man of himself. The period and some of the characters are the same as in the author's 'The broad highway.'" Pittsburgh

Golden parrot. Houghton
"The Golden Parrot is a yacht in which two old cronies, an artist and a business man, sail forth to the Virgin Isles, ostensibly for buried treasure but really for the joy of sailing and of each other's company. The author, himself a skilled yachtsman, knows intimately the strange scenes he describes." Cleveland

Ferber, Edna

Buttered side down. Stokes
Contents: The frog and the puddle; The man who came back; What she wore; A bush league hero; The kitchen side of the door; One of the old girls; Maymeys from Cuba; The leading lady; That home-town feeling; The homely heroine; Sun dried; Where the car turns at 18th.
"Short stories dealing almost entirely with shop-girls, whose manners, hopes, pleasures and trials are shown in a distinctly sympathetic way." Pittsburgh
The setting of most of them is Chicago.

Dawn O'Hara, the girl who laughed. Stokes
"Story of a young newspaper woman who showed pluck and good cheer in the face of tragedy. Scene is laid in New York and in Milwaukee." Pittsburgh

*Emma McChesney and co. Stokes
"How Mrs. McChesney captures the South American skirt trade, becomes secretary of the company, marries the head of the firm, essays domestic life and plays the ungrateful rôle of grandmother. These have all the relish of the earlier McChesney tales. Appeared in the Cosmopolitan." Cleveland

Fanny herself. Stokes
"Fanny's mother is as much a heroine as Fanny. The first part is the story of her fight to support her children by means of a small store in a little town in Wisconsin, and of her gallant death. The second part is Fanny's own meteoric success in the business world. The character studies and descriptions of life in a small mid-western town are quite as important as the plot." Booklist
Appeared in the American magazine, v. 83-84.

Gigolo. Doubleday
Contents: The afternoon of a faun; Old man Minick; Gigolo; Not a day over twenty-one; Home girl; Ain't nature wonderful; The sudden sixties; If I should ever travel.
"Eight short stories, some like 'The sudden sixties' and 'Old man Minick' are slices out of life; others like 'Gigolo' are constructed on the approved formula for a snappy short story. 'The afternoon of a faun,' a brief idyll with a surprise ending, is the best." Cleveland

*The girls. Doubleday
"The story of three generations of women: great-aunt Charlotte, a maiden of seventy-four still resenting her thwarted Civil War romance; niece Lottie, the Family Sacrifice at thirty-three, and grand-niece Charley, self-determining at nineteen. How the Family Sacrifice rebelled dramatically and the younger and older generation were true to type, makes an amusing story characteristically worldly-wise." Cleveland

Half portions. Doubleday
Contents: The maternal feminine; April 25th as usual; Old lady Mandle; You've got to be selfish; Long distance; Un morso doo pang; One hundred per cent; Farmer in the dell; The dancing girls.
"Emma McChesney reappears in one of these stories. Another deals with the war. The others, for the most part, contrast city and country life." Cleveland

*Personality plus. Stokes
"Sequel to Roast beef medium, describing how Emma McChesney's son Jock started in the advertising business and learned to appreciate his shrewd, big-hearted mother." N. Y. best books
Appeared in the American magazine, v. 77-78.

*Roast beef, medium. Stokes
Contents: Roast beef, medium; Representing T. A. Buck; Chickens; His mother's son; Pink tights and ginghams; Simply skirts; Underneath the high-cut vest; Catching up with Christmas; Knee-deep in knickers; In the absence of the agent.
"A dozen stories of eventful experiences in the life of a cherry, resourceful traveling saleswoman, to whom 'roast beef medium' is not only a food but a philosophy. A strictly up-to-date, slangy, Middle Western story." Booklist
Appeared in the American magazine, v. 72-75.

"Simple dialect sketches, fables, allegories, fairy tales and pictures of home life which take their color and meaning from the author's love for children. First five, Christmas stories." Pittsburgh

Fielding, Henry

History of Tom Jones, a foundling. 2v Macmillan
"Complete and unexpurgated history of a young man of strong natural impulses, a good disposition, and no overpowering sense of morality. Life in country and town in the year 1745. Squire Western and Partridge are comic gems of the finest quality. Of the highest importance in the history of literature, as indicating the lines on which the modern novel of manners was to be written." Baker
"It is the epic of youth by a master of comedy. It is great by virtue of the fine humour and satire, the clearness and unity of intellectual structure, its artistic conduct of complicated plot, its convincing realism in character and events." Pratt alcove

"The 'twig' is the daughter of a mid-western university professor. A born lover of ease and pleasure, she resents the unpretentious life of her high-minded parents; but, in moments of indecision, finds herself drawing strength from their traditions and ideals." Pittsburgh

*Brimming cup. Harcourt

"A story of the life of an American family in a small Vermont village, of the quiet, reliable husband and father, the imaginative little daughter, the two small boys, and the mother a woman of rare charm and cultivation who, for a time, is tempted to break away from her monotonous existence." Pittsburgh

Followed by Rough-hewn.

Day of glory. Holt

"War sketches, among which are 'France's fighting woman doctor,' an account of the war experiences of Dr. Nicole Gerard-Mangin, and 'The day of glory,' the day of the signing of the armistice." Booklist

*Hillsboro people. Holt

Contents: At the foot of Hemlock mountain; Petunias—that's for remembrance; The heyday of the blood; As a bird out of the snare; The bedquilt; Portrait of a philosopher; Flint and fire; In memory of L. H. W.; In New England; The deliverer; Hillsboro's good luck; Avunculus; Finis; A village Munchausen; The artist; A drop in the bucket; Piper Tim; Adeste fideles!

Includes a few poems not listed in Contents as given.

"Short stories of the country folks of a Vermont village, pictured with a quiet and tender humor." Cleveland

*Home fires in France. Holt

Contents: Notes from a French village in the war zone; The permissionaire; Vignettes from life at the rear; A fair exchange; The refugee; A little Kansas leaven; Eyes for the blind; The first time after; Hats; A honeymoon; Vive l'Amérique! La pharmacienne.

"Eleven sympathetic sketches of French life under war conditions, fiction in form, but fact in essence. Admirably written, with emphasis on the unyielding spirit of the French." N. Y. best books

Real motive. Holt

Contents: The pragmatist; The conviction of sin; An April masque; A sleep and a forgetting; A good fight and the faith kept; From across the hall; Vignettes from a life of two months; An academic question; Fortune and the fifth card; The city of refuge; An untold story; A thread without a knot; The great refusal; The sick physician.

Includes also three poems not listed in above contents.

"Appealing short stories, simple in plot. For the most part, American in scene and character." N. Y. best books

*Rough-hewn. Harcourt

"A prelude to the author's 'The brimming cup,' giving in detail the biographies of Neale and Marise from childhood to the time of their engagement." Pittsburgh

*Squirrel cage. Holt

"A penetrating, faithful study of social life in a middle western town, portraying the blighting effect of the struggle for social position upon a young girl's spirit and married life." N. Y. best books

At good old Siwash. Little

"Genuinely funny stories of college life in the Middle West. Their humor seldom fails and the slang in which they are related never approaches coarseness. Though the plots are extravagantly impossible, the atmosphere is correct and altogether they form one of the best accounts of co-educational college life yet written. Reprinted from the Saturday Evening Post." Booklist

Flamsted quarries. Waller, M. E.

Flandrau, Grace Hodgson

*Being respectable. Harcourt

"Story of life in millionaire circles in a middle western city. Pictures a social stratum which, although above that of the Babbitts, is no less vacuous. Recalls Main Street and Babbitt but is told with a more tolerant humor. Character drawing is excellent." Wis. bul.

Flaubert, Gustave

Madame Bovary; tr. by E. M. Aveling (Modern lib.) Boni

"Perhaps the most perfect work of realistic art in any language; a faithful and infinitely painstaking interpretation of actual life. It is a plain history of the slow but inevitable moral degeneration of a weak woman. The passionless candour of the narrative, the patient rendering of the squalor and narrowness of provincial life and of its effect on the woman's mind, make this a landmark in the history of naturalism." Baker

Salammbô. Brentano

"Salammbô is Hannibal's sister, the scene being laid in Carthage at the close of the first Punic war." Pittsburgh

"The enormous genius which can thus reconstruct—or invent, if you will—a world so different from the world we know, yet coherent, consistent, possible even, and tallying well with the few known facts of the matter, the absolutely unsurpassed excellence of the descriptions, the power and art of the thing grow on one strangely." Framley parsonage. Trollope, A.

France, Anatole, pseud.

At the sign of the Reine Pédauque; tr. by Mrs. W. Jackson; introd. by W. J. Locke. Lane
"The conversations and adventures—amorous, bacchanalian, and others—of the motley frequenters of an eating-house in early eighteenth-century Paris. Foremost in interest is the Abbé Coignard, a monk of abandoned habits, child-like disposition, and powerful intellect." Baker
"The matchless individuality of Maître Coignard's eloquence gives him rank in the company of Falstaff, Mr. Shandy, Uncle Toby, Dr. Primrose, Sir Roger de Coverley, Le Bourgeois gentilhomme, and Don Quixote." Athenæum 2: 35 Jl 13 '12

*Crime of Sylvestre Bonnard. Harper
"Sylvestre Bonnard is a delightful old savant, gourmand, and sentimentalist, who lives by himself among his books. His affection for the daughter of his old love induces him to become her guardian; and his crime consists in his capturing her by a ruse." Baker
"Into the character of Sylvestre Bonnard, that intelligent, contemplative, ironical, sweet-natured old philosopher, the author has put most of himself." Pratt alcove

The gods are athirst; tr. by A. Allinson. Lane
"The most profound and penetrating of all historical novels revealing the causes of the French Revolution." Pratt alcove

Little Pierre. Lane
"Recollections of the French novelist's childhood, in which child psychology, satire, anecdote and philosophy are delightfully blended." Cleveland

Penguin island; tr. by A. W. Evans. Lane
"An ironical history of the human race in the annals of the Penguins, a nation of birds, which were accidentally baptized in mistake for men. More cynical, though less morose, than Swift's Gulliver, and more destructive in its mockery. The satire of French history is of more limited interest." Baker

Revolt of the angels; tr. by Mrs. Wilfred Jackson. Lane
"To some it will seem flippant and heartless, to others blasphemous, while many will be found to condemn the author's lack of reticence in the treatment of sex and matters that many people regard as sacred. The book abounds in sayings wise and witty. Its frank, outspoken ideas and revolutionary doctrines show an extraordinarily wide knowledge and diversity of mind. M. France, for all his smiling gaiety, is deeply serious." Sat. rev. 118:sup2

"Terse, realistic stories, and sketches of homely, penurious life in a Massachusetts village. All deal with various phases of unhappiness." Baker

*Jane Field. Harper

"The spiritual tragedy of a nobly natured woman, a rigid Puritan, who is tempted by maternal love and the unlawful impulse to right mundane injustice, and sins stubbornly and perseveringly. A sort of tragic humour lights up the spectacle of her austere integrity brought by her own act to a position of falsehood, which she expiates by shame and penitence." Baker

Hiding-places. Scribner

"An old buccaneer with a taste for mystery, buries precious stones in leaden boxes in various places on his farm, bars out trespassers by the terms of his will and provides that finders of his own family shall be keepers. The incidents connected with the unearthing of the boxes make the interest of the story." Cleveland

Doña Perfecta; tr. by M. J. Serrano. Am. bk. co.

"Doña Perfecta is first of all, a story, and a great story. It deals with the passion of bigotry, as it deals with the passion of love, the passion of ambition, the passion of revenge. From the first moment to the last it is like some passage of actual events in which you cannot withhold your compassion, your abhorrence, your admiration, any more than if they took place within your personal knowledge." Pratt alcove

Gale, Zona

*Birth. Macmillan

"The small town, its homely, comfortable life, which takes so much more account of its creature comforts than the growth of its soul, its big heart and sympathy in the great tragedies, and its everyday gossip and pettiness, are skillfully pictured in this tragic story of father and son." Wis. bul.

*Faint perfume. Appleton

"Leda Perrin is a poor relation, driven by circumstances into the vulgar, squabbling family of Crumbs. When the divorced daughter Richmiel comes home with her little son Oliver, the last touch of coarseness is added to the horrors of the household. Barnaby Powers soon follows to plead for a share in his son, and he and Leda meet. The fragrance and serenity of their love is shattered by Richmiel. Abnegation on the part of the lovers follows but the book closes on a faint but persistent note of hope." Book rev. digest

Appeared in Scribner's magazine, v. 53-54.

*Forsyte saga. Scribner

"This volume brings together the chronicles of the Forsyte family which have been published separately as 'The man of property,' 'In chancery,' and 'To let,' with 'Indian summer of a Forsyte' and 'Awakening' as interludes in the long tale." Book rev. digest

"Within these pages John Galsworthy has collected his best work as a novelist. It is a compendium of the Victorian epoch and of the first twenty years of the twentieth century. Its characters are verifiably true, and the history of this typical English family is told not only by a first-rate literary artist, but by a thinker who is fundamentally honest and sincere." W: L. Contents: The grub-staker; The cow-boss; The remittance man; The lonesome man; The trail tramp; The prospector; The outlaw; The lease; The forest ranger.

"It is only in part a story of the cowboy,—it is really a picture of those fringes of frontier that are still left here and there in Montana and Wyoming. When the frontier is absolutely gone his book will keep in mind a passing phase of American civilization better than some more formal histories." Dial 1916

Garnett, David

Lady into fox. Knopf

"A year after her marriage as Silvia Tebrick was walking with her husband in a wood near their Oxfordshire home she was suddenly changed into a small red fox. As her nature rapidly became that of the animal into which she had been changed [her husband] continued to love her and deal gently with her vixenish ways. Finally, hunted down by the hounds, she died in his arms where she had sprung for protection." Book rev. digest

"The book is quick with a deep poetic emotion which comes of a rare sensibility to the English countryside and recalls something of Hudson, something, too, of Edward Thomas." Lit. rev.

"Fantasy, satire, allegory and realism are all kept firmly on the leash." Spectator 129:770

Appeared in McClure's magazine, v. 35-38.

Gibbs, Sir Philip Hamilton

Middle of the road. Doran

A picture of England after the European war.

"The characters of this novel matter very little as individuals. The author's aim has been to bring before us all the various currents and counter-currents of opinion, and the economic or social causes, which have kept and still keep Europe in a ferment." The Times [London] lit. sup.

Street of adventure. Dutton

"An inside view of life in a London newspaper office, following the ups and downs of the journalistic career with humor, sentiment and understanding." A. L. A. sup.

Wounded souls. Doran

"The appealing and tragic figures of this story of the German occupation of Lille, personify and make more poignantly real many of the truths about war conditions stated more baldly in his Now it can be told." Cleveland

Gigolo. Ferber, E.

Gilbreath, Olive

Miss Amerikanka. Harper

"An American girl in China at the outbreak of the war succeeds in traveling to Petrograd under the escort of a Russian general and his attaché, thus becoming the heroine of the love story which furnishes the slender plot. The charm of the book is in the picture of Russia as seen through her eyes and as interpreted for her by the young Russian." N. Y. best books

In the year of jubilee. Burt

"Satirizes the vulgarity and barbarism of the lower middle class, presenting a humorous commentator in a man with a mania for statistics, and a number of typical characters drawn and analysed with candour and realism." Baker

New Grub street. Murray

"A pessimistic study of the literary life under modern conditions, much of the poignancy due to an autobiographical element. The writer, who is a business man, succeeds, while those of superior talent and finer artistic conscience fall into distress and ruin." Baker

Private papers of Henry Ryecroft. Boni & Liveright

"The mellowest, kindest, and most human fruit of Gissing's pen. Pathetic in its autobiographic interest, as Ryecroft only too plainly reflected the struggles and disillusionments of Gissing's own career as an author. A defeated literary man comes into an annuity, gives up book-making, and settles down to quiet happiness and contemplation in the country. This is his diary with his observations of nature, people, books, and himself." Baker

Goncharov, Ivan Alexandrovitch
Oblomov; tr. from the Russian by C. J. Hogarth. Macmillan
"The best work of a Russian novelist contemporary with Turgenev and Dostoievskii and a friend of both. Oblomov is a Russian gentleman of keen intellect and appreciation and broad human sympathies, but without will-power or initiative, who finally dies the death of an overfed animal. 'Oblomovism' has come to be the symbol in Russian literature for this ineffectual type of Russian character." Cleveland

Followed by Allan Quatermain.

*She. Longmans
"'She' is an enchantress of a region of Africa, who preserves her beauty and her youth through many centuries." Pittsburgh

Haldeman-Julius, Emanuel, and Haldeman-Julius, Marcet
Dust. Brentano's
"A sordid epic of material success and spiritual failure in the story of a Kansas farmer who sacrifices all the beautiful things in his life, including the happiness of his wife and the lives of his two sons, to build out of prairie dust a model farm, and who lives to see that the end of all his effort is like the beginning—'drought and dust.' The authors know their material and wield it with vivid effect, but the reader's admiration for their artistry is tempered by irritation and depression." Cleveland

Hale, Edward Everett
*Man without a country. Little

"The author of these stories of the comedy and tragedy of workers' lives is himself a workingman. The stories are snapshots of life, revealing with few lines and simplest touches men and women at their work. They are pictured always as part of a complex social and economic system which exploits them." Book rev. digest

Hamsun, Knut

*Growth of the soil. 2v Knopf
"A realistic novel of rude peasant life in an out-of-the-way corner of Norway. It has vivid, well-differentiated characters and is of interest as a record of the development of a self-conscious community from a widely separated collection of isolated farms. It makes its deepest human appeal, however, as a story of man making a place for himself under primitive conditions and subject to the ordering of nature, rather than to the feverish demands of civilization; in so far as Isak and Inger, their children and neighbors, live close to the soil. There is wholesome growth and simple happiness. The story is told in a slow, simple style suited to its material." Cleveland

Wind of destiny. Houghton
"A subtle psychological and ethical study, with French and American characters and scenery." Baker

Hardy, Thomas

*Far from the maddening crowd. Harper
"Every character is of the lower class in England. But you have to turn back to Shakespeare for any tale of peasants and clowns and shepherds to compare with the conversations in this novel, so racy are they of the soil, and yet so touched with the finest art." C: D. Warner
"One of the author's seven great Wessex novels." Pratt alcove

Jude the obscure. Harper
"Mr. Hardy's rebellious views of life and religion, and leanings towards naturalistic methods, are given full play in this story of a peasant scholar's foiled ambition, which from beginning to end is sombre and in many of the incidents extremely painful." Baker

Life's little ironies. Harper
"Brief stories containing the quintessence of the author's fatalism, with a series of broadly comic stories appended as a sort of antidote." Baker

Mayor of Casterbridge. Harper
"Virtually the history of one man, an impetuous, domineering personality. Life in a small provincial town, with lavish description of the place and its rural surroundings." Baker

Pair of blue eyes. Harper
"A love story of two friends and a Cornish girl, ending in poignant tragedy. Scene, a little village on the Cornish coast." Baker

*Return of the native. Harper
"Clym Yeobright and his mother and the strangely fascinating Eustacia Vye are among Hardy's finest impersonations of human longing and disillusionment, anguish, and endurance. A typical example of Mr. Hardy's poetic treatment of nature and nature's influence on character." Baker

Tess of the D'Urbervilles. Harper
"Tragic history of a woman betrayed. This theme is worked out with austere simplicity, a group of figures representing the chief elements of rustic society being used with admirable art to enhance the central significance of Tess." Baker

*Under the greenwood tree. Harper
"An idyll of village life, in which the members of a carrier's family, the parish choir and various oddities, figure as a sort of a comic chorus to the main action, the loves of a rustic boy and girl." Baker

Hare, The. Oldmeadow, E. J.

Harker, Mrs. Lizzie Allen

Allegra. Scribner
"Jane Anne, the heroine of Mr. Wycherly's wards, changes her name to Allegra and goes upon the stage. This is the story of her struggle between ambition for a career and love." Cleveland

Concerning Paul and Fiametta. Scribner

*Ffolliots of Redmarley. Scribner
"Not very closely connected episodes, following the development of the six lively young Ffolliots and that of a young Radical who midway between his father's shop and a seat in Parliament falls in love with the oldest daughter." Wis. bul.

*Miss Esperance and Mr. Wycherly. Scribner
"Two very lovable small boys, adopted by a fastidious Scotch maiden lady, revolutionize her life and that of their other guardian, a middle-aged, scholarly man. Their later history is told in 'Mr. Wycherly's wards.'" A. L. A. sup.

*Circuit rider's wife. Altemus
"A very human story of the experiences of an American Methodist minister on circuit duty as seen through the eyes of his wife." Baker

Happily married. Doran
"The triangular comedy of a natural-born philanderer, his stately blond wife, and an irrepressible red-haired little vamp, who takes advantage of war work to wrap all the men around her little finger." Cleveland

My son. Doran
"The heroine of A circuit rider's wife deplores the lack of spirituality in her son, minister of a fashionable city church. Plot and love interest are of the slightest, the charm lying in her shrewd kindly comments on the ways of deacons, the peculiarities of parsonages, the emotional vagaries of certain ewe-lambs of the flock and the brand of Christianity that flourished 'for duration of the war.' Reprinted from The Saturday Evening Post." Cleveland

Harry, Myriam, pseud.

Little daughter of Jerusalem. Dutton
"Story of a passionate, precocious little girl, born and bred in Jerusalem amid its varied peoples and creeds. Here she lived in a world of dreams, was deeply impressed with the charm of the Holy city, but grew up with a minimum of religious faith. The story is really autobiographical. The author's father was a Russian Jew who became a convert to the faith of the English church, and her mother had been a German deaconess." Pittsburgh

The fool in Christ. Huebsch

"It outwardly professes to give us, from the sympathetically sophisticated point of view of our own informed modernity, the story of a present-day German peasant's religious monomania and propagandist career. Yet in reality it places before us, in the simple terms of a thoroughly individualized contemporary life, a moving restatement of the lost meaning of that Christian mystery, the mystic mingling of the human and the divine." Pittsburgh

Hausfrau rampant. Stinde, J. E.

Hawes, Charles Boardman

Great quest. Atlantic monthly

"A romance of 1826, wherein are recorded the experiences of Josiah Woods of Topham, and of those others with whom he sailed for Cuba and the Gulf of Guinea. A colorful and vividly characterized story of the adventures of treasure hunters on the wild West African coast in the days of press gangs and slavers." Cleveland

Scally, the story of a perfect gentleman. Houghton

"Scally, who as a forlorn yellow puppy rose like Arthur's good sword Excalibur from the bosom of the lake, grown into an unwieldy dog of genial disposition, is the lumbering deus ex machina in a love affair and other delicate family matters. A jolly little story reprinted from the Living age." Cleveland

Hay, John

Bread-winners. Harper

"Will give pleasure to many readers who have no taste for ordinary sensational fiction." Times [London] lit. sup.

Secret battle. Knopf

"One of the most notable English novels of the war. The theme is a new one, the gradual and inevitable wearing down of a brave man's nerve until he is shot as a coward. Shows that war relentlessly entails the survival of the fittest to endure filth and slaughtering, those who feel little and doubt never. A moving and convincing picture. The scene is chiefly Gallipoli." Cleveland

"In style alone an extraordinary achievement. In the interpretation of nature there are passages in this book that I have never seen surpassed in prose fiction." James Lane Allen

*Half-way house: a comedy of degrees. Scribner
"A young governess is reconciled to her unwise marriage to a middle-aged widower by the kindly persuasion of a gipsy philosopher. This curious gentleman's earlier and later adventures are recorded in Open country and Rest Harrow. The charm is the same in all: an unconventional but winning philosophy of beauty, simplicity and freedom." A. L. A. sup.

*Life and death of Richard Yea and Nay. Scribner
"Boldly imaginative study of life and character of Richard Coeur-de-Lion. While departing from strict accuracy in record of events, the story resuscitates the manners and emotions of the age of tournaments and crusades." Baker

Mainwaring. Dodd
"A quietly moving chronicle of the eighties in which Disraeli and Gladstone appear very thinly disguised. An inordinately ambitious politician is skilfully contrasted with the very human and long-suffering girl of the people whom he marries." Cleveland

Open country. Scribner
O.P. 1923

Mrs. Farrell. Harper
"Scene, a New England farm boarding-house. Story of a captivating young widow whose flirtations drive her into a position of extreme difficulty in relation to two men." Book rev. digest
First appeared under title Private theatricals in the Atlantic monthly, 1875.

*A modern instance. Houghton
"Called his representative novel; faithful, though purely external, delineation of the whole life of a village in Maine." Baker
"Represents that phase of the author's realism, in which he approaches Henry James most nearly, a realism characterized by extreme minuteness of detail, the aim being to convey a full sense of life rather than to tell a story. A faithful, if purely external picture of life in a Maine village. The central figures are a journalist and his wife." Baker

*Rise of Silas Lapham. Houghton
"History of an ignorant and coarse-grained, but manly character, who is first brought into humorous contrast with the refined society of the city, and then is shown making head against commercial disasters, which chasten without awakening his character." Baker
"Mr. Howells has never done anything better than this picture of a self-made American. The material was unpromising enough, but he has bestowed upon it the genial touch of the artist, and made of his homely hero something which comes very near to being a veritable creation." Pratt alcove

Lilies, white and red. Doran
O.P. 1923
Contents: Mademoiselle Prune; The cockerel.
"Two dramatic and moving war stories illustrating the loyalty and patriotism found alike in the old age and extreme youth of France." Cleveland

Hudson, Jay William

Abbé Pierre. Appleton
Scene, a little Gascon village. Principal characters, the old Abbé, Germaine, his spiritual child, and her American lover. Much interesting local color.

Hudson, William Henry

Dead Man's Plack: and An old thorn. Dutton
"Two stories of Hampshire, England. The first narrates very simply but with a few poetic touches the folk-tale of the Saxon King, Edgar the Peaceful, and his proud, beautiful, evil queen, Elfrida; the second tells with imaginative power the dark legend of the thorn tree's revenge for an innocent child's invasion of its personality." Cleveland

*Green mansions. Knopf
"Based on the naturalist-author's extensive travels in South America. A young man making his way over the Andes falls in with a tribe of savage Indians, discovers in the forest and becomes enamored of a mysterious being, part woman and part bird, and in seeking to unravel her mystery, passes through extreme peril of body and soul." Wis. bul.
"Now that Tolstoy has gone, I could least dispense with W. H. Hudson, probably the most acute, broad-minded, and understanding observer of Nature living. 'Green Mansions,' the romance of the bird girl Rima, a story actual yet fantastic, immortalizes, I think, as passionate a love of all beautiful things as ever was in the heart of man. In form and spirit the book is unique." J: Galsworthy

The purple land. Dutton
"A chronicle of adventure in the Banda Oriental (Uruguay) in the sixties, which, on its first appearance in 1885, was reviewed as a book of actual travel. Like Green mansions, it reflects with rare appreciation and unusual charm of artistic expression, the natural beauty, and picturesque life of the region, and has, in the humor and pathos of its incident, a warmth of human interest which the later story lacks." Cleveland

Tales of the pampas. Knopf
Contents: El Ombú; Story of a piebald horse; Pelino Viera's confession; Niñe Diablo; Marta Riquelme; Tecla and the little men; Appendix to El Ombú.
"Short stories, tragic or gruesome, based on incidents or legends of life on the Argentine pampas a hundred years ago. With the exception of two stories, this collection appeared in 1902 under the title El Ombú and in 1909 under the title South American sketches." Booklist

Hueffer, Ford Madox

Ring for Nancy. Bobbs
"A loving aunt, who wants to make a pleasant homecoming for the retired youngest major in the British army, invites all the women who do or have loved him to a country house and all accept but Lady Mary Savylle who, instead, leaves her own special maid when she rents her home for this odd house-party." Hugo, Victor Marie

"That everlasting struggle between mankind and fate, which was the great subject of the Greek drama, is the central idea of all Victor Hugo has ever done." Pratt alcove

Man who laughs. 2v Little

"Fantastic and partly burlesque pictures of English life and institutions in the Stuart period; a satire on princes, lords, and bishops, and on popular servility." Baker

Published also under the title By order of the king.

*Les Misérables. 4v Little

"One of the most powerful and absorbing romances in literature, dealing with the unfortunate and criminal classes of Paris. The central figure, Jean Valjean, is a conception of great impressiveness and nobility of character." Pratt alcove

Also carried by Crowell, 1 vol., $3.

*Ninety-three. Little

"A grandiose, rhetorical romance of the French Revolution, the incidents centering in a Breton district, where the Royalists attempt an insurrection." Baker

Notre Dame de Paris. 2v Little

"Published also under title The hunchback of Notre Dame. Resuscitates medieval Paris, its Gothic architecture and its peoples; with much of the fulness that characterizes Balzac's Scenes of Parisian life." Baker

"This work, of which the Cathedral rather than any of the characters is the real center, has been called by Swinburne 'the greatest of all tragic or historic or romantic poems in the form of a prose narrative.'" Pratt alcove

Toilers of the sea. 2v Little

"A prose poem of the sea, representing the eternal struggle between man's will and the elemental powers of nature. The scenery of Jersey and the neighboring seas are depicted with eloquence and superabundance of detail." Baker

Marie Grubbe; tr. from the Danish. Boni & Liveright

"A character sketch drawn against a background of seventeenth century Denmark; a brilliant, colorful picture of a period as loose moraled and far cruder than the Restoration in England. Marie Grubbe is the lovely, sensitive daughter of a dissolute landowner. The beauty of the story is in her promise and development, its tragedy in her moral disintegration." Cleveland

Gabrielle de Bergerac. Boni & Liveright

"Reprint of a charming little idyll of pre-Revolutionary France, written in the author's early manner and published in the Atlantic in 1869. The story is concerned with the romance of a beautiful demoiselle of the impoverished old nobility, pledged to a rich and suitable marriage, but in love with a young scholar of lowly birth." Cleveland

International episode. Harper
"A social comedy turning on the problem whether an English nobleman is to marry a beautiful American girl." Baker

Ivory tower. Scribner
"Four books of the contemplated ten of a novel of contemporary American life, the gist of the unfinished work, including most of the plot, being given in one hundred pages of notes. The scenes are laid in Newport, and the plot hinges upon a large fortune whose management the heir entrusts to a friend who betrays his trust. The theme is that underlying so much of the novelist's work, the essential fallibility of human nature. Artistically, the book reaches the high water mark of James' genius." Cleveland

*Portrait of a lady. 2v Houghton
"A character study, more complete and elaborate than Daisy Miller, of a young American woman in contact with the sophisticated characters and conditions of European society." Pratt alcove

*Roderick Hudson. Houghton

Long journey; Fire and ice; tr. from the Danish by A. G. Chater. Knopf
"A translation of the first two parts of the Danish novelist's historical cycle, 'The long journey.' The aim of the entire cycle is to retrace the long journey traveled by mankind from primeval chaos to modern civilization. The present volume tells how the use of fire first became known and gave rise to the beginnings of religious worship and how the ice-age became a civilizing force." Book rev. digest

The Gay-Dombeys. Macmillan
"One who knows his Dickens and something of the politics of England in the last quarter century will enjoy this book whose characters are mostly descendants of Dickens characters. The hero is a west African explorer who writes interesting letters from that country and who in his visits to England acquaints us with the character of the people and the times. Plot is loosely constructed." Booklist

*Man who did the right thing. Macmillan
"The story of the career in East Africa of Roger Brentham, a British officer lately resigned from the Indian service. Contrasts the practical patriotism of colonists, missionaries and administrators in the field, with the intrigues of those who pull the wires in the Foreign Office, and combines romance, humor, graphic description and expert knowledge of conditions." Challenge to Sirius. Dutton
"The 'Challenge to Sirius' is the challenge of life to the great indifference typified by the stars which a country child used to watch. The novel tells how his life met that challenge in the bohemian, unsuccessful literary circle of London, in his return to the country home to find his sweetheart married, in later adventures as confederate soldier in America, as servant to a priest in Yucatan, and in the final homely unromantic marriage with his widowed sweetheart." Booklist

Four roads. Doran
"How a group of Sussex yeomen react toward the war, is illustrated in seven sections, each named after one of the characters, and each representing a different point of view. Exceptionally well done." Cleveland
"The characters have a solidarity and earth-born reality that few of our contemporaries can surpass." Nation

Green apple harvest. Dutton
"Stormy career of the son of a Primitive Methodist with a brooding desire for religious experience, is set forth against a background of rural life in Sussex, England." Pittsburgh
"Sussex belongs to Miss Kaye-Smith even as Wessex belongs to Hardy whom she resembles in the relentless analysis of her characters and the inevitability of the fate which overtakes them." Cleveland

*Joanna Godden. Dutton
"Theme, the development of an intensely vital and human, faulty but lovable, woman who inherits a prosperous farm on the Sussex marshes and the guardianship of a younger sister. We leave her at 38, unmarried but about to become a mother, 'on the threshold of an entirely new life—her lover, her sister, her farm, her good name, all lost. But the past and the future still were hers.'" Book rev. digest
"She has created in Joanna Godden an intensely real character of simple but heroic proportions." Nation 114:292

"At its beginning, its one dominant character is fifteen years of age. At its end he is eighty-five. Its action opens at Boarzell in Sussex, five miles from the seacoast town of Rye, in 1835. It closes at the same place in 1905. During that interval a new England of the twentieth century has grown out of the old England of the nineteenth century, but Reuben Backfield remains unchanged." Book rev. digest
"It is a piece of history, as well as a powerful tale and events like the repeal of the Corn laws have due place in the perspective." Lib. assoc. rec. 18:176

Tamarisk town. Dutton
"A striking novel which depicts the warfare between the two ruling passions of a man's life: his love for a woman and his desire to transform his native Sussex village into a beautiful and aristocratic seaside resort. The story seems to show that there is also a conflict in the author's mind between the desire to paint a full-length portrait of the hero—the story covers the last forty years of the nineteenth century—and to recreate a place and period; her Victorian Margate (Tamarisk Town) is even more convincing than her characters." Cleveland

Hidden spring. Harper
"A young lawyer beginning his practice in a lumbering town, finds that all its inhabitants seem to be under the spell of one man who dominates the courts. How the newcomer arouses the intimidated townspeople and sets them free furnishes a thrilling tale, the merit of which lies largely in the plot." Cleveland

The source. Harper
"A young Boston decadent who is shanghaied to a Vermont lumber camp, finds in the work of developing the sulphate pulp industry, getting his lumber jacks in hand and fighting a powerful opposing Swedish syndicate the strong interest which reinstates his manhood. A love motive is interwoven with those of business and patriotism." Cleveland

Ravenshoe. Longmans

"A family romance, introducing us to a crowd of attractive people. The squire of Ravenshoe, his scapegrace brother, the blackleg Lord Walter, the old priest, the children, servants, fishermen, and West Country folk generally, are a galaxy of diverse character. Descriptive passages, dealing with scenery on west coast of England, with music, interiors, etc.; marvelously vivid and imaginative." Baker

"Considered the author's most successful work, being also his own first choice of all his writings." Pratt alcove

Recollections of Geoffrey Hamlyn. Longmans

"Henry, the younger brother of Charles Kingsley, died prematurely in 1876 leaving a literary legacy scarcely second to his brother's better known achievements. 'Geoffrey Hamlyn' is a story of adventure based on the author's own experiences in the Australian gold fields." Pratt alcove

"Two of them, the best, 'Swept and garnished,' and 'Mary Postgate,' are war stories." Cleveland

*Jungle book. Doubleday

"Fables of man and beast in India, poetical rather than allegorical in motive, aiming to interpret the actual character and mode of reasoning of the animals, so far as human insight and sympathy can go. Mowgli, the wolves' foster-child, the friend and free companion of the jungle-folk, is one of the most fascinating creations in modern literature." Baker

*Kim. Doubleday

"Kim is a street arab from Lahore; an alert, precocious little vagabond, whose relations to the British secret service and journeys through India as the disciple of an old Lama bring before the reader a rich panorama of the multifarious life of the country." Baker

"Kim remains Kipling's highest achievement in writing the long story." Pratt alcove

Lithuanian village; authorized translation from the Yiddish by I. Goldberg. Brentano's
O.P. 1923
"Intimate, poignant pictures of Yiddish peasants in a quaint Lithuanian village, fast being depopulated by emigration to America. The author, one of the leading Yiddish writers, has been compared with Pinski." Cleveland

Korolénko, Vladimir G.
Birds of heaven, and other stories; tr. from the Russian. Duffield
Contents: Birds of heaven; Isn't it terrible? "Necessity;" On the Volga; The village of God.
"Short stories, four of which depict Russian character. "Necessity" is a mystical Eastern tale that attempts to reconcile necessity and free will." Pittsburgh

Makar's dream, and other stories. Duffield
Contents: Makar's dream; The murmuring forest; In bad company; The day of atonement.
"The first story is a whimsical tale of Siberian exile 'in the far forests of Yakutsk,' a region known to Korolenko in his own years of exile. The other three are stories of Little Russia. A brief introduction gives the main facts of Korolenko's own life and the characteristics of his work." Cleveland

Kuprin, Alexander
Bracelet of garnets, and other stories; authorized translation by L. Pasvolsky; introd. by William Lyon Phelps. Scribner
Contents: The bracelet of garnets; The horse-thieves; The Jewess; Anathema; The Læstrygonians; An insult; The park of kings; An evening guest; A legend; Demir-Kayá; The garden of the Holy Virgin.
"Kuprin has been compared to O. Henry, but his stories lack the clever artifices and surprise plots of that writer, and, as a reviewer in the London Times says, 'Kuprin's work hasn't the everlasting American smile.'" Cleveland

The duel. Macmillan
"A novel of life at a Russian military station near the German border, mirroring the drunkenness, licentiousness and general corruptness of the provincial post. Seems to be a slice out of the author's own experience, in which the characters are strongly individualized and conditions depicted with both realism and artistic imagination." Cleveland

A Slav soul, and other stories; introd. and tr. by Stephen Graham. Putnam
O.P. 1923
Contents: The Slav soul; The song and dance; Easter day; The idiot; The picture; Hamlet; Mechanical justice; The last word; The white poodle; The elephant; Dog's happiness; A clump of lilacs; Anathema; Tempting Providence; Cain.
"The tales are more human and intimate, nearer to the earth and daily life and less fantastic than those of many modern Russian writers." Cleveland
"Practically free from the sex emphasis which bars so much Russian fiction from small public libraries." Booklist

The Holy City, Jerusalem II; tr. by V. S. Howard. Doubleday
"A sequel to Jerusalem, recording the disappointments and fullfilments which come to some of the Swedish Zionists, especially Ingmar, who comes to Jerusalem to right the wrong he has done Gertrude. The story is unrelieved by humor or any variation of the emotional tone which throughout is deeply serious and somewhat mystical." Cleveland

Jerusalem; tr. by V. S. Howard. Doubleday
"The fortunes of a group of Swedish peasants converted to Zionism who join a community of colonists from America and go to live in Jerusalem. The practically separate incidents are fused by Lagerlöf's artistry into a coherent story, and the ignorance, superstition and fanaticism of peasant life, sordid stuff in the hands of naturalistic writers, are transmuted by her idealism and tenderness into elements of beauty and charm." Cleveland

*Liliecrona's home. Dutton

Outcast. Doubleday
"Sven Elversson, returning from a disastrous Arctic expedition, is accused of having shared in the crime of cannibalism. A pariah on his native island, he becomes the refuge of all the outcast and suffering, and, in the end, is not only vindicated, but is eulogized by the pastor as the one who above all others has upheld the sanctity of human life in a world gone mad with slaughter. Begins as a sympathetic picture of Swedish life and character, but suffers from the introduction of too many characters and motives." Cleveland

Sons and lovers. Kennerley

"An intense and realistic story in which the relationship of mother and son is the predominating theme. There are two other women in Paul Morel's life; Miriam, highly sensitive and spiritual, who appeals only to his higher nature; and Clara, a woman of fire and passion, who draws him with the lure of the senses. Neither satisfies him; and neither can wean him from devotion to his mother." Book rev. digest

Le Sage, Alain R.

Adventures of Gil Blas of Santillane. Holt

"The form of this famous example of the picaresque romance and the characters and incidents were borrowed from Spain. A representation of all sides of life and all classes of people. The hero rises by successive stages from the condition of a valet to that of confidant of the prime minister of Spain." Baker

Of limited appeal.

Lever, Charles James

Charles O'Malley, the Irish dragoon. Little

"A random and reckless chronicle (1808-14) of boisterous fun, personal humours, love-making, and martial adventures. After Donegal and Dublin, the Peninsular War, and the countries of Portugal, Spain, and France, furnish the mise en scène." Baker

Tom Burke of "Ours." Little

"Stories of Irish soldiers on service abroad, the Peninsular chapters founded largely on Napier's history of the war. Napoleon's portrait is carefully drawn." Baker

Lever, The. Orcutt, W: D.

Lewis, Sinclair

*Babbitt. Harcourt

"Satire on American middle-class life in a good-sized city. George F. Babbitt is a successful real estate man, a regular fellow, booster, rotarian, Elk, Republican, who uses all the current catchwords, molds his opinions on those of the Zenith Advocate-Times and believes in 'a sound business administration in Washington.'" *Beloved vagabond. Lane
"An irresistible, irresponsible tale of the open road and the free life. The hero is a wandering philosopher who picks up a little boy out of the gutter, adopts him, wanders with him through Europe and educates him by the way." Pittsburgh

Fortunate youth. Lane
"A gay romance the action of which takes place nominally in the England of 1890-1910, but really in that fairyland east of the sun and west of the moon where the beggar-lad seeks his fortune and finds it." N. Y. best books

*Glory of Clementina. Lane
"In this story of the humanizing of a rough and dowdy portrait painter of brilliant attainments, and an eccentric widower, familiar elements of popular fiction are worked naturally into a romance full of novelty, charm and whimsicality." N. Y. best books

House of Baltazar. Lane
"John Baltazar, a mathematical genius and the slave of his quixotic impulses [returns to England from a self-imposed exile of 18 years in China, and buries] himself in an out of the way rural nook with a young Chinese mathematical prodigy. A German air raid finally bombs Baltazar out of his retreat. He becomes one of the nation's greatest men and is on the eve of becoming minister, when still another quixotism makes him sacrifice all for the sake of the honor of a newly discovered son." Cleveland

Jaffery. Lane
"The hero, a successful war correspondent, assumes responsibility for the widows of two dead friends, one fragile and exacting, the other an Amazonian Albanian, who has spent most of her girlhood in the Chicago stockyards. The straits in which love and loyalty involve him, form the plot of the story." Cleveland

Joyous adventures of Aristide Pujol. Lane
"Fantastic episodes ranging from selling corn cure to adopting a baby, in the life of a quick-witted, vivacious and kind-hearted Provençal, something of a vagabond and a good deal of a man." N. Y. best books
Appeared in the American magazine, v. 71-74.

Morals of Marcus Ordeyne. Lane
"A gay and beguiling tale of the transformation of a once staid literary bachelor." Pittsburgh

The mountebank. Lane
"War's violent sleight of hand transforms Andrew Lackaday, a circus acrobat with a taste for military science, into a Brigadier General, fit mate for the 'faraway princess' of his youthful dreams, and, the fighting over, thrusts him back into his grotesque mountebank's garb and his quixotic partnership with Elodie, a French girl of the people." Cleveland

*Septimus. Lane
"Relates with much whimsical humor the extraordinary circumstances in which an impractical, simple-minded and chivalrous Engish inventor becomes involved through his love for one woman and his compassion for another." A. L. A. sup.

*Simon the jester. Lane
"A light-hearted man of the world decides to secure a brief happiness in the six months of life promised him by indulging his benevolent instincts—a resolve which involves him in various incongruous and tragic situations." A. L. A. sup.

*Honorable Senator Sagebrush. Scribner
"Story of the 'clean-up' conducted by a young reformer in the Western state in which his father is the political boss." Cleveland

The quickening. Bobbs
O.P. 1923
"Under the religious influence of his mother, the young hero tries hard to make of himself a minister and failing, finds his field in his father's iron business. Scene is laid in the Tennessee coal region." Pittsburgh

Real man. Scribner
"An efficient bank cashier suddenly has to depart under a cloud. The plot relates how, changed in name and character, he forcefully puts through the financial and engineering end of a big irrigating project for a company which is fighting for its life against moneyed interests. A stirring story." Cleveland

*The wreckers. Scribner
"A western story of adventure and big business. Jimmy, a boy stenographer, recounts in breezy style how his boss cleaned things up and saved the railroad from a gang of profiteers." Cleveland

Lynn, Margaret

*Free soil. Macmillan
"The experiences of a New England abolitionist family who, during Pierce's administration, went to Kansas to help make it a 'free' state." Pittsburgh

Ma Pettingill. Wilson, H. L.

Maartens, Maarten, pseud.

Eve: an incident of Paradise regained. Dutton
"An intimate picture of Dutch people and Dutch life, with a deep ethical significance. Politics flavor the tale, and its detailed presentation of social life in Holland is rich with local color." N. Y. times

God's fool. Appleton
"Study of a strong young man whose intellect is that of a child, who has lost three senses by an accident in childhood, and who finds himself shut away from his fellow creatures when he desires ardently to help them. Has a decided ethical bearing." Baker

Sin of Joost Avelingh. Burt
O.P. 1923
"Written in correct and forcible English by a Dutch novelist. Truthful genre-painting of homely Dutch life, with lifelike characters, and an interesting psychological study of the quixotic Joost. The plot pivots on a murder." Baker

McAlister and his double. Train, A.

Macaulay, Mrs. Fannie C.

*Lady of the decoration. Century
"Attractive story of a young American teacher's experience in a Japanese mission school, as she relates them in letters to home friends." A. L. A. cat.

Macaulay, Rose

*Dangerous ages. Boni & Liveright
"A clever rap at Freudians and an acute character study of four generations of women: the great-grandmother who has found peace in waiting for the end, the grandmother turning to psychoanalysis for an outlet for unspent emotions, the mother breaking with the nervous effort to snatch up again her girlhood career as a defense against useless old age, and the whole-hearted ultra modern daughter." Booklist

*Potterism. Boni & Liveright
"A study of a group of people on the home front during and after the European war, and of how it reacted on the sincere and the insincere." Outlook (London) 1920

McCutcheon, George Barr

Anderson Crow, detective. Dodd
"Written in a farcical, extravagant style." N. Y. times

*Graustark. Dodd
Thrilling tale of romance and adventure.

MacDonald, George

Annals of a quiet neighborhood. McKay
"Story of the inner life of a Scotch parish as revealed to its rector." N. Y. best books

*Robert Falconer. McKay
"Interesting study of Calvinism. The joys and woes of boyhood are finely sketched. Dooble Sammie, with his love for his old fiddle, and the Calvinistic grandmother, brimming over with affection which she thinks it her duty to repress, are touching figures; the latter a portrait of MacDonald's own grandmother." Baker

Sir Gibbie. McKay
"Whether as the poor dumb waif in Glasgow, whose heart is full of love for all men, or as Sir Gibbie the social reformer, the hero is a beautiful and interesting character." Baker

MacFarlane, Peter Clark

Man's country. Cosmopolitan bk.
"Story of a great love of which business was jealous." Subtitle

McFee, William

Aliens. Doubleday
"Marked by originality and charm, an involved plot and discursive style. A household of English artists living in New Jersey become interested in a handsome Italian woman next door, and learn from her husband, a marine engineer, the story of their lives which are dominated by his malevolent younger brother. Both manner and matter suggest the work of Conrad." N. Y. best books

*Captain Macedoine's daughter. Doubleday
"The colorful tale of a vivid-souled girl used as a pawn by her rascally father in promoting the Anglo-Hellenic Development Company bubble. The scenes are mostly in Mediterranean coast towns." Cleveland

*Casuals of the sea. Doubleday
"Title largely metaphorical, indicating the aimless drifting of the family of a shiftless English mechanic. The daughter recalls in temperament and career, the title figure in the Rise of Jennie Cushing; one son goes to the Boer war, the experiences of the other as stoker on a tramp steamer are the subject of much vivid description." Cleveland

Command. Doubleday
"The hero is a mate on a British freighter, a nonentity, neither good nor bad, until chance plunges him into the midst of responsibility and romance, and duty and love bring out his latent power. At once a dramatic tale of Mediterranean adventure and a novel of character, alive, varied and richly humorous." Cleveland

MacGill, Patrick

The rat-pit. Doran
"A companion volume to 'Children of the dead end,' picturing the life of a woman as that did the life of a man of the underworld. A somber story, lighted up at rare intervals with flashes of beauty." Book rev. digest
"A tragically realistic novel, evidencing marked literary skill." Dial 59:276

MacHarg, William, and Balmer, Edwin

Blind man's eyes. Little
"Novel murder and mystery story with a blind man as solver of riddles, and an ingeniously complicated plot worked out against a background of 'big business.'" N. Y. best books

*Indian drum. Little
"Story of mystery and intrigue. It is based on a legend that whenever Lake Michigan takes a life, a sound like the booming of an Indian drum is heard." Pittsburgh

Machen, Arthur

"Machen belongs to the small company of genuine mystics and has only one theme, the Mystic Vision, and only one plot, the Rending of the Veil." Nation 115:258

"Mr. Machen's beautiful and supple prose makes his writing a continual round of joy. 'The Hill of Dreams' is a golden book of deep and quiet emotion and the hallowed loneliness of the soul." Edwin Seaver in Nation 116:275

Hill of dreams. Knopf

Mr. Machen tells us, in the introduction written for the 1923 edition, that he has tried to write a "Robinson Crusoe of the soul." Lucian Taylor, a boy with an oversensitive imagination, grows up in the outland country between Wales and England and later goes to London to try his fortune at letters, and finds "the whole drab suffocating order of civilization arrayed against him."

House of souls. Knopf

Contents: A fragment of life; The white people; The great god Pan; The inmost light.

"Four tales of the supernatural, of spirits both beautiful and evil, which surround and influence us. At least two of the stories are tales of terror." Book rev. digest

Secret glory. Knopf

"The growth and development of genius with its power to color and vivify the everyday things of life is the theme of this novel which relates the story of the boyhood of its hero, an artist and mystic." Pittsburgh

Mackail, Denis George

*Romance to the rescue. Houghton

"Mrs. Cartwright, separated from her husband, writes an anonymous play which, through an error, is submitted to that great English actor-manager and accepted. The numerous complications which attend Cartwright's presentation of her comedy make a humorous picture of the world of actors and dramatists." Cleveland

McKenna, Stephen

Sheila intervenes. Doran

O.P. 1923

"An early pre-war novel concerned with the machinations of a sprightly Irish girl who, in the spirit of benevolent mischief, nearly ruins four lives, including her own. Full of wit and gaiety and delightful characters but not on the same artistic level as Mr. McKenna's later novels." Cleveland

*Sonia: between two worlds. Doran

"A substantial as well as absorbingly interesting novel. George Oakleigh, the young Liberal M. P. and publicist who tells the story, follows a group of his friends through public school and university out into the seething and materialistic world of the English 'governing classes' during the two decades preceding the war, and carries them through a year of the struggle. The central figures are David O'Rane, a brilliant young Irish radical, and Sonia Dainton, a spoiled beauty." Cleveland

Followed by Sonia married.

Sonia married. Doran

"An epilogue to 'Sonia: between two worlds.' Only after her selfishness and infidelity have brought much suffering to herself and to those who love her, does Sonia finally approach true happiness." Pittsburgh

Mackenzie, Compton

Altar steps. Doran

"A fictional study of religious experience, dealing with the soul progress of a born priest from infancy to ordination and constituting a history of Anglo-Catholicism from 1880 to the close of the Boer War. The boyhood scenes are depicted with much charm and humor and the book shows a vast deal of knowledge of the ecclesiastical history and biography of the period. Announced as the prelude to a trilogy, The parson's progress." Cleveland

Carnival. Appleton

"Jenny Raeburn, a vivacious, high-spirited, mutinous child, tumbled up in a squalid English household until the lodger, a retired clown, encouraged her genius for dancing. Mr. Mackenzie is bent on telling us eveything about the life of a dancing girl." Spectator

Plasher's Mead. Harper

"A clever psychological study of the various emotional phases of young love drawn against a mellow background of English country scenes and country life. Appeared in England as Guy and Pauline." Cleveland

*Poor relations. Harper

"The amusing predicament of a successful English playwright imposed upon by a lot of pesky relatives. In desperation he flees to America, leaving each family one-fifth of his English estate, and chuckling over the wrangles he knows will ensue. A diverting tale bordering on farce but distinguished by gentle irony." Cleveland

*Rich relatives. Harper

Story of the orphan, Jasmine Grant, daughter of the only unsuccessful member of an eminently prosperous and respectable English family, who is passed on from one to another of her four rich uncles.

*Sinister street. Appleton

"Carries Michael Fane, the child and boy of Youth's encounter, through four peaceful years at Oxford and contrasting experiences in the underworld of London. This, like the previous book, is an extraordinarily real and vital character study developed with every value that a rich diction can supply." Cleveland

Sequel to Youth's encounter.

Youth's encounter. Appleton

"An intimate and remarkably convincing account of the life from infancy through adolescence of a boy with an unusual endowment of personality, charm and imagination. Published in England as v. 1 of Sinister street." Cleveland.

Followed by Sinister street.

Macklin, Alys Eyre, comp. and tr.

Twenty-nine tales from the French. Harcourt

"The writers, who are all living Frenchmen, include Tristan Bernard, Frédéric Boutel, Max and Alex Fischer, Henri Duvernois, Claude Farrère, Gyp Hermant, Maurice Level, Paul and Victor Margueritte, Marcel Prévost, and Marcelle Tinayre. Each tale is prefaced by a brief biographical note of the author." Book rev. digest

Typical examples of the peculiarly French art of the conte, with an introductory essay on the French conte by Robert Herrick.

The catfish. Bobbs

"Serious study of a character of the William Morris type. The story is chiefly concerned with the influence on his life of two very different women, the one sympathetic and 'comfortable,' the other of 'the world's catfish—anything or anybody who introduces into life the "queer, unpleasant, disturbing touch of the Kingdom of Heaven."'" Cleveland

Davenport. Lane

"A study of dual personality in which the secondary self, unlike most cases of the sort, real or fictitious, is an idealization of the primary personality and is the hero of that original." Cleveland

*Abington abbey. Dodd

"Story of an aristocratic and provincial English family for whom life moves upon a carefully guarded plane." Pittsburgh

Followed by The Graftons.

The Clintons, and others. Dodd

"Short stories with an English setting. The first takes us back to the eighteenth century beginning of the Clinton family; the second describes the Squire's childhood, and the third, the Clintons in the European War. Five other stories conclude the volume." Cleveland

*Eldest son. Dodd

"Agreeable and leisurely story of English life. It is the old tale of the stern but affectionate father, and the heir who desires to bring home a bride against whom his parent has been unjustly prejudiced." Pittsburgh

Sequel to The squire's daughter. Followed by The honor of the Clintons

Exton manor. Dodd
"Pleasing, leisurely story of English village life centering around a high-church vicar and his wife and the manor family. Style is reminiscent of Trollope." A. L. A. sup.

*The Graftons. Dodd
"Reminiscent of Trollope's Barsetshire novels in its excellent character drawing and the way it conveys the mellow color and texture and quiet charm of English country life." Cleveland
Sequel to Abington abbey.

Greatest of these. Dodd
"A slow-moving story centering about the relations of a non-conformist preacher of strong and gentle character with his church of England confrères." Cleveland

*Honour of the Clintons. Dodd
"Shows how Squire Clinton and his family meet and solve a problem of family honor." Pittsburgh Sequel to The eldest son. Followed by The old order changeth.

*Old order changeth. Dodd
"Leisurely narrative, almost devoid of incident, but rich in atmosphere and characterization, its theme the passing of the old order of English landed wealth. Gives in its last chapters an interesting glimpse of the effects of the outbreak of the European war. English title, Rank and riches." N. Y. best books

*Squire's daughter. Dodd
"Story dealing with the affairs of an old-fashioned English county family, the members of which all bend to the will of the masterful head." Pittsburgh
Followed by The eldest son.

Watermeads. Dodd
"The fortunes of an English country family, owners of an old estate which is at once an almost overwhelming burden and a peculiar joy. The chief interest lies in the 'feeling for place,' which exerts an influence on the lives of the Conway family such as is difficult for Americans to estimate." Cleveland

Captain Margaret. Macmillan
"A seventeenth century tale centering about the character of Captain Margaret, a soldier by profession and an idealist by temperament. A combination of realistic sea story and the romance both of love and of adventure." Cleveland

A mainsail haul. Macmillan
Short stories of the sea.

Multitude and solitude. Macmillan
"Story of a young writer's reconstruction of his life after the woman who had been his chief inspiration was suddenly killed. He goes to America with a friend to find a cure for sleeping sickness. The main interest is the character of the man as made by his literary failure and success and its growth under terrible hardship, responding to the beautiful spirit of the woman he had loved. She never appears but her influence is felt throughout the story." Booklist

A tarpaulin muster. Dodd
Contents: Edward Herries; A white night; Big Jim; El Dorado; The pirates of Santa Anna; Davy Jones's gift; Ghosts; Ambitious Jimmy Hicks; Anty Bligh; On growing old; A memory; On the Palisades; The rest-house on the hill; Gentle people; Some Irish fairies; The Cape Horn calm; A Port Royal twister; In a fo'c'sle; The bottom of the well; Being ashore; One Sunday; A Raines law arrest; The schoonerman's close calls; The yarn of Happy Jack.

Children of the market place. Macmillan

Historical novel in form of fictitious autobiography of a young Englishman who settled in Chicago in 1833 and formed a life-long friendship with young Stephen Douglas. A panorama of the history and politics of the country in the stormy period which led up to the Civil war. Brings in Lincoln.

Mitch Miller. Macmillan

"Mitch Miller relates the story of his and Skeet Kirby's adventures as they follow as closely as possible in the footsteps of Tom Sawyer. Mitch is poetic and imaginative, with flashes of keen insight into life's problems. So unusual is he, that the story is introspective and therefore more for adults than for boy readers. The scene is laid in the town where part of Lincoln's early life was spent and the story is permeated with the Lincoln tradition." Cleveland

Matthews, Brander, ed.

Vignettes of Manhattan. Scribner

Contents: In the little church down the street; The twenty-ninth of February; At a private view; Spring in a side street; A Decoration-day revery; In search of local color; Before the break of day; A mid-summer midnight; A vista in Central park; The speech of the evening; A Thanksgiving-day dinner; In the midst of life.

Maugham, William Somerset

Moon and sixpence. Doran

"The painter, in this novel, is an incarnate example of the 'divine tyranny of art' in his quest of the moon, in which the six-pence in every conventional form—home, family, food, the opinion of mankind, fame, decency itself—is contemptuously thrown aside." Booklist

Of human bondage. Doran

"Realistic portrayal of the life of a youth handicapped by deformity, whose early life was a process of self-torture. When he escapes from the cruelty of his school-fellows and the uncongenial atmosphere of his hypocritical and selfish uncle it is only to plunge deeper into gloom as a lonely lad in London, as a student at Heidelberg, and as a would-be artist in the Latin quarter in Paris." Pittsburgh

"It is all very clever, and in spite of the depressing atmosphere of the book, its hopelessness, and the sensation akin to nausea it sometimes gives, it is arresting. The book is a distinct achievement." Sat. rev.

Trembling of a leaf. Doran

Contents: The Pacific; Mackintosh; The fall of Edward Barnard; Red; The pool; Honolulu; Rain; Envoi.

Maupassant, Guy de

A new edition of the novels and stories of Maupassant, translated and edited by Ernest Boyd, is being published by Knopf, at $2 per volume.

*Odd number. Harper

Contents: Happiness; A coward; The wolf; The necklace; The piece of string; La mère Sauvage; Moonlight; The confession; On the journey; The beggar; A ghost; Little soldier; The wreck.

"Title story a faithful transcript of life and manners in a Norman village." Baker

Pierre and Jean. Brentano

"A sombre and tragic study of bourgeois life, the tale of two brothers, one of whom is suddenly led to suspect that the other is the child of his mother's adultery." Baker

Second odd number; thirteen tales; translation by C. H. White; introd. by W. D. Howells. Harper

Contents: Tony; Decorated; The colonel's idea; The jewels; Fear; Two friends; Relics of the past; A question of diplomacy; Mademoiselle Perle; The madman; The homecoming; Passion; Grave-walkers.

"Includes three stories of the Franco-Prussian war. The translation is spirited but too much in United States idiom; the stories, several of which have appeared in other collections of De Maupassant's tales, are not equal in delicate art to the thirteen of the original Odd Number." Cleveland

Yvette, and other stories; tr. by A. G. (Mrs. John Galsworthy), with a preface by Joseph Conrad. Knopf

Contents: Yvette; Mademoiselle Fifi; Two friends; A duel; Old mother Savage; Miss Harriet; The umbrella; The piece of string; Queen Hortense; At sea; A sale.

"Yvette is a triumph in the fine art of narration. It is a peculiarly French love-tale of the demi-monde." Baker

Maurois, Andrè

Silence of Colonel Bramble. Lane

"An interpretation of English, Irish and Scotch character from the point of view of a witty Frenchman. Composed largely of mess-room conversations." Book rev. digest

"A trifle risqué at times from a Puritanic point of view, but always witty and artistically delicate." N. Y. times

Day's journey. Doubleday

"The story has an unusual and engaging theme, the lifelong friendship of two men. The drama of their friendship unfolds thru its successive stages—separation and return, a long period of bachelorhood, belated and unsuccessful experiences with marriage, from which they are both freed to live together again in their mellower age." Book rev. digest

For better, for worse. Dodd

English title, Remedy against sin. Story based on the injustice of the English divorce law.

General Mallock's shadow. Appleton

"An English army officer who has brooded over his undeserved military disgrace for fifteen years and has reached the verge of insanity finds an opportunity to retrieve his reputation. The love interest is furnished by the romances of his daughters." N. Y. best books

*Spinster of this parish. Dodd

"Like the author's 'For better, for worse,' this novel seems intended to expose the injustice of the English divorce laws. Remarkable for the dignity with which an unconventional theme is handled." Wis. bul.

Adventures of Harry Richmond. Scribner

"The story is kaleidoscopic, changing from country to town, from England to Germany, the personages equally multifarious. Rich in imaginative descriptions of country and town, of sea and forest, both in England and Germany." Baker

Amazing marriage. Scribner

"Like One of our Conquerors, an unorthodox treatment of a marriage problem, and quite as difficult to read." Baker

Beauchamp's career. Scribner

"Beauchamp is a modern Gracchus, an impetuous and disinterested champion of the oppressed; and his history entails a broad view of the politics of mid-century England in the light of Carlyle's teaching. Interwoven is a psychologic study of love exemplified in the hero, who is successively enamored of three women." Baker

*Diana of the crossways. Scribner

"A study of character and emotion in which a beautiful and gifted woman comes through varied experiences of love and matrimony to happiness at the end. It is full of both comedy and passion and is direct, dramatic and vivacious. The character of Diana was modeled from the Hon. Caroline Norton, a poet and beauty who was conspicuous in London society in the early part of the nineteenth century." Pratt alcove

*The egoist; a comedy in narrative. Scribner

"A brilliant comedy in the form of a novel in which is pictured the arch-egoist, Sir Willoughby Patterne. The book glitters with philosophical fancies and wit, and in Clara Middleton and Vernon Whitford, we have two of Meredith's finest characters." Pratt alcove

Evan Harrington. Scribner

"A sustained comedy in which the subtile conflict of class prejudice is developed with infinite humor. Largely autobiographical." Baker

*Ordeal of Richard Feverel. Scribner

"This novel, probably the most widely read of all Meredith's works, is written with a thoughtful purpose. It is full of poetic beauty and keen epigram. It is primarily a story of father and son. The father, though a man of fine intelligence and noble aims, through his fatal pedantry brings ruin and misery to the son he loves." Pratt alcove

Rhoda Fleming. Scribner

"Heroine daughter of a yeoman, the hero a farmer. Rustic scenes provide a good deal of humor, but the main action is serious, with scenes of heartfelt tragedy." Baker

Sandra Belloni (originally Emilia in England). Scribner

"Sequel, Vittoria. Two novels, comprising the life story of a noble Italian woman of genius. Deals with the comedy of English society and the domestic life of a parvenu family; then with the Italian insurrection of 1848." Baker

Tragic comedians. Scribner

"Tells the story of the love-episode which led to the tragic death of Ferdinand Lassalle, the German socialist. All the characters are real people, only the names being changed." Pittsburgh

Vittoria. Scribner

"Vittoria is a noble Italian with a wonderful voice, the Emilia of 'Sandra Belloni.' She is to give a signal for a patriotic uprising during the insurrection of 1848-49, but the plot collapses. Several of the other characters of 'Sandra Belloni' reappear in this book. The references to 'The Chief' are to Mazzini." Pittsburgh

Merejkowski, D. S.

Death of the gods. Putnam

"The first of a trilogy of historical novels the theme of which is the eternal antagonism between the Christian and pagan elements in our nature. In this volume Julian the Apostate is the central figure; in the two following volumes the rôle is filled by Leonardo da Vinci and Peter the Great." Pittsburgh

Peter and Alexis. Putnam

Introduction by W: J: Locke.

One man's view. Dutton
"Mamie Heriot, who leaves her husband for the other man, learns that 'the romance doesn't wear any better because the marriage service has been omitted.' Sir George Heriot meeting her five years after finds that he loves her still and knows that he must choose between peace of mind and his pride. He chooses peace and asks her to come back." Book rev. digest
Introduction by Granville Barker.

Position of Peggy Harper. Dutton
"Clever study of a young English actress' rise to the position of a West End star and of the effect of success on her attitude toward her fiancé, a young dramatist." Booklist
Introduction by Sir A. W. Pinero.

To tell you the truth. Dutton
Contents: Mademoiselle ma mère; Aribaud's two wives; That villain her father; The statue; The celebrity at home; Picq plays the hero; A flat to spare; A portrait of a coward; The boom; Pilar Naranjo; The girl who was tired of love; In the year of our Lord 1918; A pot of pansies; Floromond and Frisonnette.
"Gay and tender little stories of actors and artists in Merrick's familiar Paris setting. The two best are 'Mademoiselle ma mère' and 'Picq plays the hero.'" Cleveland

*When love flies out of the window. Dutton
"Story of a young English girl stranded in Paris, her marriage to a journalist, poor and ambitious, their struggles and ultimate success as actress and playwright." Pittsburgh
Introduction by Sir W. R. Nicoll.

While Paris laughed. Dutton
"'Being the pranks and passions of the poet Tricotrin,' an attic-philosopher of the Paris Latin Quarter who preferred a 'herring and no socks, with the prospect of renown' to bartering his freedom for a bourgeois mess of pottage. Gayly satirical little tales which should be read two or three at a time to get the full effect of their delicate artistry." Cleveland

Merriman, Henry Seton, pseud.

*Sowers. Harper
"Story of Russian political intrigue, showing the degradation of the Russian peasants." Mass.

Vultures. Harper
"Love and political intrigue in Warsaw immediately before assassination of Alexander II." N. Y. best books

Merry men, and other tales and fables. Stevenson, R. L:

Merton of the movies. Wilson, H. L.

Merwin, Samuel

*Anthony the absolute. Bobbs
"Anthony Ives Eckhart is distantly related to Mr. Locke's Simple Septimus. He is a scientist who goes out to the China coast armed with a phonograph and cylinders on which he is to record examples of primitive music." Book rev. digest
"A clever piece of sheer, light-hearted fun and indulgent satire." F: T. Cooper

*Charmed life of Miss Austin. Bobbs
"Lightly handled stories of the adventures of a charming American in China during the revolution." Cleveland

Henry is twenty. Bobbs
O.P. 1923
"With all of its light humor the book is an interesting description of the settling into line of a callow youth. Only for readers old enough to pity Henry." Booklist
Followed by the Passionate pilgrim. Sequel to Temperamental Henry.

Honey bee. Bobbs
O.P. 1923
"Story of Hilda Wilson, a successful buyer for a New York department store." Book rev. digest

In red and gold. Bobbs
"Griggsby Doane, ex-missionary, who figured in 'Hills of Han' again appears as one of the many characters of this story. He is now first mate on a river boat on the Yangtze river." Book rev. digest

Passionate pilgrim. Bobbs
"Henry comes into his own in this account of his return to the world after his prison term and exile in Alaska. His genius triumphs over failures and steers him straight even in the breaking up of the local political machine and the finding of a wife who appreciates him." Booklist
Sequel to Henry is twenty.

Road-builders. Grosset
"Spirited story of a dashing engineering feat in Texas." N. Y. state lib.

*Temperamental Henry. Bobbs
"A sympathetic study of irresponsible youth. Mr. Merwin takes his eighteen-year-old hero rather seriously, and makes one feel the near-tragedy as well as the humor, the romance as well as the banality, of adolescence. Appeared in the Cosmopolitan under the title The loves of Henry the Ninth." Cleveland Followed by Henry is twenty.

—and Webster, Henry Kitchell

Calumet "K." Macmillan
"Calumet 'K' is a 2,000,000-bushel grain elevator, which Charlie Bannon has to build against time. How he succeeds in doing so is the story." Baker

Miller, Alice Duer

The charm school. Harper
"Slight merry little comedy of an altogether too charming young man who inherits a girls' school in which it is his unique idea to foster charm in his pupils. Needless to say he succeeds so well that he becomes a victim of his own system. Reprinted from Harper's." Booklist

*Come out of the kitchen. Century
"Light, entertaining comedy of a wealthy young New Yorker, who rents an old Virginia mansion for a few months, 'service included,' and finds extraordinary servants installed there." N. Y. best books

Happiest time of their lives. Century
"A novel of New York life within the Fifth Avenue-Wall Street pale. A cleverly handled story with sparkling dialogue, playing contrasting characters against each other in the inconclusive effort to solve the question whether the sheltered woman or her sister, the 'honey bee,' is the stronger in a crisis." Cleveland
Appeared in Century magazine. v. 95.

Ladies must live. Century
"Very slight but contains bright, entertaining dialogues." Pratt

Manslaughter. Dodd
"A hard, arrogant young beauty and heiress runs down and kills a traffic policeman and spends two years in states prison in consequence. What this experience does to her ideas of her own importance and of other peoples' rights makes an interesting story." Cleveland

Millions. Poole, E.

Miln, Mrs. Louise (Jordan)

Feast of lanterns. Stokes
"Deals with a patrician Chinese girl's struggle between her love for an Englishman whom she meets while she is being educated in England to serve her country, and her loyalty and sense of duty toward China. An interesting and colorful picture of Chinese life and national ideals." Cleveland

Mr. Wu. Stokes
Based on the play Mr. Wu, by Vernon and Owen. Vivid descriptions of Chinese social customs.
"Differs from most novelized plays in that the bones are not visible." Boston transcript

Milne, Alan Alexander

Mr. Pim. Doran
"A pleasant novelization of the delightful English comedy of manners, Mr. Pim passes by." Cleveland

Red House mystery. Dutton
"A murder mystery, unravelled in clever dialogue, and based upon mistaken identity and the diabolical machinations of the victim's private secretary. The scene is an old English manor house." Cleveland

Minister's wooing. Stowe, Mrs. H. B.

Miniter, Edith

Our Natupski neighbors. Holt
O.P. 1923
"An ambitious, ignorant Polish family buys a worn-out farm in a New England community. The story portrays with some humor the state of exasperation that exists between the foreign and the native-born inhabitants." Pittsburgh

Minnigerode, Meade

Big year. Putnam
"A connected series of stories of undergraduate life at Yale, told with vigor and realism. Fraternity mysteries, senior societies, proms, the big games are seen chiefly through the eyes of Jimmy, a newsie, whose hero, Curly Corliss, is the central figure of several of the stories." Cleveland

Laughing house. Putnam

*Amos Judd. Scribner
"The heir of an Indian rajah is educated in New England. Clash of heredity and environment makes an unusual tale." A. L. A. cat.

Drowsy. Stokes
"A story which in content classes somewhere between the author's Amos Judd and one of H. G. Wells's scientific fantasies. The hero has, as a small boy, the power of thought reading and telepathic communication and in his young manhood invents a flying machine which uses the electricity in the air as fuel and annihilates space." Cleveland

Mitchell, Silas Weir

*Adventures of Francois. Century
"Adventures of a little Ishmaelite adrift in the Paris streets during the Terror, a light-hearted, irresponsible rascal, who tells his own astonishing history (1777-93)." Baker

Circumstances. Century
"A story of modern American society life in which an adventuress of a particularly dangerous type plays a prominent and unpleasant part." Pittsburgh

Constance Trescot. Century

Mitford, Mary Russell

Our village. Macmillan
"One of the most delightful and natural and genially humorous writers in the language. Her sketches of life in Our Village, of the Talking Lady, the Talking Gentleman, of poachers, seamstresses, domestic servants, young men and old men of local note, remain after half a century of imitations, as fresh as if they had been written yesterday. No human being ever had a cheerier or more sympathetic outlook on the world." Pratt

Companion volume to The Jessamy bride.

Jessamy bride. Duffield
"Oliver Goldsmith is the hero, and Dr Johnson, Sir Joshua Reynolds, and David Garrick appear as characters in a natural and charming story." A. L. A. cat.

Moore, George

"George Moore is an exponent of the "experimental' novel of Emile Zola, the novel of realism." Graham's Bookman's manual

Esther Waters. Brentano
"A study of low life in England, especially of people connected with horse-racing." Baker

Evelyn Innes. Appleton
"Photographic in its realism, almost revolting at times in its dissection of morbid states of the soul; unshrinkingly honest and sincere. Evelyn is a musical genius, who falls under the influence successively of an agnostic and man of the world, of an artist and mystic, and of a Roman Catholic priest." Baker
Followed by Sister Theresa.

The lake. Appleton
"Delightful descriptions of nature. The theme, very indecisively worked out, is that of a young priest's rebellion against celibacy, stimulated by the attractions of a girl whom he drove from the parish because she had gone wrong." Baker
Like all Moore's novels, of limited appeal.

Sister Teresa. Brentano
"Evelyn's spiritual history is pursued after she has renounced the worldly life for what is to her the only alternative, asceticism. Prioress, novices, and sisters are elaborately drawn. But it is the spiritual trials and agonies of Evelyn as postulant, novice and professed nun which are the enthralling interest." Baker Sequel to Evelyn Innes.

Moore, Leslie
Peacock feather. Putnam

Morals of Marcus Ordeyne. Locke, W: J:

Mordaunt, Eleanor, pseud.
Bellamy. Lane
O.P. 1923
"Bellamy is a born poseur who rose from 'runner' in a silk mill at Edge to social distinction in London. At apparently the pinnacle of success he sees the futility of it all and returns to his early home and love." Booklist
"A character study with just a hint of 'Sentimental Tommy.'" Pratt

Rose of youth. Lane
O.P. 1923
"A delightful character study of a London youth of twenty, clerk in a cheap haberdasher's shop, who has the imagination of a poet and an insatiable thirst for freedom and adventure, to satisfy which he even puts aside love and a fortune." Cleveland

More "short sixes." Bunner, H: C.

More Tish. Rinehart, Mrs. M. R.

Morier, James
Adventures of Hajji Baba of Ispahan. Dutton
"Most brilliant picture we have in English literature of society in Persia, done on the plan of a Spanish rogue-story, by a great traveller and diplomat with an unrivalled knowledge of the people. The sequel relates the comic adventures of a Persian ambassador and his suite in London. A masterpiece of comic literature." Baker

Morley, Christopher
*Haunted bookshop. Doubleday
"Roger Mifflin, whom we met in the author's Parnassus on wheels, here keeps a secondhand bookshop in Brooklyn, N. Y. He takes in the young daughter of a friend to learn the book trade, and immediately a mystery develops. There is much good discussion of books and reading sandwiched in with the plot." Wis. bul.

*Parnassus on wheels. Doubleday
"Breezy and thoroughly enjoyable story of a spinster of thirty-nine, who impulsively buys a wagon van of books, and coached by its former owner, a shy middle-aged professor, starts out on country roads for an adventure. The selling of the books proves a subordinate issue." N. Y. best books

Tales from a roll-top desk. Doubleday
Contents: The prize package; Advice to the lovelorn; The curious case of Kenelm Digby; Gloria and the garden of Sweden; The commutation chophouse; The pert little hat; Urn burial; The battle of manila envelopes; The climacteric; Punch and Judy; Referred to the author.
"Short stories, mostly of the denizens of Grub street; pathetic as well as humorous and all stamped with the quaint twists of phrase and situation peculiar to the author." Cleveland

Where the blue begins. Doubleday
"A whimsical satire on modern customs of living in America. The hero is a dog, Mr. Gissing, who lives in a suburb known as the Canine Estates, and keeps a Japanese poodle as a servant. He is in turn a floor walker in a department store, a lay preacher, and an able seaman, always with the underlying hope that he will some day discover where the blue of the sky begins." Pittsburgh

"Relates the narrow escape of the explorer and his faithful dog, Stickeen, during a storm in the Alaskan glacier country." A. L. A. sup.

Mulder, Arnold
*Bram of the Five Corners. McClurg
O.P. 1923
"A young Hollander from Michigan studying for the Christian Reformed Church finds his theological system disturbed by a practical problem in heredity akin to that in Ibsen's Ghosts. Driven from the church by his conscience he takes up newspaper work and is finally awakened to its opportunity for service. Clearly conceived and written with artistic restraint." Cleveland

Outbound road. Houghton
"The illegitimate son of a professor and an actress is brought up in the stifling atmosphere of an orthodox Dutch settlement in Michigan. He inherits from his mother a mischievous streak which makes his lot rather hard in this narrow environment; but also a spark of genius which saves him in the end." Cleveland

Sand doctor. Houghton
"An unusual love story in which a doctor's wife becomes enamored of one of her husband's patients suffering from dual personality. The doctor is bitingly criticised for neglecting wife and practice for his medical research but, in curing his rival, he builds his domestic happiness and professional fame upon the solid rock of idealism, while his widely esteemed but money-mad brother-in-law builds literally and metaphorically on the shifting sands. The contrast between these two characters is skilfully managed." Cleveland

War. Dodd

"A graphic account of the atrocities of modern warfare for which the efficiency of the modern machinery of war is responsible. The details of an invasion of an imaginary country, presumably England, are described as if by an eye-witness. A more artistic and therefore more telling arraignment than Lamszus' Human slaughter-house." Cleveland

Nexö, Martin Andersen

Ditte: daughter of man. Holt

Sequel to Ditte: girl alive! Followed by Ditte: towards the stars.

Ditte: girl alive! Holt

"The story of a little peasant child's struggle to rise above the poverty and wretchedness of her environment—a Danish fishing village, where she is first the mainstay of her blind grandmother, thought to be a witch, and later homemaker for her stepfather, a jovial rag-and-bone man with little ones of his own. A poignant interpretation of the child heart by one of Denmark's foremost novelists." Cleveland

Ditte: towards the stars. Holt

"A homely, vivid, eloquent epic of a woman crushed by poverty and hardships and forced out without training or knowledge to earn her living in a wolfish world." Pittsburgh

"Ditte still serves needy, broken humanity, but the joy is almost extinguished by the terrible struggle of the very poor for mere existence. These stories have the stark quality of naturalism which prevails in the work of so many modern Europeans, a naturalism, in many cases, notably in Nexo's and Wasserman's novels, raised from the mire by passionate idealism." Cleveland

Sequel to Ditte: daughter of man.

"Like Pelle, the Ditte trilogy builds up a strangely vivid and appealing picture of Danish life, but Ditte is the greater work of art." Edith Rickert in New repub. 35:213

Pelle the conqueror: apprenticeship. Holt

"A translation of the four volumes of a Danish epic of poverty, Zolaesque in its conception, but combining beauty and idealism with its naturalism, and subordinating sex to its natural place in the life of a man who is waging the social struggle with all his powers." Cleveland

"Vol. 2: Apprenticeship, is concerned with his apprenticeship in a provincial town where 'he learns shoemaking and woman's love and the hollowness of vice and hatred of tyranny.'" Cleveland

Pelle the conqueror: boyhood. Holt

O.P. 1923

"Vol. 1: Boyhood, chronicles the boyhood on an isolated Danish dairy farm of Pelle, a son of a Swedish unskilled laborer." Cleveland

Pelle the conqueror: daybreak. Holt

"In Vol. 4: Daybreak, released from prison, he reestablishes his home, and works out his theories of profit-sharing and labor in his own shops, while the interest of a wealthy old scholar makes it possible to develop a garden city of working men's homes outside Copenhagen." Booklist

Pelle the conquerer: the great struggle. Holt

"In Vol. 3: The Great Struggle, Pelle goes to Copenhagen and, as a sweated hand-laborer for a shoe factory and a dweller in a swarming tenement called 'The Ark,' he wakes to social consciousness and becomes a leader of the people in the labor struggles with which Copenhagen is convulsed. The translation leaves him on the point of being sent to prison for five years on a charge trumped up to suppress his labor activities." Cleveland

*Certain people of importance. Doubleday
"The book is the history of the Crabtree family. From its dim New England origin it follows one of its members, Reuben Crabtree and his family, to the middle west and later to California, where a new generation of Reuben Crabtrees live and flourish, marry, have children and die. Very real characters are described in detail with their human failings and kindlinesses, their good and their bad, their ups and their downs in worldly fortunes." Book rev. digest

*Mother. Doubleday
"Unassuming but impressive story which depicts in sharp contrast a modern society leader with her activities and a true mother who is the centre and life of a large family brought up with strict economy." Pittsburgh

*Saturday's child. Grosset

"Story of a girl who 'climbs up alone from being a tough little would-be actress who lived over a saloon in O'Farrell Street,' into a lovely gracious womanhood, and the price she had to pay in her married life for the one hideous mistake of her ignorant, self-willed girlhood. A really convincing character-study, set in a story of considerable humor and charm: also a significant if depressing commentary on the double standard of morals." Cleveland

Chosen people. Lippincott
"A young rabbi, of high ideals, is called to minister to a wealthy congregation in Baltimore. He believes passionately in the unity of the Jewish people, and his idealism suffers a severe shock when he attempts to act as mediator in a strike in the clothing trade and discovers the wide gulf that exists between poor Jews of the slums and the rich factory owners who are pillars of his temple." Pittsburgh

Conquest. Lippincott
"A study, dramatically developed and showing considerable insight, of a ruling passion in its effect on the life of a brilliant young lawyer." Cleveland
"It is not easy to recall in recent fiction a more striking portrait of a man governed by ambition." Nation

*His official fiancée. Dodd
"Delightfully piquant, light novel, in which a young Englishman, for business reasons, feels obliged to employ his stenographer as his financée." N. Y. best books

Wooing of Rosamond Fayre. Dodd
"A gay little story having for its dramatis personae a young Englishwoman of fortune absorbed in uplift work, her indispensable social secretary who writes all her employer's letters and unintentionally conveys therein her own engaging personality, and a dashing young officer in South America, affianced at long distance to the heiress and in love with the author of the love letters he receives." Cleveland

Onions, Oliver

Case in camera. Macmillan
"An unusually ingenious mystery story with an unguessable solution, real characters, and such an abundance of mystification both in psychological motive and in incident that some readers of usual mysteries may find it overcomplicated. The story is told by one of the participants, a novelist who takes an artistic delight in developing the intricacies of the plot." Booklist

"The plot turns upon a mystery attaching to the birth of the heroine." Pittsburgh

*Green alleys. Macmillan
"A story of the hopfields of southern Kent in the days before the war, with the frequently-used Phillpotts triangle plot, two men of contrasting character in love with one woman. The variation introduced in this case is that the elder of these two brothers is illegitimate. The tangle is agreeably unknotted without any of the usual tragic happenings." Cleveland

Grey room. Macmillan
"A novel dealing with the mystery surrounding the deaths of five people who at various times attempt to sleep in a room reputed to be haunted." Pittsburgh

The human boy and the war. Macmillan
"Amusing stories of the effect of the spirit of the war upon the boys in a small English boarding school. Each story is told by a different type of boy, and is true to the type; their common quality is the naïve seriousness which constitutes the humor of From the angle of seventeen and The human boy." Cleveland

Miser's money. Macmillan
"Dartmoor is the scene of another of his inimitable tales of peasant psychology. David, the miser, tries to make Barry, his nephew and heir, a woman-hater like himself. An interesting struggle with conscience ensues when the nephew, who has chosen a wife instead of his inheritance, finds his forfeited treasure buried in tin cans hidden about the premises." Beggars' gold. Macmillan

"'China is rich but China is poor; beggars sitting on bags of gold.' Peter Wells and Katherine Blange are drawn together by their desire to help China realize its possibilities. Only when they are well past middle age and Peter's services as teacher of the foreign born are rejected because of his protest against wartime brutalities do Peter and Katharine respond to the call of the East. The story's lack of unity is atoned for by its sympathetic treatment of the striving, dreaming Peter Wells." Cleveland

Blind. Macmillan

"A young New Englander blinded in the war, recalling his boyhood in Connecticut, college days, career in New York, and finally his experiences as war correspondent and enlisted man, concludes that the spiritual vision of the world is blinded in these days, even as his physical vision. A piece of earnest social criticism disguised as a novel." Cleveland

*The harbor. Macmillan

"Using the harbor of New York both as the physical background of his story and as a symbol, Mr. Poole tells the story of the life of a young man from childhood to the hour when he becomes converted to the need of the reorganization of society so as to secure social justice. A story which strikes the prevailing note of social unrest, but which is hopeful in tone." Cleveland

*His family. Macmillan

"Roger Gale, who has come to New York as a lad from New Hampshire, finds himself, after his wife's death, surrounded by three half-grown daughters who embody dissimilar types of womanhood and whom he hardly knows. The multiple personality of the city is seen through the varied characters of the daughters, each of whom lives in a different New York." Pittsburgh

Pryde, Anthony, pseud.

Nightfall. Dodd
"A story of Moorland England in 1928 in which the chief characters are still involved in the wreckage of the war. They are: Lawrence Hyde, with an Englishman's cool courage and the broad culture and touch of calculating cruelty due to a strain of Oriental blood; Isabel Stafford, the young girl he loves; Val, her sensitive brother, and Major Clowes, a paralytic whose brutishness never exhausts his wife's tender patience. The tensely absorbing quality of the story is due to the combination of exceptionally good character drawing and rather melodramtic plot." Cleveland

Chosen and translated from the original Russian by Z. A. Ragozin, with an introduction and biographical notes by S. N. Syromiatnikof.

Raiders, The. Crockett, S: R.

Rainbow trail. Grey, Z.

Raine, William MacLeod

Man-size. Houghton

"A stirring tale of the mounted police on a desperate man-hunt for a whiskey runner and kidnapper. The Scottish trader's half-Indian daughter plays an important role. Mr. Raine knows his setting and period, the Canadian North-West in early days." Cleveland

The Yukon trail. Houghton

"A very fair specimen of what the Dial calls 'the snow and primitive man' story. A young college man, sent as government agent to investigate the claims and doings of a rich miner who is virtually the boss of Alaska, pursues the villain to his undoing, both along the trails of love and business." *Cloister and the hearth. Harper

"Based on exhaustive study of medieval history and literature; a vivid reconstruction of the whole life of the time. Hero said to be the father of Erasmus." Baker

"A story better conceived or better composed, better constructed or better related, it would be difficult to find. With a wealth of dramatic incident and crowding adventures the story carries the reader swiftly through realistic scenes of fifteenth century Europe on the eve of the Reformation." Pratt alcove

Hard cash. Harper

"Sequel to Love me little, love me long. The genial David and Lucy reappear, middle-aged. The hard cash is his hard-earned fortune, fallen into the clutches of a swindler. Realistic descriptions of an asylum, which evoked rabid hostility." Baker

It is never too late to mend. Harper

"Has two main subjects: the prison system, which is indicted for its culture of vice and greed for gold, as exemplified in the Australian adventures of two gold-diggers." Baker

Peg Woffington; and Christie Johnstone. Harper

"An early work of the author based on a still earlier play, Masks and Faces, which holds a place on the stage to this day. The central figure is the famous Irish actress whose traditional fascination, wit, vivacity, violent temper, and good-heartedness are brought out in scenes rather obviously devised for theatrical effect. Christie Johnstone is a story of Scotch fishing folk. These two heroines are considered to be Reade's best women characters." Pratt alcove

Put yourself in his place. Harper

"The scene is laid in an English manufacturing city; and the story relates the struggles of Henry Little, workman and inventor [who] is ground between the two millstones of Capital and Labor." Warner

—and Boucicault, Dion

Foul play. Harper

"Title refers to a young merchant's conspiracy to wreck one of his own ships and pocket the insurance money. The interest is divided between the steps by which this is brought to light and the adventures of two lovers on a desert islet in the Pacific." Baker

Pagan fire. Scribner

Scene, Washington, D. C., and Rome, Italy. Story of the wife of a United States senator who becomes an ambassador.

"Pleasantly told in the slow, analytical style of the English novel." Lit. rev.

Richardson, Samuel

Eighteenth century author. Often called "the first English novelist."

Clarissa Harlowe. Holt

"Richardson's masterpiece—the history of a beautiful woman sacrificed to a heartless libertine—written in letters. Dr. Johnson said that a single letter in one of his novels contained more knowledge of the human heart than the whole of Tom Jones. The book had enormous influence on European literature." Baker

Pamela (Everyman's lib.) 2v Dutton

"A didactic novel written in letters of great prolixity and minuteness. The story of a maid-servant of good and prudent upbringing whose virtue is pertinaciously assailed by her master. Epoch-making in literature as a study of the female heart." Baker

Sir Charles Grandison. Dutton

"Undertaken as a retort to those critics who thought Lovelace, the undoer of Clarissa, too attractive; Richardson's idea of a complete gentleman. Sir Charles is a wealthy and accomplished man of fashion, endowed with every possible virtue, adored by women, etc. He marries a heroine of corresponding perfection. Like Clarissa, it was originally published in seven volumes, and contains about fifty characters portrayed with enormous detail." Baker

Richelieu. James, G: P. R.

Richmond, Mrs. Grace S.

*Mrs. Red Pepper. Burt

Sequel to Red Pepper Burns. Appeared in the Ladies' home journal, November to May, 1913, under the title, The country doctor

Followed by Mrs. Red Pepper.

Richmond, Mrs. Grace S.—Continued

Strawberry acres. Burt
"A simple and wholesome story of four orphaned lads and their cheery, lovable sister, and their progress from a crowded city flat to the possession of paying strawberry beds on the few acres which are their only inheritance. The undercurrent is sincerely and unaffectedly religious." Booklist

Under the country sky. Burt
"A young girl sacrifices her college life to stay with her invalid father." Wis. bul.
"Combines the story, The star in the country sky, and its sequel, Her father's daughter, which were published serially in the Ladies' Home Journal." Cleveland

Rideout, Henry Milner

Beached keels. Houghton
Contents: Blue Peter; Wild justice; Captain Christy.

*Far cry. Duffield
"Vivid tale of South Sea adventure above the average in characterization and atmosphere." N. Y. best books

Fern seed. Duffield
"A young American, after a bout of Italian fever, goes to convalesce in a little seaside village which had been the home of his English ancestors. Continually mistaken for some one else, he finally discovers an English cousin who is practically his double, and impersonates him in a time of danger. Romantic, adventurous and amusing." Cleveland

Key of the fields; and Boldero. Duffield
"The first of these tales is the story of three attractive vagabonds and their search for buried treasure. The second takes up the exciting adventures of a rough but wholesome young frontiersman." Pittsburgh

Siamese cat. Duffield
"A pretty, young American girl traveling in Siam, decides to buy a Siamese cat. As soon as she buys him a series of exciting adventures begins. A good yarn well told with a flavor of the Far East." Wis. bul.

*Twisted fool. Houghton

Winter bell. Duffield
"Story of a clean, sturdy young backwoodsman, unjustly imprisoned for murder and how he keeps his sanity by learning the spiritual release which books give to the pent up spirit. Slight but has excellent Down-East characterizations and an invigorating picture of the Maine woods in winter." Cleveland

Rider of the king log. Day, H. F.

Riders of the purple sage. Grey, Z.

Ridge, William Pett

The happy recruit. Doran
"A story following the London career of an orphan Russian boy, from his beginning as waiter and boy-of-all-work in a cheap restaurant to the proprietorship of a successful eating house. A cheerful idyll, full of Dickensian descriptions of London and its inhabitants." Cleveland

Madame Prince. Doran
O.P. 1923
"Madame Prince conducts a dressmaking establishment in a London suburb to obtain the wherewithal for the successful bringing up of her children. The story tells of the launching into the matrimonial and literary world of two of the daughters and the son, but the interest centers in the strong, serene personality of the mother." Cleveland

Son of the state. Methuen
"Story of a London street urchin, introducing an account of the English cottage home system of caring for waifs." Pittsburgh

Amazing interlude. Doran
"How a pretty young American girl ran a soup kitchen behind the lines in Belgium and tried to be true to a phlegmatic lover at home while a chivalrous, fascinating and mysterious Belgian acted as her knight at the front. Handled with a light, sure touch." N. Y. branch lib. news
Appeared in the Saturday evening post, v. 190.

Bab, a sub-deb. Doran
"Five chapters in the experience of a seventeen-year-old school girl during the period in which she is trying to prove to her family that she is grown-up. Mrs. Rinehart has let Bab tell her own story and the stilted English in which she expresses her 'lofty thoughts,' while amusing, lends a touch of artificiality to the stories which causes them to suffer in the inevitable comparison with Booth Tarkington's Seventeen." Cleveland

*Circular staircase. Grosset
"Humorous detective story centering around a murder on the circular staircase in a large country house." A. L. A. sup.

*K. Houghton
"A hospital story, loosely knit but having several interesting characters, notably a charming and earnest girl in training for a nurse, and the quiet, efficient stranger whose love for her draws him back into the profession which the disgrace of several disastrous operations has caused him to desert." Cleveland
Appeared in McClure's magazine, v. 43-45.

Man in lower ten. Grosset
"Clever mystery story based on the tragic happenings in a sleeping car during a single night." A. L. A. sup.

*More Tish. Doran
"Three more adventures of Mrs. Roberts' 'lady musketeers.' In 'The cave on Thunder Cloud,' the best of the stories, the three entertain a train robber. The other two are stories of the war service of the redoubtable trio." Cleveland

Street of seven stars. Houghton
"A romance of student life in Vienna, of considerable charm and atmosphere. Appeared in the Saturday Evening Post." Cleveland

*Tish. Houghton
"Tish, short for Letitia, is a reckless young person of fifty who drives her own motor, becomes involved in a shady automobile racing scheme, is fleeced by an ingratiating Oriental and takes to the woods in an attempt to go back to Nature. Roberts, Morley

Thorpe's way. Century
"Young Thorpe conceives a notion of marriage quite as unorthodox as Bernard Shaw's. He proposes to a girl with a very determined mother who has her heart set on a titled son-in-law. How the two young people outwit her with the aid of a daringly unreligious grandmother is told with an intermingling of 'spice and shocks.'" Book rev. digest

Time and Thomas Waring. Putnam
"The book opens with an analysis of the sensations of Thomas Waring in experiencing anesthesia, prior to an operation. He comes back to consciousness with a changed conception of human life and with any sense of loyalty which he may have held for conventional morality quite obliterated. The story that follows is of his altered relationship with several people, his wife, his mistress, his son and daughter." Book rev. digest

Jean-Christophe in Paris; tr. by Gilbert Cannan. Holt

Jean-Christophe: journey's end; tr. by Gilbert Cannan. Holt
"Biographical novel, relating the infancy, growth and career of a musical genius born in a small German ducal town. The scale of the book makes it a sort of social treatise illuminating the history of society, art, and ideas, both in Germany and France. The life of Beethoven (1770-1827) has inspired the work to a large extent." Baker
"Acknowledged the greatest novel of the early 20th century, this life study of a musical genius has profoundly influenced the fiction of both England and America." Pratt alcove

Autobiography of Mark Rutherford. Oxford univ. press

"A sombre, thoughtful book—the history of a doubter, who has a strain of Bunyan's morbid self-consciousness. Beginning as an Independent minister in the eastern midlands he passes through phases of Unitarianism to a vague theism, and finally to Agnosticism." Baker

Followed by Mark Rutherford's deliverance.

Early life of Mark Rutherford (William Hale White) by himself. Oxford univ. press

Mark Rutherford's deliverance. Oxford univ. press

"A rambling narrative, the chief incidents being a struggling journalist's attempts to preach love and undogmatic Christianity to the poor and outcast of London; contains some earnest studies of character and conduct, and is obviously grounded on autobiography. A book that reveals the hearts of the poor struggling toilers with penetrating sympathy, and is ennobled by the earnestness of the autobiographer's endeavour to keep hold of the spiritual light while labouring in darkness and slavery." Baker

Sequel to The autobiography of Mark Rutherford.

Revolution in Tanner's Lane. Oxford univ. press

"A sober and scrupulously honest picture of the lower middle-classes in 1814-40, especially of the times of the Bread Riots and Peterloo; the scenes, London and Manchester. Written by a man who knew what it was to be a Radical when political differences were treated as a crime. The social tendencies of the time, religious and ethical questions, the meaning of human suffering, faith and infidelity, are the topics illustrated in the lives and the characters presented." Baker

Banner of the bull. Houghton

"Three spirited stories of adventure and intrigue in Florence during the renaissance. They reproduce ethics, manners and setting with the authority of one who has made a study of the times, and present an original conception of the character of Caesare Borgia, picturing him as unscrupulous and ruthless, but also as extremely astute and on the whole popular with the people of the conquered cities." Cleveland

*Captain Blood. Houghton
"Peter Blood was many things in his time—soldier, country doctor, slave, pirate, and finally Governor of Jamaica. Incidentally, he was an Irishman. Round his humorous-heroic figure Mr. Sabatini has written an exciting romance of the Spanish Main, the facts of which he alleges to have been found in the diary and log-books of one Jeremiah Pitt, a follower of Monmouth in 1685 and Blood's faithful companion in adventure." *Bride of Lammermoor. (Dryburgh ed) Macmillan
"The most tragic of Scott's romances, on which Donizetti's opera Lucia de Lammermoor is based. The last scion of a ruined family and the daughter of his ancestrial enemy fall in love. For a while there is a glimpse of hope and happiness, but the romance closes in death and sorrow. The scene is laid in East Lothian, near the sea, about 1695." Baker

Fair maid of Perth. (Dryburgh ed) Macmillan
"Stormy picture of Scotland in reign of Robert III." Baker

Fortunes of Nigel. (Dryburgh ed) Macmillan
"Life in London and at court in early days of James I, with full portraits of the King, Prince Charles, Buckingham, Jongling Geordie, founder of Heroit's Hospital, and other historical personages. Period, 1604." Baker

Guy Mannering. (Dryburgh ed) Macmillan
"The fortunes and misfortunes of an abducted heir, whose life, a wise woman predicts, will be attended by three periods of great danger. Most important scenes in Galloway. Dandie Dinmont, Dominie Sampson, Meg Merrilies, Dick Hatteraick, and Counsellor Pleydell are mostly sketches from life, and are among Scott's most memorable personages. About 1750-70." Baker

*Heart of Midlothian. (Dryburgh ed) Macmillan
"Opens with Porteous riots in Edinburgh (1736) but mainly concerned with misfortunes of a peasant girl, Effie Deans." Baker

*Ivanhoe. (Dryburgh ed) Macmillan
"Many-colored picture of medieval England. Brings together some of the most romantic names of middle ages. Cœur de Lion, Robin Hood, Friar Tuck, Allan-a-Dale, Isaac of York, and Prince John. Period, about 1194, and Yorkshire and Leicestershire the principal scenes." Baker

*Adrienne Toner. Houghton
Study of a circle of English patricians into which enters Adrienne Toner, a rich American who dominates most people with whom she comes in contact. She wants to make everybody happy, but seems instead to make everyone suffer. When the war comes, Adrienne proves her soul.
"A very successful piece of character-drawing." Spectator

Christmas roses, and other stories. Houghton
Contents: Christmas roses; Hepaticas; Daffodils; Pansies; Pink foxgloves; Carnations; Staking a larkspur; Evening primroses; Autumn crocuses.
"A flower is symbolical of some element in each of these stories. All are set in English gardens and nearly all reflect some sad or tragic phase of the war. Marked by distinction of style and subtle characterization." Cleveland
All but two of these stories appeared in the Atlantic monthly, v. 116-124.

The encounter. Century
"Experiences of an American girl at a small German watering-place in a little circle of six people of strikingly defined characters, one of whom, the philosopher Wehlitz, embodies the personality and teachings of Nietzsche. Told with all the subtle psychology and exquisite workmanship that marked Tante." N. Y. best books

"Brilliant study of egotism in a famous woman pianist, who feeds on adulation and takes diabolically subtle measures against any who refuse it. Deals dramatically with a young girl's blind adoration and its effect upon her married life." N. Y. best books

Third window. Houghton
"A psychological ghost story of four characters. The tense atmosphere of mystery and suspense is dramatically maintained and culminates in a tragic climax that is Greek in its inevitability and artistic perfection. Antonia, a young war widow, living with a psychically-gifted cousin-in-law, struggles between love and loyalty for her husband, whom she fears is strangely present, and love and passion for his crippled friend, now her suitor." The accolade. Small

"Further character study of the Ingestre family of 'Duke Jones' and 'A lady of leisure.' Cut short in his career as an actor, young John Ingestre, after ten years of unhappy marriage, is ready for an outbreak. It comes in his love for a young girl possessing all the spontaneity and charm that his wife lacks. In her handling of the forces that restrain him, the author exercises skill and delicacy." Pittsburgh

Duke Jones. Small

"Full of interest and subtlety and finely written, it is the story of a commonplace, undistinguished Englishman, a foil for a group of charming or unscrupulous but always clever people, yet capable of greater chivalry and self-sacrifice than any of them. Sequel to A lady of leisure, but complete in itself." N. Y. best books

*Le gentleman: an idyll of the quarter.

"Story of the Latin quarter, told with restraint and much charm. 'Le gentleman,' a fine young Scotchman, goes to Paris to guard his silly little fiancée, who thinks she is a real Bohemian." Pittsburgh

Hatchways. Small

"Subtle study of the reactions of temperament in a group of English people." Book rev. digest

Followed by Jamesie.

Jamesie. Small

"A story sketched in the form of letters exchanged between twenty-five correspondents of a closely linked social clan, to identify the individuals of which is a severe intellectual exercise, even with the knowledge supplied by Hatchways, to which it is a sequel. The action depends on, but does not envisage the war even at the tragic end, which involves so many of the characters." Cleveland

"The reader has to dig out the story for himself from a mass of rather intractable material; but if he has the patience to do so, he eventually finds himself possessed of an insight into character and an understanding of conditions of life that no mere description or narration could have given him." Dial 65:222

Promise. Small

"The central figure of the book is a young musical genius, half English, half French, and the author's aim is to illustrate by means of incidents in his life the futility of all attempts to control artistic impulse." Prefatory note

Followed by Succession.

Succession: a comedy of the generations. Small

Pan Michael. Little

Sequel to The deluge.

*Quo vadis? Little

"The book that brought Sienkiewicz recognition throughout the European world. A theatrical picture of Roman life, bringing into salient contrast the licentiousness of paganism and the spiritual beauty of Christianity. Scenes of court life and of Christian worship, the burning of Rome, and the massacres in the amphitheatre, are woven into a rapid narrative. Petronius Arbiter, the artist in refined sensuality, the worshipper of beauty, is the dominating personality of the book." Baker

With fire and sword. Little

"The first of a trilogy by Poland's favorite author in which is depicted the romance of Polish history from 1647 to 1751. The scheme is even wider in the multitude of personages introduced than Tolstoy's War and Peace, and the impression left is of a succession of scenes of battle, carnage, devastation, lust and fiery heroism." Anne Severn and the Fieldings. Macmillan

"Anne's relations with the Fielding family and their effect upon her make up the story which is brought to a climax in the reaction of Mazie when she learns that her husband, Jerrold Fielding, and Anne are lovers. Somewhat psychoanalytic in treatment with the same vivid characterization that marked The tree of heaven." Booklist

The belfry. Macmillan

"Skilful study in temperaments as revealed through the marriage of an unconventional English girl of good family to a cockney genius with unpleasant mannerisms. Life and death of Harriett Frean. Macmillan

"The story of a sensitive, introspective woman who is a marvel of conventional rightmindedness and futility, and whose facile self-justification deadens her regrets for the hardships and renunciations which her inability to master difficult situations imposes on others. A fine piece of selective character drawing, sketching in a few episodes the course of a life from childhood to old age." Cleveland

Mary Olivier. Macmillan

"The self-revelation of a middle-class English woman, conveyed through a series of vivid impressions covering from her second to her forty-seventh year, and revealing her as always struggling toward the realization and expression of reality, and always baffled in her desires by the selfishness and hidebound conventionality of the older generation, by the family taint of alcoholism and insanity and by their consequent decline in material fortunes. "Marred by the introduction of one or two unpleasant episodes which are on a lower key than the rest of the book." Cleveland

Sinclair, Upton

*The jungle. Author, Pasadena. Cal.
"Raised an extraordinary agitation by its revelations of the corrupt and unsanitary methods of the Chicago meat-packers. Its equally scathing indictment of their conduct towards their workpeople excited little comment." Baker

*King Coal; introd. by Georg Brandes. Author, Pasadena, Cal.
"Mr. Sinclair again appears in the role of investigator, here fictionally represented as a college student who spends a vacation making a survey of conditions in the Colorado mines. What the hero finds and a terrible mine disaster lead him to the conclusion that the only protection for mine-labor is through its organization, he himself becoming an ardent Unionist. An exciting but unduly sensational story, the well-substantiated data being made the basis for a plea for the enforcement of laws for the protection of miners' lives." Cleveland

Basil Everman. Houghton
"The romance of a young couple, the love affair of a beautiful woman, a family tragedy, and an old sorrow are woven together by the pervading personality of Basil Everman, though he does not appear in person in the story." Pittsburgh

Bennett Malin. Houghton
Story of a male egoist, preacher and author, whose only fame comes through an act of plagiarism.

*Ellen Levis. Houghton
"Ellen Levis is the daughter of a physician in a Pennsylvania mining town and is brought up among her mother's people, fanatical Seventh Day Adventists. The story is concerned with her struggle to escape from her cramping environment and gain the larger life and the enriching experience which comes to her through a chance contact with a great eye-specialist, her father's college friend. The distinctive interest of the story is in its background and characterization rather than in its plot or handling." Cleveland

*Emmeline. Houghton
"An agressively loyal little Northern girl sent away from Gettysburg village on the eve of the battle finds her grandmother's home occupied by Southern soldiers. To her surprise she finds herself feeding the grey coats and caring tenderly for their wounded, and, in the service, ceasing to hate." Cleveland

Smoke. Turgenev, I. S.

Smoke Bellew. London, J.

Smoke-eaters. O'Higgins, H. J.

Smollett, Tobias George
Eighteenth century author. Of limited appeal.

Humphrey Clinker. Houghton
"Travels and observations of a Welsh family, a group of delightful oddities, through England, Scotland, and Wales. The sarcastic descriptions of towns and peoples are doubly comic from being in letters written by the different characters, with absurdly incompatible points of view. Parodies the language and manners of the Methodists. The Scottish portion is particularly familiar and racy, dealing with the scenes of Smollett's younger days." Baker

Peregrine Pickle. Dutton
"Peregrine's schooling, his courtships (with most unsavoury interludes), his travels, and amorous exploits on the Continent and in London, making a humorous, but unedifying, story. The realism is Hogarthian." Baker

Snaith, John Collis

*Araminta. Appleton
"Delicious comedy of manners recounting in exuberant vein the London social successes of a feather-brained country girl who bears a striking resemblance to a Gainsborough portrait." N. Y. best books

Broke of Covenden. Small
"Painstaking study of an English household, handicapped with six unattractive daughters, a spendthrift son, an over-abundance of family pride and a heavily mortgaged estate." A. L. A. sup.
"Broke is an egoist, in whom pride of race is developed to the verge of insanity, and who remains impassible, unflinching, under blows to his filial love almost as terrible as Lear's." Baker

The principal girl Moffat
O.P. 1923
"Story of a young peer and a popular stage heroine, told in the author's usual piquant and irresponsible manner." Pittsburgh
Appeared in the Atlantic monthly, v. 108-109.

*The sailor. Appleton
"Biographical novel following a boy from the slums of an English town through six terrible years at sea and other experiences to literary success. Said to have been suggested by the career of John Masefield." N. Y. best books

Undefeated. Appleton
"A story of character changes wrought by the war upon a group of English people, especially a rather ineffectual fellow who becomes a hero, and his formidable father-in-law." Cleveland

The Van Roon. Appleton

*Beach of dreams: a romance. Lane
"A new handling of the old plot of a man and woman shipwrecked on an island. The woman, a wealthy Parisienne, lives through the horrors of disgust with two fellow yachtsmen, one of whom dies and the other of whom she kills; through a period of soul racking loneliness when she makes friends with the penguins and sea animals. At last she is found by a shipwrecked sailor, uncouth, illiterate and childlike. The author does not marry off this strange pair, but leaves the woman, who has learned the trivialities of civilization too well in her desert experience, to use her resources for the poor fisher folk." Booklist

Gold trail. Lane
"A story of the sea that deals with swashbuckling zest, with a romantic treasure hunt in the south Pacific. A good yarn, 'sweetened' with a nice knowledge of the psychology of the beachcombing human." Life

Pearl fishers. Lane
O.P. 1923
"The characters are vigorously delineated and over them and all is the joy of the rust and rime of the sea. A book of colorful adventure interestingly told." Boston transcript

Americanus sum.
"Stories of foreigners in America." Pittsburgh

Sanctus Spiritus and company. Doran
O.P. 1923
"The greater part of the plot is laid in Hungary with a vivid picture of the discouraging conditions there and the peasant and village folk's fine faith in America. But a poor Slovak boy of the town has become a clergyman in America and the end of the story depicts him as a victim of American war hysteria and miscarried war-mad patriotism." Book rev. digest

"A sort of epic of the emigrant, done with humor, pathos and color. Depicts the clash and attrition of new and old world ideas." Lit rev.

Stella Dallas. Prouty, O. H.

Step-daughter of the prairie. Lynn, M.

Stephens, James

Crock of gold. Macmillan

"A fantasia of men, gods and fairies in Ireland. It is neither a novel nor a fairy tale nor an allegory, but has in it something of all three, as well as a delightful sense of the joy and beauty of the world and the wisdom of not being too wise." Pittsburgh

The demi-gods. Macmillan

"Story of three angels who come down to earth and live with a vagrant peddler and his daughter in Ireland." Pittsburgh

Here are ladies. Macmillan

Contents: Women; Three heavy husbands; A glass of beer; One and one; Three women who wept; The triangle; The daisies; Three angry people; The three-penny piece; Brigid; Three young wives; The horses; Mistress Quiet Eyes; Three lovers who lost; The blind man; Sweet-apple; Three happy places; The moon; There is a tavern in the town.

"In these short stories there are fun, fancy and sometimes the tragic note, combined with a de Maupassant quality of tense, dramatic characterization." Outlook

Mary, Mary. Small

"A slight but charming story full of delicacy and humorous insight, which relates the growing up of 'Mary Makebelieve,' the dreamy, imaginative little daughter of an Irish charwoman." Booklist

Steppe, and other stories. Chekhov, A. P.

Stern, Gladys Bronwyn

Debatable ground. Knopf

Island nights' entertainments. Scribner

Contents: Beach of Falesa: being the narrative of a South-sea trader; Bottle imp; Isle of voices.

"Stories of the South Sea islands, strongly colored by local superstitions." Pittsburgh

*Kidnapped. Scribner

"The action is chiefly in Scotland shortly after the rising in support of Prince Charlie in 1745. The story is told by David Balfour, a Lowlander and a Whig, through whose mouth the author manages very adroitly to excite sympathy with the Stuarts and their Highland followers." Pittsburgh

"An adventure story appealing to boys and elders alike, second only to Treasure Island among Stevenson's tales of adventurous life." Pratt alcove

Followed by David Balfour.

*Master of Ballantrae. Scribner

"Tragic annals of a noble Scottish family involved in the Jacobite troubles after 1745, recounted by a faithful steward, who is a typical Stevenson creation, an example of moral courage united with physical cowardice." Baker

Merry men, and other tales and fables. Scribner

Contents: Merry men; Will o' the mill; Thrawn Janet; Markheim; Treasure of a Franchard; Olalla.

New Arabian nights. Scribner

Contents: The suicide club: Story of the young man with the cream tarts; Story of the physician and the Saratoga trunk; The adventure of the hansom cab. The rajah's diamond: Story of the bandbox; Story of the young man in holy orders; Story of the house with the green blinds; The adventure of prince Florizel and the detective. The pavilion on the links; A lodging for the night; The Sire de Maletroit's door; Providence and the guitar.

"Fantastic stories, all more or less sensational, but in a semi-burlesque and ironical way." Baker

Prince Otto. Scribner

"A psychologic drama, enacted in an imaginary German principality." Baker

St. Ives. Scribner

"Adventures of a French prisoner in Scotland and England during Napoleonic wars. Posthumous romance, finished by Q. (Quiller-Couch)." A. L. A. cat.

*Strange case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Scribner

"Grim apologue of a supernatural change of personality, symbolizing the conflict between the good and the evil selves in man." Baker

*Treasure island. Scribner

"Story of piracy and of concealed treasure; characters nearly all of a sinister kind. Scenery forms striking contrast to savagery of the action. Time, middle of 18th century." Baker

"One of the best-written and best-enjoyed boy's books in the language. Because of its exciting incident and literary qualities it appeals to all types of readers, and takes its place as the highest representative of Stevenson's genius for story telling." Pratt alcove

Stevenson, Robert Louis—Continued

Weir of Hermiston. Scribner
"Fragment of a tragedy, of which the vital motive is antipathy between father and son. The father a study of the hanging judge, Lord Braxfield. Posthumously published." Baker

—and Osbourne, Lloyd

Ebb tide. Scribner
"The daring plot depends on thoroughgoing realism. The adventures in the Tahitian seas are so conceived and told as to bring out impressively the vast contrast between the men and their lovely surroundings." Baker

The wrecker. Scribner
"Parisian student life, shady financial doings in California, piracy on the high seas, and more gruesome incidents, brought into juxtaposition by an elaborate mystery plot. A skilful combination of romance and everyday realism." Baker

—and Stevenson, Mrs Fanny (Van de Grift)

The dynamiter. Scribner
"In the style of the New Arabian Nights. Mrs. Stevenson claims to have written all the stories except the Explosive Bomb; but unmistakable traces of Stevenson's handiwork and of his characteristic philosophy abound." Baker

Stewart, Charles David

Stinde, Julius

Hausfrau rampant; condensed tr. by E. V. Lucas. Doran
O.P. 1923
"The Buchholz family, a well known German classic, gives a picture of the life of the middle-class German family about 1870. Mr. E. V. Lucas has here selected the most entertaining passages and those which are most typically German and cemented them with explanatory sentences." Wis. bul.

Stingaree. Hornung, E. W:

Stockley, Cynthia

Blue aloes. Putnam
"There are delightful shivers in these four weird tales for readers who like the terror of sighing ghosts, poisonous reptiles, witchcraft and changed identities. They are set in South Africa. Bizarre but interesting." Booklist

Stockton, Frank R.

Adventures of Captain Horn. Scribner
"Story of adventures met with in a quest for a treasure of the Incas. Much of the interest depends on the character drawing." Baker

Afield and afloat. Scribner
"Eleven short stories characteristic of Mr. Stockton in their mixture of fantasy and realism. Three are ghost stories. The mule story gives a graphic picture of old New Orleans." Baker

*Casting away of Mrs. Lecks and Mrs. Aleshine. Century
"A comedy of incongruous and improbable Crusoe adventures of two most excellent New England women, related with unvarying gravity, in a matter-of-fact manner that is very diverting." N. Y. best books

*Lady or the tiger? and other stories. Scribner Contents: The lady, or the tiger? The transferred ghost; The spectral mortgage; Our archery club; That same old 'coon; His wife's deceased sister; Our story; Mr. Tolmen; On the training of parents; Our firescreen; A piece of red calico; Every man his own letter-writer.
"A group of brief sketches typical of the author's rather extravagant but always gentle and engaging humor. The Lady or the Tiger is an enigma story which has won great popularity." Pratt alcove

Late Mrs. Null. Scribner
O.P. 1923
"Absurd story, told with a matter-of-fact gravity which ignores the illogical nature of the characters and their relations to each other. The Negro parts have the most spontaneous humour." Baker

Mrs. Cliff's yacht. Scribner
"Deals with the fate of that portion of the treasure which fell to the Peruvian government and to Mrs. Cliff, who appeared first in The adventures of Captain Horn." A. L. A. cat.

Pomona's travels. Scribner
O.P. 1923
"The staid and capable handmaid of the Rudder Grangers marries, and goes on a wedding trip through England and Scotland. Her journal hits off the characters of places and peoples with shrewdness and dry humour." Baker

*Rudder Grange. Scribner
"A lively sketch of a few months' housekeeping in an old stranded canal-boat, with its sequence of unique and laughable experiences." Pratt alcove

Squirrel inn. Century
"An eccentric landlord of independent means, a scholar engaged in translating Dickens into ancient Greek, a teacher of moral philosophy working as a nurse, with other queer samples of humanity, meet together in this eccentric hostelry, and an orgy of funny incidents ends in three weddings." Baker

Sue, Eugéne

Mysteries of Paris. 2v Crowell
O.P. 1923
"A startling and incredible melodrama, professing to be a realistic picture of the Parisian underworld, the slaves of poverty and vice, swindlers, robbers, murderers. The central figure is a wealthy German prince who has ordained himself as a grand justiciar of society, to succour the unfortunate, remedy iniquities, and avenge guilt." Baker

Wandering Jew. 2v Donohue
"A romance on the semi-supernatural theme of tradition, compounded of the same realistic and sensational ingredients, powerful in its command of terror." Baker
" 'The Mysteries of Paris' and the 'Wandering Jew.' in the guise of daily life, represented a sort of thieves' fairy-land in which disguised princes moved about, among burglars, murderers and gipsies—as if the mantle of the late Bulwer-Lytton had fallen upon the editor of the Police News." Nocturne. Doran
"An exceptionally authentic rendering of Cockney psychology and manners lifted by the sheer art of the author out of dinginess and pettiness on to the plane of beauty. The characters are Pa, his two very dissimilar daughters, and their 'blokes;' the action takes place in a single night." Cleveland

September. Doran
"Subtle analysis of the character and reactions of a lovely woman, thirty-eight years old, long since disillusioned about her marriage, when she finds herself in love with a younger man. She is contrasted with a young girl who loves the same man. The setting is an English country house and London just before the war." Booklist

*Shops and houses. Doran
"A crisis is precipitated in the English suburban town of Beckwith, when a new grocer, connected with the leading family and bearing the same name, settles in the town, evidently expecting to share in the community life. A minute and absorbing study in small town snobbishness." Cleveland

Three lovers. Doran

*He knew Lincoln, and other Billy Brown stories. Macmillan
"Supposed monologue of an illiterate Springfield countryman whose store had been a haunt of Lincoln, faithful in its interpretation of his spirit, 'pathetic, humorous and above all human.'" A. L. A. sup.

Tarkington, Booth

*Alice Adams. Doubleday
"Alice Adams is a 'small town' girl of the Middle West. She has charm and ambition, but, handicapped as she is by lack of money, background and ideals, her imagination can compass no higher career than struggling to keep up with the childhood friends whose fortunes have grown with the town. Alice is a pathetic figure, at once amusing, appealing and irritating, as are her self-sacrificing but one-ideaed mother and her simple-minded, goaded father. A lightly-handled albeit penetrating study." Cleveland

Conquest of Canaan. Harper
"Well told story of how a young lawyer won the respect and admiration of an Indiana town which had ostracized him from childhood." N. Y. best books

Fascinating stranger, and other stories. Doubleday
Contents: The fascinating stranger; The party; The one-hundred-dollar bill; Jeannette; The spring concert; Willamilla; The only child; Ladies' ways; Maytime in Marlow; "You;" "Us;" The tiger; Mary Smith.

*Gentle Julia. Doubleday
"Chiefly about an all-too-kind and appreciative young woman of twenty, and her responsibilities as 'almost officially the prettiest person in a town claiming sixty-five thousand inhabitants;' but as much about her wistful, foolish suitor, Noble Dill; her masterful niece, Florence; her cook, Kitty Silver, a colored lady of 'continental proportions,' and Gamin, 'that golden hearted little clown of all the world, a French poodle.' In the same vein as Seventeen and quite as amusing." Cleveland

*Gentleman from Indiana. Doubleday
"Main interest, the contest between White Caps and a young newspaper man who tries to purify politics." N. Y. best books

*Magnificent Ambersons. Doubleday
"The magnificent Ambersons run the gamut of sudden wealth and gradual deterioration characteristic of so many middle west families which rose to great local importance in the seventies. The chief character is the son of the house who is thoroughly spoiled and has to be disciplined by misfortune." Booklist
"Its achievement is not so much in pointed detail or penetrating phrase as in the exhaustive revelation of a thoroughly significant national type." New republic

*Monsieur Beaucaire. Doubleday

Appeared in the Cosmopolitan, v. 58-60.

*Seventeen. Harper
"This story of the first love experience of William Sylvanus Baxter shows an almost uncanny insight into the emotions and mental processes of the adolescent boy. It is full of humor and gentle sarcasm, but also understanding and sympathy for the tragedies and absurdities of youth." Wis. bul.

*Turmoil. Harper
"A dreamy, imaginative youth, misunderstood in the bustling life of a middle western metropolis, is forced by circumstances to discover his latent practical powers, and becomes a servitor of business." Pittsburgh

*History of Henry Esmond. Harper
"Autobiographic story of a Cavalier and Jacobite in time of Queen Anne. Introduces Marlborough, Addison, Steel and other well known people." N. Y. best books
"By many critics considered Thackeray's best novel. The pictures of life in the Queen Anne period are unsurpassed for vividness and charm." Pittsburgh
Followed by The Virginians.

*History of Pendennis. Harper
"The record of a literary life with many details drawn from the author's own experience." Pratt alcove
"Aims at presenting the young man of the time [middle of the 19th century] without flattery and without extenuation, as Fielding had presented Tom Jones. Satiric; humorous exposure of many shams and vanities." Baker

Memoirs of Barry Lyndon, written by himself. Harper
"The autobiographer is an Irish adventurer, card-sharper, and bully. The narrative is consistently ironical, the hero recounting his iniquities with pride and expectation of approval. Pictures European society before the French Revolution, principally in pleasure haunts or amid the camps and battles of the Seven Years' War (1756-63)." Baker

*The Newcomes. Harper
"Thackeray's great 'middle-class epic,' the tragedy of worldliness. Depicts a society thronged with worldlings over against whom is set the ideal English gentleman, Col. Newcome, his most beautiful and pathetic creation." Baker
Time, early 19th century.

*Vanity fair. Harper
"First appeared serially in Punch. It is the author's best known, most widely read and perhaps his most distinguished work. A keen, unsparing satire, it exposes the meanness in human nature and the contemptible pretense in the world of London society." Pratt alcove
"Becky Sharp, the Crawleys, Major Dobbin, Amelia and the wonderful picture of the battle of Waterloo are immortal." A. L. A. cat.

*City of Beautiful Nonsense. Appleton

"An idyl of youthful love and married happiness, supposed to be located in London and Venice, but really taking place in a 'never never land' of the author's own creation." A. L. A. sup.

David and Jonathan. Putnam

"A woman and two men, intimate friends of very different types, are marooned on the African coast after a shipwreck. The veneer of civilization necessarily tends to disappear and a strong antagonism threatens to overwhelm the men when they discover that they are both in love with the woman. Told with humor and not so much sentimentality as some of the author's other stories." Booklist

Greatest wish in the world. Grosset

"A slight story describing the wise rearing of a deserted baby girl by a London priest." A. L. A. sup.

Toilers of the sea. Hugo, V:

Told in the hills. Ryan, Mrs. M. E.

Tolstoi, Alexey

Road to Calvary. Boni & Liveright

"Count Tolstoi lays bare, under a moving finger of sharp ironical light, the utter sterility of the debile civilization, sick unto death, which immediately preceded the war and the revolution." Nation

Scene laid in Russia, 1905-1917.

Tolstoi, Lyof Nikolaievitch, graf

It has been difficult to get good editions of Tolstoi's novels and short stories. Scribner now publishes an edition in 16 volumes, supervised and largely translated by Nathan Haskell Dole, from the famous Moscow edition. Non-fiction is included and the volumes are not sold separately.

*Anna Karénina. 3v Crowell

"Domestic and social life of the Russian people presented with wealth of detail and intensity of emotion. Matthew Arnold calls it 'Less a work of art than a piece of life.' Main action profoundly tragic." Baker

"For its artistic qualities, Anna Karenina stands foremost among the many beautiful things Tolstoi has written. It is also a work of high moral import, for without sacrificing its value as a masterpiece of art Tolstoi demonstrates through its characters and events that a generous soul cannot live outside the moral law." Pratt alcove

Death of Ivan Ilyitch, and other stories (Modern lib). Boni & Liveright

Contents: The death of Ivan Ilyitch; Family happiness; Polikushka; Two Hussars; The snowstorm; Three deaths.

*Master and man. (Everyman's lib) Dutton

Contents: Master and man; How much land does a man require? That whereby men live; Elias; Children may be wiser than their elders; Labour, Death and Disease; The grain that was like an egg; Where love is, there God is also; The two old men; The three old men; God sees the right, though he be slow to declare it; How the little devil atoned for the crust of bread; The penitent and sinner; The snowstorm; The raid; The candle, or, How the good peasant overcame the cruel overseer; The godson; Crœsus and Solon; Neglect a fire, and 'twill not be quenched.

"Describes with his consummate realism the sudden transformation of a callous and selfish master who in a momentary impulse sacrifices himself for a devoted servant perishing in a terrible blizzard on the steppe." Baker

Translated by C. D. S. Hogarth and Constance Garnett.

Resurrection. Dodd

"First half of a novel designed to rival War and Peace in length, and in the fullness of its representation of life. In purpose a moral and social tract, enunciating Tolstoy's gospel of brotherhood, and exposing the evils of modern civilization most flagrant in Russia. It is a tremendous indictment, not only of the Russian criminal system, but of accepted morality. An aristocratic worldling, brought face to face as juryman with the girl whom he ruined, repents, with Russian impulsiveness, and devotes his whole soul to the task of saving her. His self-sacrifice is the moral regeneration of both." Baker

*War and peace. 3v Crowell

"A panorama of Russian affairs, public and private, during the Napoleonic wars—comprising four parts: Before Tilsit (1805-7); The Invasion (1807-12); The French at Moscow, and Epilogue (1812-20). The battle pieces, Austerlitz, Friedland, Borodino, are not merely accurate historical studies, but wonderful analyses of the sensations and emotions of a combatant." Baker

"In War and Peace Tolstoi created a prose epic, a splendid historical panorama, vitalised by a marvellous imagination. Underneath all the march of armies, the spiritual purpose of the author is clear. The real greatness of man consists not in fame or pride of place, but in simplicity and purity of heart. It is a complete picture of Russia at that time and a complete picture of humanity." Pratt alcove

Joanna builds a nest. Bobbs

A competent and attractive business woman buys and remodels a house on a hill, and engages a working housekeeper and a slightly disabled soldier to run the place.

The starling. Bobbs

"A professor's daughter, shut away from the world in a California garden surrounded by a high hedge, is the starling. Inspired by a young journalist, she becomes a novelist and so gains freedom, but in the end she is glad to seek shelter again behind the protecting hedge, with, of course, the right man. The hedge is so real as to seem almost a person, and the theme is very artistically handled." Cleveland

Tono-Bungay. Wells, H. G:

Tooker, Lewis Frank

Middle passage. Century

"During a fog, the hero drifts out to sea on a piece of ice, is picked up by a slave ship en route for Africa, and encounters many wild adventures and harrowing experiences that remind one of London's Sea Wolf." Cleveland

Under rocking skies. Century

"Story of a courtship on a sailing voyage between a New England port and Santa Cruz. Author writes of life on a sailing vessel from practical knowledge of sailing." Pittsburgh

Appeared in the Century magazine, v. 70.

Tozzi, Federigo
Three crosses. Moffat
"Character study of three Italian brothers, proprietors of a book store, who forge notes on a local bank to maintain their business. The story chronicles their progressive degeneration—a sort of slow poisoning from secret guilt—and is developed with selective realism, diversified with bits of delicately beautiful description, like Maupassant at his gloomiest. The author, a Tuscan peasant, whose work had just come into prominence, died in 1920." Cleveland

"Describes the life of the 'new rich' in New York." Pittsburgh

"The house of Kaynes had been founded by Peter B. who began his career after the Civil war, carrying a pick and dinner-pail, and retired from affairs as one of New York's leading financiers. The story follows the fortunes of this family, giving at the same time a cross section of post-war high society which, having outgrown its brownstone Victorianism, is giddily and recklessly reaching out for new standards and—especially in the case of women—skirting perilously near to the edge of a precipice." Book rev. digest

*McAllister and his double. Scribner
"McAllister's 'double' is a scamp of a valet who gets his master, a blasé clubman, into all sorts of scrapes, and extricates him cleverly at just the right moment." Outlook

Tutt and Mr. Tutt. Scribner
"The amusing exploits of Mr. Tutt of the law firm of Tutt and Tutt, a veritable Robin Hood of a lawyer. A sharp practitioner with a leaning toward the criminal bar, he manipulated the law with its antiquated inconsistencies to protect all unfortunate folks who had done virtuous but illegal deeds." Cleveland

The world and Thomas Kelly. Scribner
"After three obscure years, Thomas springs into sudden fame at Harvard by becoming tennis champion. He is taken up by the wealthy set, elected to a secret society, and neglects his mother shamefully, when his mother's sudden death pulls him up short, sending him back to Harvard to study law. Appeared in the Saturday Evening Post." Booklist

Chronicles of Barsetshire:
*The warden. Dodd
"First of the author's Barsetshire novels. A story of quiet English life centering in a 'hospital' for aged men, the benevolent and supersensitive 'warden' of which suffers from the consciousness of his sinecure." Pratt alcove
"The cathedral city with its ecclesiastical dignitaries was suggested by Salisbury." Baker

*Barchester towers. 2v Dodd
"Introduces the reader into the innermost circles of an English cathedral community, revealing the processes of thought and action in an ecclesiastical establishment, and the happenings among the people living in the shadow of the cathedral towers." Pratt alcove
The characters include the henpecked bishop and his amazonian lady, the immortal Mrs. Proudie.

*Dr. Thorne. 2v Dodd
"Concerned mainly with the fortunes and misfortunes of Mary Thorne, whose troubles commence with her birth." Baker

*Framley parsonage. 2v Dodd
"The Vicar of Framley, a weak but honest young man, is led astray and into debt by a spendthrift M. P., and finds himself in a false position. The other branch of the story deals with his sister's chequered love affair." Baker

*Small house at Allington. 3v Dodd
"Country life, with digressions into boarding-house life in London and into high society." Baker

*Last chronicle of Barset. 3v Dodd
"The ecclesiastical society of The Warden, Mr. Harding, Mrs. Proudie, and the rest, make their last appearance. The dominant situation is one of intense anguish. A poor country clergyman, proud, learned, sternly conscientious is accused of a felony, and the pressure of family want makes his guilt seem only too probable." Baker

Orley farm. 3v Dodd
"A lengthy chronicle of family life, events revolving round one figure, Lady Mason. A chivalrous old baronet, his high-minded daughter-in-law, and a dry old lawyer are all under the spell of Lady Mason's personality, and the drama of guilt and shame has a pathetic bearing on many lives. The legal case is complex and difficult." Baker

Eustace diamonds. 2v Dodd
"Unscrupulous lying of Lady Eustace darkens the mystery of the diamonds and brings about many unexpected and amusing turns in the story." Baker

Can you forgive her? 3v Dodd
"She breaks an engagement because she is infected with modern ideas as to the duties and importance of women and craves excitement. A study of half-realized motives and minor causes of conduct. Plantagenet Paliser, of the Phineas novels, a character." Baker

Phineas Finn. 3v Dodd
"A wonderfully faithful picture of mid-Victorian politics. More faithful than the account we read of these times in serious histories or in the memoirs and biographies of the leading actors, because more artistic, more panoramic, more vivid." Pratt alcove

Phineas Redux. 3v Dodd
"Presents a great trial at the Old Bailey." Baker

Prime minister. 3v Dodd
"Chiefly devoted to the unhappy marriage of Emily Wharton and Ferdinand Lopez, a Portuguese adventurer, and to the affairs of the prime minister and his wife. The latter couple are known to readers of Trollope's earlier novels as Planty Paul and Lady Glencora, now Duke and Dutchess of Omnium. The duke is sensitive, proud, and shy, and feels the burden of his responsibility, while his wife is forever working for his advancement. He goes gladly out of office at last." Keller

The duke's children. 3v Dodd
"Concerned with fortunes of the duke's eldest son and daughter, Lord Silverbridge and Lady Mary." Pittsburgh

The edition listed is translated by Constance Garnett and published by Macmillan at $2 per volume. Another excellent edition, translated by Isabel F. Hapgood, is published at the same price by Scribner. Some titles are differently translated in the two editions.

Diary of a superfluous man; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan
"Autobiography of an unfortunate man of limited mental powers." Baker

Dream tales and prose poems; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan
Contents: Clara Militch; Phantoms; Song of triumphant love; The dream; Poems in prose.

*Fathers and children; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan
"[The book] is a description of the tendencies of Young Russia in the sixties, expressed through the hero Bazarov. These tendencies have since become widely known by the name of nihilism." T: Seltzer in Introduction
"The theme of this novel is the frequent conflict between the older and the younger generation, which the author has rendered particularly touching by his representation of 'the confused efforts of the father to understand his son's new ideas, and the young man's vain efforts to convert his father.'" Pratt alcove

*House of gentlefolk; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan
"Touching and beautiful story of two lovers separated by Fate. Liza is Turgenev's most beautiful woman character." Baker
"It would be necessary to go back to Paul and Virginia before one could meet with another book which had such an influence over an entire nation. It seemed as if the author himself continued to be haunted by the type of heroine he had created." Pratt alcove

A Lear of the steppes; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan
"The tragic tale of Harlov of the Steppes is a supreme example of Turgenev's imaginative interpretation of life, and of his habit of embodying the universal in an episode. It is the tragedy of a powerful nature." Baker

On the eve; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan
"Another love-tale ending unhappily; in Elena the whole nature of a pure girl is revealed." Baker

Rudin; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan
"Almost a satire, so ruthless is the showing up of the empty enthusiasm, the ineffectual idealism, and the weakness of principle in the unpractical Rudin, an embodiment of one of the most enervating traits in the national character, and of the ardent Liberalism of the time; but removed from satire by the sympathy which even such weakness inspires in a critic of Turgenev's catholic insight." Baker

Smoke; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan
"A study of passionate love. Turgenev particularly excelled in his portraiture of women and in Irene, the heroine of this novel, we have one of the most complex and puzzling of his women characters." Pratt alcove

A sportsman's sketches; tr. by Constance Garnett. 2v Macmillan
Contents: v. 1, Hor and Kalinitch; Yermolai and the miller's wife; Raspberry spring; The district doctor; My neighbor Radilov; The peasant proprietor Ovsyanikov; Lgov; Byezhin prairie; Kassyan of Fair springs; The agent; The counting-house; Biryuk; Two country gentlemen; Lebedyan. v. 2, Tatyana Borissovna and her nephew; Death; The singers; Piotr Petrovitch Karataev; The tryst; The hamlet of the Shtchigri district; Tchertop-Hanov and Nedopyuskin; The end of Tchertop-Hanov; A living relic; The rattling of wheels; Epilogue; The forest and the steppe.
"Stories and studies of Russian life and character, strung on the thread of a wanderer's adventures. They portray the serf and serfdom; bringing out touchingly the simple loyalty, affection and immeasurable endurance of the Russian poor. Many descriptive passages of scenery of central Russia." Baker

Torrents of spring, etc.; tr. by Constance Garnett. Macmillan Contents: The torrents of spring; First love; Mumu.

Virgin soil; tr. by Constance Garnett. 2v Macmillan
"A reply to Dostoyevski's Les Possédés, which was itself called out by the nihilist doctrines incorporated in Fathers and children. Both Turgenev and Dostoyevski deal with the same theme, the subterranean world of political agitation and conspiracy which was threatening the peace of Russia. Embittered by feeling and deeply pessimistic. The conspirators are invested with generous qualities, while the official classes are painted in dark colors." Baker

Looking after Sandy: a simple romance. Harper
"A little orphan girl runs away to escape the poorhouse and finds a home with a poor but warm-hearted couple who have 'six of their own and always room for one more.'" Wis. bul.

Turner, John Hastings

A place in the world. Scribner
"Iris, a Russian butterfly with brains, whose object in life is shocking folks, and Cumbers, business man and church warden of a narrow English village, whose object in life is not to be shocked, are the antagonists in this witty comedy of Suburbia versus Bohemia. The outstanding character is the lovable vicar, whose great heart and rare understanding of human nature, including Iris's, finally reforms that most delightfully near-wicked young person." Cleveland

Simple souls. Scribner
"The conventional plot of old-fashioned romance—the love of a maid of low degree for a duke—transferred to a setting of modern London and made to appear delightful and almost probable by the author's humorous but sympathetic handling." N. Y. best books

"A subjective, idealized biography rather than a story." Wis. bul.

Walpole, Hugh

Captives. Doran
"A psychological study dealing with the struggles of two lovers to free themselves from the influence of a group of religious fanatics." Pittsburgh

*The cathedral. Doran
"Pictures life in an English cathedral town (the 'Polchester' of Walpole's Jeremy); records an ecclesiastical intrigue reminiscent of Trollope; shows the transition from the magnificent conservatism of the late Victorian era to Modernism as it affected the Church of England; and tells a story in which the elements of tragedy and satirical comedy are nicely balanced. There are many vivid minor characters, but the central figure is Archdeacon Brandon, the autocrat of Polchester, a proud, domineering man of splendid physique and inflexible mind." Cleveland

*Dark forest. Doran
"A rare interpretation of the atmosphere and psychological effects of war as seen in the interrelations of a Russian nursing sister, a Russian surgeon, and two Englishmen serving with a Red Cross unit in the Galician front." N. Y. best books

*Duchess of Wrexe. Doran
"The conflict between conservatism and the newer ideals of freedom is embodied in the study of two personalities, an autocratic duchess and her rebellious granddaughter." Pittsburgh
Followed by The green mirror.

*Fortitude. Doran
"The courage of the hero of this Cornish story becomes his weapon of defense in a continuous struggle against evil inheritance and adverse fortune." Pittsburgh

The gods and Mr. Perrin, a tragi-comedy. Doran
"Remarkable psychological study of the mental tragedy of a man of forty-five for over twenty years a master in an English boys' school." Book rev. digest

Golden scarecrow. Doran
"Stories about children, unconnected except by the central idea that every child comes into the world under the protection of a friendly presence which at first is with him constantly as interpreter of life, as he grows older appears less and less frequently and finally comes only in dreams or in crises. The book, especially in its last chapters, strongly suggests Kipling's 'They' but lacks its finish." Cleveland

*The green mirror. Doran
"The Trenchard family, conservative and clannish, typifies the England of 1903. The green mirror in the drawing-room reflects the changes that come when the beloved daughter of the house realizes that she must break away from the sinister and almost supernatural power of the family traditions as embodied in her mother, and elope with the man she loves." Booklist
"Follows the Duchess of Wrexe but may be read independently of it." Pratt

*Jeremy. Doran
"The story of one year, the eighth, in the life of a happy, normal but imaginative little boy, growing up with his two sisters and his dog, Hamlet, in the Cornish cathedral town of Polchester-by-the-sea, thirty years ago. A delightfully humorous chronicle, told with an affection and understanding which mark it as autobiography." Cleveland
Appeared in the Bookman, v. 48-49.

Maradick at forty. Doran

*Prelude to adventure. Doran
"With a single blow struck in anger, the hero [a Cambridge undergraduate] kills a fellow student whom he has so despised that his conscience immediately assumes the burden of murder without thought of evasion. There is nothing to connect him with the act but his own knowledge. The reaction of the event upon his own mind, and the minds of the two men to whom it becomes known, makes a singularly direct and powerful story." Atlantic monthly 1913

Secret city. Doran
"In the winter and spring of 1917 a tense human drama is enacted in the apartment of a typical but very individual group of the Petrograd intelligenzia and through the eyes of this family and their friends, Russian and English, are glimpsed events and figures showing the progress of the great Revolution going on outside their doors. Semienov, the strong brutal surgeon of Walpole's Dark forest, is the sinister influence who dominates this story." Cleveland

Thirteen travellers. Doran
Contents: Absalom Jay; Fanny Close; The Hon. Clive Torby; Miss Morganhurst; Peter Westcott; Lucy Moon; Mrs. Porter and Miss Allen; Lois Drake; Mr. Nix; Lizzie Rand; Nobody; Bombastes Furioso.
"The 'Thirteen travelers' are residents or workers in a genteel London apartment house. To some of these, the changed conditions of after-the-war London mean despair, to some opportunity and to others romance." Cleveland

Wooden horse. Doran
"Harry Trojan, oldest son of a Cornish family, returns after twenty years of New Zealand life. The contrast between his broad and wide-awake outlook and the narrowness of his convention-bound family make the story. Interest is chiefly in character delineation." Booklist

Young enchanted. Doran
"A delightful romance of which the author says: 'The whole Truth and nothing but the Truth—what absurdity! And what arrogance! This book is the truth about Henry and Millicent Tranchard so near as I can get to it, and the truth about that strange year 1920 in that strange Town London. But it isn't everybody's Truth. Wassermann, Jacob

"Like Dostoevski, Wassermann belongs with those men who have descended into the hell of poverty and want and who have brought back with them a vision of life which is as fascinating as it is terrible. The form of his novels with their enormous scope and rapidly changing scene is striking, but it is not this form so much as it is the intensity of his spiritual ardor which makes him remarkable. Few contemporary novelists are capable of giving the reader an emotional experience equally powerful." J. W. Krutch in Nation 115:sup624

"Story of the middle west at the time of the Spanish-American war." Pittsburgh
"Chronicles the laborious career and belated reward of a sensible, capable, dryly humorous young man burdened with the support of three exacting, irritating female relatives." Cleveland
Appeared in the Atlantic monthly, v. 110-12.

Wave, The. Blackwood, A.

Waverley. Scott, Sir W.

Way of all flesh. Butler, S:

Weale, Bertram Lenox Putnam, pseud.

Wang the ninth. Dodd
Period of the Boxer rebellion.
"Many dramatic adventures and a rich background of Chinese life." Booklist

Weavers, The. Parker, Sir G.

Webb, Mary

Golden arrow. Dutton
"The Welsh hills that are its setting enter intimately into the story. Deborah Arden, the farmer's daughter who has given her love to Stephen Southernwood, is at home in the hills. But to Stephen, town-bred, they are hampering and confining. His love for Deborah is not strong enough to hold him and he goes. But once on the other side of the world, he finds that it is powerful enough to draw him back. The half dozen characters of the story, all types from rustic life, are set forth with a sure hand." Book rev. digest

Webster, Henry Kitchell

The butterfly. Appleton
O.P. 1923
"Story of a stage dancer and how she entangles in unconventional situations a young professor of drama." Pittsburgh
Appeared in the Saturday evening post, v. 186.

Joseph Greer and his daughter. Bobbs
"A self-made engineer and inventor summons to live with him the daughter whom he has never known. Both father and daughter are handsome, bold and adventurous, but the daughter has a streak of petty dishonesty engendered by early repressions. A well-handled study of strong, clashing temperaments and a novel of big business." Cleveland

Mary Wollaston. Bobbs
"Mary, an ethereal-looking creature of much strength of character, her charming stepmother of an opera singer, her father, a famous surgeon, and her lover, a rarely broad-minded musical composer, are the principal characters, in a scene where everyone gets on everyone else's nerves. Really a protest against the unthinking cruelty of sentimentalism which results in people pretending to be what others would like to think them." Cleveland

*Real adventure. Bobbs
"Study of marriage from the woman's point of view. The events hinge on the contrasting conceptions of marriage of a brilliant young lawyer and his bride." N. Y. best books

Sky-man. Century
O.P. 1923
"Chance leaves deserted at the north pole a girl who is in search of her lost father (an arctic adventurer) and a young man who has renounced the world in favor of his great flying wings. The account of the long winter they endure together, fighting cold, wild animals and a half-savage sailor, makes an exciting tale." Booklist

Webster, Jean

*Daddy-Long-Legs. Century
"Entertaining story of a girl's college days and love affairs, told in her sprightly letters to an unknown guardian." N. Y. best books
Appeared in the Ladies' home journal, v. 26.

*Dear enemy. Century
"Engaging romance told in the sprightly letters of Sallie McBride, a society girl whom the heroine of Daddy-Long-Legs has persuaded to undertake the reformation of an orphan asylum." N. Y. best books
Appeared in the Century magazine, v. 90-91.

When Patty went to college. Century
"College pranks, told by a Vassar graduate of 1900." A. L. A. cat.

Weir of Hermiston. Stevenson, R. L:

Wells, David Dwight

*Her ladyship's elephant. Holt
Temporarily out of stock 1923
"An admirable piece of fooling, with not a dull page in it from beginning to end. It is about two American and English couples who accidentally change partners on the wedding journey." Athenaeum 1898

Wells, Herbert George

Ann Veronica. Harper
"Ann Veronica, whose impulses and perplexities are acutely analyzed, escapes the penalty of her daring, the lover being set free to marry her." Baker

Bealby: a holiday. Macmillan
"Bealby, aged twelve, about to be sent to a country estate as steward's assistant, rebels and escapes to a week of breathless adventure. Somewhat in the vein of Mr. Polly but sprightlier and without even a lurking suspicion of a problem." Cleveland
Appeared in Collier's weekly, v. 53-54.

*History of Mr. Polly. Duffield
"Story of the sordid, misfit career of a lower middle-class Englishman possessed of some possibilities and aspirations, but unable to adjust himself to his circumstances or cope with life's complexities. He drags out a bewildered and ineffectual existence for 35 years, when in a sudden access of energy he strikes for freedom." Pittsburgh

In the days of the comet. Doran

"The girl loved by a middle-class Englishman elopes with another man at the moment when the conditions of life on this planet are changed by the passage of a comet. Man's nature is regenerated, human brotherhood has come, and Mr. Wells brings out again the vast gulf between society of to-day and our ideals." Baker

Joan and Peter. Macmillan

"A British godfather, an empire builder with advanced educational ideas, in search of institutions and curricula suited to the training of his god-children, normal high spirited children of the early nineties, is used by Mr. Wells as the mouthpiece for his criticisms of outworn or moribund British institutions, the final chapters of the book, showing how these were revitalized by the war. More interesting to those who like Wells as a critic and a prophet than to those who are in search of a good story." Cleveland

*Kipps: the story of a simple soul. Scribner

"Merciless analysis of the social aspirations, mishaps and love affairs of a young draper's assistant whose complete lack of adaptability unfits him for his sudden rise to affluence." N. Y. best books

Love and Mr. Lewisham. Doran

"A study of the life of very ordinary and commonplace people. Mr. Lewisham is a schoolmaster and a student who spoils his plans for advancement by falling in love, and ruins his literary and socialist ambitions by getting married." Baker

*Marriage. Duffield

"Story of the married life of two educated people; of an exceptional man in whom the pursuit of knowledge is an unconscious religion, and of a woman able to form some conception of his aims, but far below his spiritual and mental level. The whole institution of modern marriage from top to bottom is discussed in this tale without a single unpleasant reference to the problems of sex." Academy 1912

Appeared in the American magazine, v. 73-74.

Men like gods. Macmillan

"Contrasts our present civilization with that of a fourth dimension Utopia, three thousand years in advance of the earth, into which has been 'rotated' a group of typical English people, who attempt to restore to this ideal world the 'blessings of competition, conflict and warfare.' Its interest as an exposition of Mr. Wells's educational and social ideas is greater than that of the story. In the style of his earlier imaginative romances. Appeared in Hearst's International." Booklist

*Mr. Britling sees it through. Macmillan

"Story of compelling interest describing how the great war affected an English family, their German tutor and American guest, and especially Mr. Britling himself." N. Y. best books

"The color and veracity of the picture is such that, even after the vivid contemporary interest in the story has passed, the book will be a valuable document for the future student of the England of 1914." Cleveland

New Machiavelli. Duffield

"A retrospective self-analysis by an English statesman whose public career has been wrecked by a private scandal, and who, in exile and disgrace, uses his own history as the text and illustration for his theory of the relation between individual character and the great constructive spirit of modern science, politics, literature and art—a theory of the progressive growth of a collective mind behind the interplay of individual lives." Everybody's magazine 1911

Appeared in the Forum, v. 43-45.

Research magnificent. Macmillan

"Story of an idealistic man who was led into adventure by his aspirations. He had an incurable, innate persuasion that he had to live life nobly and thoroughly. This quest for personal preeminence became his 'research magnificent.'" Pittsburgh

The time machine. Holt

"A scientific fantasy. The machine transports the owner at will into the past or the future." Baker

*Tono-Bungay. Duffield

"Tono-Bungay is the name of a patent medicine which is launched by a chemist in a small town and so well advertised that the inventor attains the eminence of principal company promoter of his day. Mr. Wells, writing in the character of the inventor's nephew, unfolds the story with much significant detail and from a new point of attack carries on his warfare on the social conditions of our time." Pittsburgh

The undying fire. Macmillan

"The story of a modern Job, even unto the prologue in Heaven. The hero is a middle-aged head-master of an English private school, whose spirit disaster after disaster fails to break. Contains a great deal of discussion of religion and education." Cleveland

"Is less a novel than an eloquent conversation which becomes a sermon and gets interrupted by an operation. It combines Mr. Wells' two current interests, God and education, in a book that may be regarded as spiritually the sequel either to God the Invisible King or to Joan and Peter, but which is more readable than either." Dial 66:576

War in the air. (Modern lib) Boni & Liveright

"Here a cataclysmal war is the world-event that opens our eyes to fundamental realities." Baker

*War of the worlds. Harper

"The inhabitants of Mars, a loathsome though highly organized race, invade England, and by their command of superior weapons subdue and prey on the people." Baker

Wife of Sir Isaac Harman. Macmillan

"Concerns the complications which follow when Lady Harman, married very young to a middle-aged Englishman of intense conservatism and a jealous disposition, begins to develop a personality and become interested in the living conditions of her husband's employees." N. Y. best books

Wemyss, Mary C. E.

Grannie. Macmillan

"Loosely knit story of English home life in which a charming grandmother describes her country neighbors and city acquaintances and the sayings and love affairs of her children and grandchildren." N. Y. best books

Impossible people. Houghton

"Rather sketchy but pleasant, meandering tale of an English vicar and his wife, who 'couldn't be happy without doing something queer,' and who are reckoned socially 'impossible' because they are absolutely simple and sincere." Cleveland

*Professional aunt. Houghton

"Story of a delightful young aunt monopolized by her nephews and nieces." Pittsburgh

Wentworth, Patricia

A marriage under the Terror. Putnam O.P. 1923

"An exciting, well constructed tale of the French Revolution, which tells of a young republican who marries a girl of aristocratic family to save her life, and of the complications which ensue." N. Y. best books

West, Rebecca

The judge. Doran

A tragic story, the scene of which is laid in Edinburgh, where Ellen Melville, working her way, meets and loves Richard Yaverland, and in Sussex, where they go to live with Richard's mother.

"The love of the hero for his sweetheart is overshadowed by his almost abnormal love for his mother." Pittsburgh

*Return of the soldier. Century
"An unusual story dealing with the complications resulting from an English soldier's loss of memory due to shell shock, and turning on a fine woman's renunciation. On a distinctly higher level both from the standpoint of psychology and literary art than the average run of war stories." Cleveland
Appeared in the Century magazine, v. 95.

West of the water tower. Croy, H.

Westcott, Edward Noyes

*David Harum. Appleton
"David Harum is a shrewd country banker in central New York, sharp at a bargain, kind-hearted, with an unfailing flow of dry humor." N. Y. best books

Weyman, Stanley J.

Count Hannibal. Longmans
"Story opens in Paris on the eve of the massacre of St. Bartholomew." Pittsburgh Appeared in Munsey's magazine, v. 24-26.

*Gentleman of France. Longmans
"Romance of time of Henry of Navarre. Stirring adventure and excellent historical setting." N. Y. best books

The great house. Longmans
"English social life and politics in the forties, especially the incident of repealing the Corn laws, form an interesting background for this old-fashioned novel. The ingredients are a disputed estate, long-lost documents, and a fair heroine with rival suitors. Suspense and interest are well maintained." Cleveland

House of the wolf. Longmans
"France in the reign of Charles IX. Massacre of St. Bartholomew included in the drama." Leypoldt & Iles

Ovington's bank. Longmans
"The extreme inflation of investments in the early 19th century and the antagonism between the old landed gentry and the new leaders of trade form the theme of the story." Pittsburgh

*Under the red robe. Longmans
"Episode of Richelieu's time. Well knit, romantic without feebleness, stirring without bombast, sweet and clean." Nation

Wharton, Mrs. Edith Newbold (Jones)

*Age of innocence. Appleton
"An excellent, detailed study of American manners, or more exactly, of New York's original Four Hundred, back in the seventies, 'the age of innocence,' e. g. of black walnut and victorias and smug hypocrisy." Cleveland
"One of the best novels of the twentieth century." W: L. Phelps

Crucial instances. Scribner
Contents: The duchess at prayer: The angel at the grave; The recovery; "Copy," a dialogue; The Rembrandt; The moving finger; The confessional.

Custom of the country. Scribner
"The central figure, a selfish, ambitious, uncultivated woman is, naturally, an unpleasant individual. Yet the portrayal is masterly." Book rev. digest
Appeared in Scribner's magazine, v. 53-54.

*Ethan Frome. Scribner
"A grim tale of retribution told in so masterly a manner that the story seems a transcription from real life. The three characters are a discouraged New England farmer, his hypochondriac wife, and a girl who still finds some joy in living. Ranks among the author's best works. Appeared in Scribner's Magazine." Booklist

Fruit of the tree. Scribner
"Subtle, analytical story of a young social reformer who thwarts his own happiness and that of the two women who love him by his implacable devotion to his ideals." N. Y. best books

Glimpses of the moon. Appleton
"Against a background of smart society the author tells the story of two of its parasites—Susy and Nick, who marry for a year or a day, depending on the generosity of their wealthy friends and how well Susy can 'manage.'" Booklist

Greater inclination. Scribner
Contents: The muse's tragedy; A journey; The pelican; Souls belated; A coward; The twilight of the god; A cup of cold water; The portrait.
"Stories dealing with various phases of modern social life. Cynical and sad, but not devoid of humor." Baker

*House of mirth. Scribner
"Absorbing study of the gradual downfall of a New York society girl whose lack of high standards compromises her at every turn." N. Y. best books

Madame de Treymes. Scribner
"Brilliant short story of family intrigue. Shows in a subtle and discerning way the contrast between French and American views of family relations and marriage." Pittsburgh
Appeared in Scribner's magazine, v. 40.

The reef. Appleton
"Story, worked out with the author's customary subtle analysis, of an obstacle in the way of a marriage." Pittsburgh

Sanctuary. Scribner
"Deals with a question of heredity." A. L. A. cat.
Appeared in Scribner's magazine, v. 34.

Tales of men and ghosts. Scribner
Contents: The bolted door; His father's son; The Daunt Diana; The debt; Full circle; The legend; The eyes; The blond beast; Afterward; The letters.
Appeared in the Century magazine, and Scribner's magazine, 1909-10.

Touchstone. Scribner
"Husband, to obtain money to justify his marriage, has violated a sacred confidence." N. Y. state lib.

Valley of decision. 2v Scribner
"As a study of Italian society on the verge of the French revolution, deeply interesting as a study of temperament, sympathetic and judicial." Sat. rev.

*Xingu, and other stories. Scribner
Contents: Xingu; Coming home; Autres temps—; Kerfol; The long run; The triumph of night; The choice; Bunner sisters.
"Xingu, an entertaining satire on women's literary clubs, is lighter in tone than most of Mrs. Wharton's stories." Cleveland

Canon in residence. Baker & Taylor
O.P. 1923
"A humorous tale of the results which followed an enforced change of raiment by a clergyman and a felon." Vermont lib. com.

"During the vicar's absence through illness his daughter, a strong-minded young woman, accustomed to managing affairs in the little parish, considers herself 'left in charge,' though a new curate—late from Australia and masterful—is supplied. Their relations in parish work, the unfolding of a mystery, and the revelation of his 'past' make a good story. It has the kindly satirical humor of The canon in residence." Booklist

Whiteing, Richard

No. 5 John street. Century
O.P. 1923

Where the sun swings north. Putnam
"A simple tale of love, adventure, privations and dangers in present-day Alaska. The author, himself an Alaskan, has woven a deal of authentic local color into the thread of his narrative." Cleveland

Willsie, Mrs. Honoré McCue

Benefits forgot. Stokes
"A short story of Civil War times. A young army surgeon who has neglected his mother is rebuked by Lincoln, to whom the mother has written asking him to find her son's grave." Booklist

*Enchanted canyon. Stokes
"A novel of the Grand Canyon and the Arizona desert. How Nucky Huntington, gambler and all round 'tough kid,' at fourteen, was regenerated by a week in the Grand Canyon and how the canyon laid the ghosts of his sordid past when they rose to confront him at a crisis of his career as a 'clean-handed' statesman and politician. The author has blended some unusual ingredients in a particularly readable tale. It is the best kind of western story—description, adventure and love in just the right proportion; it throws interesting sidelights on the workings of the Department of the Interior in Washington and in the field, and gives glimpses of the methods of New York City police." Cleveland

Judith of the godless valley. Stokes
"Story of two young people who grew up in an unfortunate environment and of the influences that unite to redeem them. The scene is a western valley in which the third generation of New England settlers has allowed itself to sink to a low moral level." Wis. bul.

Lydia of the pines. Stokes
Story of a young girl from her early school days to her senior year in college. The setting is a western town that resembles Madison, Wis. The confiscation of lands from Indians on a near-by reservation is one of the themes developed." Pittsburgh

*Still Jim. Stokes
"The struggles and growth of a young engineer in the reclamation service, whose inflexible New England standards help him to do honest and successful work, but hinder him woefully in his human relations." Cleveland
Appeared in Everybody's magazine.

Boss of Little Arcady. Lothrop
"Story of a village in the Middle West, just after the Civil war, which came under the influence of several interesting characters, each of whom was recognized as 'boss.'" A. L. A. sup.

Ma Pettingill. Doubleday
"More stories of Red Gap, showing the reactions of that adaptable town to various ultra modern cults and institutions. The narrator is usually Ma Pettingill, the redoubtable 'Mixer' of Ruggles of Red Gap, and mistress of the Arrow Ranch. The stories are good to read aloud on account of their shrewd humor and quaint turns of speech." Cleveland

*Merton of the movies. Doubleday
"Merton Gill, clerk in Gashwiler's Emporium, Simsbury, Ill., goes movie-mad and investing all his savings in a trip to Hollywood, finally gets a chance to register his emotions in popular hero rôles—or, so he believes. The nature of the triumph won for him by his 'low-comedy face' and desperate sobriety, is a secret until the very end." Cleveland

*Ruggles of Red Gap. Grosset
"Farcical tale of an English manservant who, transplanted to Red Gap, Washington, through an accident becomes a member of its best society and the arbiter of fashion." Wis. bul.

*Children of the Ghetto. Macmillan
"Scenes in life of London Jews, poor and rich, connected by a thread of narrative; copious in detail and in traits of character; gives ideas and ways of thinking, as well as ceremonial and external features." Baker

Dreamers of the Ghetto. Harper
"Conversations with and imaginative memoirs of historic representatives of the Jewish race, particularly of such as rebelled against the narrow limits of orthodox Judaism: e. g. Acosta, Spinoza, Heine, and Ferdinand Lassalle." Baker

Ghetto comedies. Macmillan
Contents: The model of sorrows; Anglicization; The Jewish trinity; The Sabbath question in Sudminster; The red mark; The bearer of burdens; The luftmensch; The tug of love; The Yiddish "Hamlet;" The converts; Holy wedlock; Elijah's goblet; The hirelings; Samooborona.
"Strong, artistic, short stories of the Jew, forming a wonderful piece of affectionate satire and speculation upon the attitude of the Jewish world towards its own contemporary problems." A. L. A. sup.

Jinny, the carrier. Macmillan
"An amusing comedy of English peasants; a girl carrier and her lover, who thinks her business 'unmaidenly' and failing to influence her with words, tries business rivalry. There is keen insight into character, broad humor, especially in the love letters and continuous lovers' quarrels; pleasing in dialogue, the dialect suggests by quaint turns of speech, and charming descriptions of the Essex countryside." Cleveland

Mantle of Elijah. Harper
"A study of the politics of the Palmerston period, with an anticipation of the Transvaal question in the Novabarba difficulty, which gives the author scope for caustic satire on jingoism and the claptrap offered as apology for war." Baker

The master. Harper
"Biography of a Nova Scotian lad, by nature a artist, who makes his way through almost insuperable difficulties to success, but finds the hardest struggle is to subdue himself. Deals philosophically with the deeper problems of life." Baker

Zingu, and other stories. Wharton, Mrs. E.

Zola, Emile

Downfall. Macmillan
O.P. 1923
"Naturalistic account of the disastrous campaign that ended in Sedan as it was seen and endured by two private soldiers. Not only are the awful realities of modern warfare brought before the eye, but the intolerable fatigue of the marching, the agonies of the hospitals, and the misery experienced by prisoners of war are depicted with ruthless force. Still more tragic are the episodes of revolution and massacre inside beleaguered Paris." Baker

Zuleika Dobson. Beerbohm, M.

This index is confessedly incomplete. It is submitted for criticism and suggestion. The compiler wishes, in future editions, to cut out any headings that may be found useless, to increase the number of entries under headings where this is desired, and to add any useful new headings that may be suggested.

All historical novels indexed will be found, arranged alphabetically by names of battles, countries, wars, etc., under the general heading: Historical Novels.

All novels of place indexed will be found alphabetically arranged under the general heading: Locality, Novels by.

Cross-references for novels under these two general headings have been omitted from the main part of the Subject-index, in order to reduce its bulk.

Locality, Novels by

The arrangement under this heading is alphabetical by names of cities, states and other localities with the following exceptions: Cities and other subdivisions of Canada, England, France, Germany, Italy and Turkey are arranged alphabetically under the name of the country. This has been done for convenience in assembling material on a given country and has not seemed necessary in the cases of South America and of the United States.
